By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Camden, N. J., Oct. 31.—Down the last lap of his campaign Wendell Willkie rode leisurely today, making a direct attack on President Roosevelt at every stop.

Through Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey Willkie spread a running answer to the President's Boston speech.

He accused Mr. Roosevelt of "playing cheap politics with international affairs."

He challenged the President to call him by name. And he dared him to tell the country why he seeks a third term.

Calls for Clean Debate

Then at Camden tonight, in his second major speech in contested New Jersey, he called for a "clean, hard, open debate." He condemned "the kind of politics that seeks to win a third term by hiding behind the bushes of two terms."

Two words in the President's Wednesday night address provided Willkie with the punching bag for his day-long slugging. They were: "My Ambassador."

"It used to be 'My friends!'" rasped the hoarse-voice Willkie to 10,000 packed into Camden Convention Hall. "Now it is 'My people,' but here is one thing that will be perfectly clear after November

Secretary Denies He Attacked Policeman But Offers Apology

By the United Press

Stephen T. Early, President Roosevelt's secretary, last night offered apologies to a New York City policeman who had charged he was injured by Early when Mr. Roosevelt's party left New York last Monday night.

The officer was James Sloan, colored, who was stationed at Pennsylvania Station.

Early also offered apologies to New York City Police Commissioner Valentine.

He specifically denied that he attacked or kicked any officer in the altercation, which he described as "a regrettable affair."

Early's complete statement follows:

"In certain Republican quarters political importance is being attached to an unfortunate altercation which took place between a detail of New York City policemen and myself on Monday night last.

"As part of my official duty, I was endeavoring to obtain permission for a group of about 35 newspapermen and others to board the train on which they had to return to their places of duty in Washington. I showed my credentials. All of the people in the group also had official credentials to board the train. It was essential for them that they get on that train before it left. Unfortunately the police had received instructions to let nobody pass under any circumstances. I was doing my best to identify this group and to convince the police that it was imperative and proper for this party to pass through the

Gallup Poll Gives Missouri to G. O. P.; Roosevelt Kentucky, Oklahoma Leads Cut

By Dr. George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 31.—Kentucky and Missouri, border States along the top rim of the solid South, both show a gain for Wendell Willkie, as does the Southwestern State of Oklahoma, in latest sampling by the American Institute of Public Opinion covering the period October 23 to 29.

Two of these three States, Kentucky and Oklahoma, continue to be in President Roosevelt's column, but Missouri shifts over into the Willkie column for the first time in the campaign, although by a small margin.

The trend since the Institute's previous report October 27, which was based on interviewing between October 14 and 23, is as follows:

Missouri today—Roosevelt, 49 per cent; Willkie, 51 per cent.
Missouri October 27—Roosevelt, 51 per cent; Willkie, 49 per cent.
Kentucky today—Roosevelt, 54 per cent; Willkie, 46 per cent.
Kentucky October 27—Roosevelt, 57 per cent; Willkie, 43 per cent.
Oklahoma today—Roosevelt, 55 per cent; Willkie, 45 per cent.
October 27—Roosevelt, 62 per cent; Willkie, 38 per cent.

The proportion of voters still undecided in the three States is Missouri, 7 per cent; Kentucky, 7 per cent; Oklahoma, 10 per cent.

Special interest is attached to the shift of Missouri because it is one of the six States which, if carried by Willkie, would give him victory in the electoral college. These six States are New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio, Missouri and Connecticut, with 149 electoral votes, which, if added to Willkie's 121 electoral votes in the Institute's October 27 report, would give him 270, four more than enough to win. So far Willkie is leading by a small margin in three of these six States, New York, Connecticut and Missouri. Whether President Roosevelt's radio

Banking Hours To Be Cut Here

A general change in the operating hours of Washington banks will become effective December 2, it was reported last night.

In compliance with a Clearing House Association proposal, it was indicated that all major banking institutions will adopt the new schedule of hours. Several banks already have announced the change and a poll of others revealed that announcements will be made shortly.

The new schedule, proposed to meet wage-hour requirements, is as follows:

From 9:30 a. m. to 2 p. m. on every business day, except Saturday, when the hours will be from 9:30 a. m. to 12 noon.

On the fifteenth and last days of each month, the hours will be from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. However, when the fifteenth day or last day of any month falls on Saturday, Sunday or a legal holiday, the banks will remain open until 5 p. m. on the next succeeding full business day.

15 'Staticless' Stations Licensed

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday started a new industry in the radio broadcasting field with the granting of 15 licenses to operate frequency modulation stations on a commercial basis.

These permits were the first to be granted since the FCC provided 35 channels between 43,000 and 50,000 kilocycles for FM service and adopted rules to govern the operation of the staticless stations.

Two Major Parties Issue 81,000,000 Campaign Buttons

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Just to add to all the confused pre-election statistics the subject of campaign buttons came up today.

Republican headquarters guessed that 30,000,000 to 60,000,000 Willkie buttons were extant; Democratic headquarters said 21,008,000 Roosevelt buttons had been issued.

A reliable authoritative source suggested that if each button were worn by one person and each button wearer placed his or her particular button in a straight line, the row of buttons would stretch from New York to Kansas City and that it would be a pretty silly proceeding.

Manufacturers of such novelty buttons have been working 24-hour shifts in New York City, some of the better known firms reporting orders of as high as 5,000,000 at one time.

Halloween Revelers Tie Up D. C. Traffic, Keep Police Busy

Washington celebrated Halloween last night in so many places that the police could barely keep up with the pace of events.

Although no downtown celebration was held as in previous years, thousands of children—and grown-ups—jammed the streets intent on having fun, and traffic became snarled with carloads of merry-makers looking for places to go and things to do.

Major festivity in the District was a parade up Georgia Avenue which started off with the blare of five bands and practically ended up with

U. S. Orders 2,000 More Planes; Draft Questionnaires Speeded

Forms to Be Sent To 4,500 District Selects at Once

With all nine corps areas of the Army expected to have called for selectives before tomorrow, the Nation's draft machinery last night threw its full weight against hurdles in the path of induction of 30,000 Americans November 18.

In Washington, selective service officials hit "continual delays" in the national setup but promised to send classification questionnaires immediately to 4,500 Capital men, from whom those to be drafted first will be chosen.

First call for the man power required to fill the gaps in "blue print" divisions came shortly after the lottery from Maj. Gen. George A. Woodruff, corps area commander in Boston. He asked six New England Governors to provide 984 selectives.

On the heels of his request came calls for 1,630 trainees in seven Far Western States. A similar demand for citizen soldiers was issued to States in the Southwest from headquarters at San Antonio. Commanders of other corps areas, including the third, which takes in the District, were expected to follow suit today.

Bent on keeping abreast of the draft time table, national selective headquarters last night rushed "master copies" of lottery order

Capital Trainees Assigned to Famed Third Cavalry

An order for more than 2,000 fighting planes, to cost $106,125,396, one of the largest such contracts in the defense program, was placed by the Navy yesterday with the Glenn L. Martin Co.

At the same time, the Army announced that several hundred selective service trainees from this corps area, who will be called November 18, will be assigned to the famous Third Cavalry, "Washington's Own," at Fort Myer, Va. The strength of the regiment is to be more than doubled.

President Roosevelt, in another move linked with the swirling rearmament activities, approved "immediate construction of housing projects in 63 vital defense areas" with $45,762,500 of defense funds, it was announced by Charles F. Palmer, defense housing coordinator.

Placing of the big naval plane contract came in the midst of reports that the War Department has planned production of 12,000 additional bombing planes largely with the aid of the automobile industry. It would involve expenditure of an estimated $2,000,000,000, and would be separate from the 12,000-plane order for Britain which President Roosevelt mentioned in his Thursday night address at Boston. It was understood that two large plants

U. S. Orders Browder's Wife Sent Back to Native Russia

The wife of Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President, was ordered deported to her native Russia yesterday.

Attorney General Jackson, in a formal opinion, refused leniency to Mrs. Raissa Berkman Browder, 43, despite her plea that she was the wife of an American citizen and the mother of three sons.

Saying that the basis for his decision was Mrs. Browder's own testimony "describing her surreptitious entry in 1933," the Attorney General ruled that the only question for decision was whether or not to be lenient in carrying out the deportation—and he ruled against leniency.

Under the new Alien Registration Act of 1940, Jackson, under certain conditions, could (1) permit Mrs. Browder to leave voluntarily at her own expense, or (2) suspend deportation. If the suspension were for more than six months, the Attorney General would have to report to Congress.

MRS. BROWDER

The law states that among the aliens excluded from leniency are those who have been members of or affiliated with any organization which believes in or advocates overthrow of the Government by force.

Declaring that "outstanding decisions of the Federal courts hold that the Communist Party is such an organization," Jackson said he was unable to find any grounds for leniency.

Jackson bulwarked his decision

Brooklyn—Then Cleveland

Roosevelt Leaves Capital Today on Final Campaign Tour

The White House announced last night the itinerary of President Roosevelt's final 1940 campaign trip, including major addresses at the Brooklyn (New York) Academy of Music tonight and the Cleveland, Ohio, auditorium tomorrow night.

World conditions permitting, the White House said the trip will then take Mr. Roosevelt Sunday morning to his Hyde Park, N. Y., home, from which he will deliver an address Monday night, election eve.

The Presidential schedule (times are Eastern Standard):

Leave Washington in midafternoon today, arriving at New York about 8 p. m. and motoring immediately to the Brooklyn Academy of Music for his address at 9 p. m.

Leave New York shortly after delivery of address, arriving Rochester for 15-minute platform appearance about 9 a. m. Saturday.

Arrive Batavia, N. Y., about 10:30 a. m. for 10-minute platform appearance.

Arrive in North Buffalo about noon. Leave train by motor for inspection of airplane and steel plants and depart from South Buffalo about 2 p. m.

Arrive Erie, Pa., about 4 p. m. for platform appearance. Leave Erie (New York Central Railroad) 10 minutes later.

Arrive Cleveland about 7 p. m. Leave train about 8:15 p. m. and drive to auditorium for address at 9 p. m.

Leave Cleveland about 10:30 p. m., arriving Hyde Park Sunday morning

Greeks Shell Italians' Landing Port; Nazis Reported Moving East

Rumanian Ships Flee Turkish Ports; Observers Expect Move in Bulgaria

By the Associated Press

Bucharest, Rumania (Passed by Censor), Oct. 31.—Unofficial reports that fast German troop trains had passed through the western Rumanian province, the Banat of Temesvar (presumably eastbound), and that there had been a heavy movement of German war supplies on the Timisoara-Brasov Railway circulated here tonight.

(Timisoara is in western Rumania; Brasov in the east and some 150 miles north of the Bulgarian border.)

During the day the German S. S. (Elite Guard) Chief Lorenz arrived at Constanta by plane and it was reported that he would go to Bulgaria and then to Ankara, Turkey, for conferences.

(Constanta is in the Rumanian area which Bulgarians still want.)

The Rumanian government said there was no official confirmation that one squadron of German warplanes recently flown here for "instruction purposes" now has proceeded to Bulgaria.

Three Rumanian ships recalled from Turkish waters have reached Constanta.

Tonight Franz von Papen, the German Ambassador to Turkey, arrived here en route to Berlin for an important conference on Balkan developments.

(These various developments suggested to some observers that something significant was afoot regarding Bulgaria—which would be a convenient area through which Germany could strike at eastern Greece.)

Nazi Break Expected

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Oct. 31.—Germany's relations with Greece after the break between that country and Italy remain unchanged, it was authoritatively stated today.

It is taken for granted by neutral quarters, however, that Germany will sever relations with Greece in the event that the conflict between that country and Italy resolves into a complete state of war. Whether the Reich in that event would assume the role of an active belligerent, however, is a question still awaiting clarification.

Nazis Renew Heavy Raids

By Robert P. Post.

London (Friday), Nov. 1.—The bombardment of London was renewed with full force this morning after a long interval following one of the shortest night raids experienced during the past two months.

Returning just before daylight the German bombers more than made up in intensity for the comparative lightness of their first attack which ended long before midnight. The drone of airplane engines, the crash of bombs and the gun barrage and searchlights vindicated the judgment of a majority of Londoners who had refused to venture from their shelters and dashed the hope of others that at long last they were going to have a quiet night.

The first attack, which ended the earliest of any since the heavy bombing started in September, lasted little more than two hours—

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN

'Premature,' British Call Story of Trip To Recoup Health

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 31.—Former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was understood tonight to have left England because of the state of his health and to be on the way to California.

The word of his departure from England came by a trustworthy source from Birmingham. How he was traveling was not disclosed, and there was nothing to suggest how soon he might arrive in the United States except a rumor that he and his wife had been at sea for about 10 days.

[A spokesman at the British Embassy here said the story of Chamberlain's departure for the United States was "definitely not true," and then added: "It is certainly premature." He refused to explain the possible significance of the word, "premature."

[At the State Department, officials disclaimed any knowledge of a visit by the former prime minister to this country.]

Friends in Birmingham, the industrial town where Chamberlain was born and lived in the manner suggested by the famous umbrella with which his personality has been associated in the public mind, understood he sought sunshine on doctors' orders.

Chamberlain's health has been uncertain for months. On July 29 he was operated on for an abdominal difficulty and he has suffered, too, from gout.

Chamberlain's three-year service as prime minister ended with his resignation on May 10, 1940.

Stocks Rise in Best Day Since June

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Stocks moved up $1 to $3 or more a share today in the most active session since June 12. Steels were particularly buoyant, closely followed by aircraft and rails.

Rapidly expanding business, an apparent lull in the European war and steadily improving political prospects, as viewed in Wall Street, were listed by brokers as the main stimulants inspiring the rise. Sales totaled 1,343,960 shares.

Roosevelt Extends Olive Branch to Organized Medicine

President Roosevelt dedicated the new home of the National Institute of Health at Bethesda, Md., yesterday with an address which extended the olive branch of peace to the organized medical profession.

Signaling the formal opening of the U. S. Public Health Service's research unit, the President averred that "neither the American people nor their Government intend to socialize medical practice any more than they plan to socialize industry."

His statement was the strongest indication to date that the Administration would heal the rift with the organized medical profession, 20 of whose members are now awaiting trial on charges of violating the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Standing on the portico of the health institute's administration building, facing 3,000 Government and private doctors, Public Health Service employes and Montgomery County Democrats, the President emphasized that total defense means not only guns and airplanes but mobilization of health and medical resources.

"To do this," he said, "will require the best energies of the professional and technical leadership of our country.

"To do this will require the fullest cooperation between the Gov-

Strategic Ioannina Position Stormed, Much Booty Taken, Athens Reports

The War Today

GREECE'S FLEET and air force bombard invading Italians at the Albanian-Greek frontier and Athens reports repulsing 60,000 Fascist troops on Greek soil, some of whom "threw away arms and equipment and fled."

GERMAN TROOPS, meanwhile, are reported moving through western Rumanian provinces.

ROYAL AIR FORCE bombers continue to rain death and destruction on Germany and German-held bases in Europe, with Emden bearing the brunt of the attack.

NAZI FLIERS pierce rain-laden skies to bomb London for the fifty-fifth successive night, but the attacks lack much of the previous fierceness.

Fighting Back

By International News Service

Corfu, Oct. 31.—Greek warships today laid down a heavy bombardment on Italian troops and artillery participating in the drive down the west coast of Greece toward Konispolis and Ioannina, it was announced tonight.

Going into major action for the first time in the four days since Italy invaded Greece, the guns of the Greek naval units pounded the Italian advance positions for an hour this morning.

[A United Press dispatch from Athens stated that an Italian army corps (about 60,000 men) had penetrated Greek territory, but had been repulsed. Two Italian companies, this dispatch stated, were "so completely routed that they threw away their guns and equipment and fled."

[The United Press also reported that the small Greek air force cooperated with the Greek navy in the attack on Italians near the Albanian-Greek frontier.]

Aimed at Troops Docks

The Greek warships moved out of their bases on Corfu Island shortly before dawn, taking advantage of the darkness, and ranged themselves in the strait between the island and the Greek mainland.

Then at 7 a. m., as day began to break, the war vessels opened up, flinging tons of shells in the direction of the Fascist positions near

Nearly 100 Hurt In Philadelphia Train Collision

Philadelphia, Oct. 31 (AP).—Between 75 and 100 persons were injured late today when a crowded commuters' electric train rammed into the rear of a Bethlehem (Pa.) express on a bridge which carries the Reading Railroad tracks over Broad Street in busy north Philadelphia.

The trains, witnesses said, telescoped with a thundering crash that tossed passengers from their seats into tumbled heaps in the aisles. None was believed to have been hurt critically, however.

Doris Duke Said To Plan Divorce

New York, Oct. 31 (INS).—The New York Daily Mirror in an exclusive story tonight stated that Doris Duke Cromwell will leave for Honolulu Sunday after completing plans to seek a divorce from her husband, James Cromwell, who is campaigning for election as United States Senator from New Jersey.

the western end of the Albanian-Greek frontier.

It was indicated that some of the naval fire was directed at the vicinity of the southern Albanian port of Santi Quaranti, where the Italians were reported to have landed seven shiploads of troop reinforcements for the drive into Greece.

There was no indication that units of the British Mediterranean fleet served in today's bombardment, although unofficial reports said British marines had been landed from warships on a small island south of Corfu.

Greeks Counterattack

Athens, Greece, Oct. 31 (AP).—In their first major counterattack of the new war with Italy Greek soldiers were declared today to have stormed the gloomy heights north of Ioannina (Janina) and pushed back the invading Fascist troops.

The town—strategically important because of its supply depots and its location, some 30 miles from the Albanian frontier and an equal distance from the coast—was thus relieved temporarily at least from what had been before a slow but continuous Italian advance by two columns.

Specifically claimed in Greek reports were the recapture of a hill which had been the scene of heavy action and the seizure of large quantities of abandoned Italian arms and equipment.

[Advices from the Greek-Yugoslavian boundary, relayed through Bitolj, Yugoslavia, said the Italians had gained slight ground in four days toward Ioannina, but had been unable to crack strong Greek defenses farther northeast.]

Ioannina sector was the hottest of the day, but all along the lofty battle line—the western frontier of Albania—there was intermittent fighting. Behind the front, Italian and Greek bombers attacked communications.

Up until afternoon no bombing action in this country, other than that along the battlefront and at Patras, had been reported.

From the cities and towns inland from the fighting area troops moved up to the front during the day in every sort of vehicle capable of carrying them.

Material help was understood to have arrived from Britain. It was reported authoritatively that British troops, under the direction of the British Mediterranean fleet, had been landed on certain strategic Greek islands, which for military reasons were not designated.

What Greece had to depend on for the moment, however, was the Metaxas Line, a fortified area supplemented by the natural fortresses provided by the rugged and mountainous terrain which follows the Albanian-Greek frontier from the Ionian coast to Lake Ventrok and carries on along the Yugoslav and Bulgarian borders to the Turkish frontier.

The chief strength of this line is understood to consist of concrete fortifications, earthworks, pill boxes and barbedwire tank traps.

Ioannina—which commands two of the four main routes from Albania—is believed to be particularly protected.

To defend that line hundreds of peasants stood in queues today at mobilization stations, handing in their rough clothing for uniforms and then riding away for the front, crying out the national anthem of Greece.

Continued Italian air raids against the port of Patras were reported officially. There were two raids yesterday, a communique said, but the casualties were light. The toll of victims in the first day's raid on the city reached 100 dead and 250 injured, however.

The ministry of home security ordered a 9 p. m. to sunrise curfew for all foreigners except those with special permits and forbade aliens to travel from one city to another except by special authorization.

Announcing the new step in building up "the country's cavalry force to effective strength," the War Department said that to the 659 enlisted men in the Third Regiment will be added 683 selective service trainees from the District of Columbia, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, comprising the Third Corps Area.

The addition will be made in two increments, the first group of 254 selectees to "find themselves 'troopers' of the Third Cavalry on November 18," the announcement stated. The remaining increment of 429 men will be received on February 19, 1941.

"With its increased strength, this regiment will be organized as a nine-troop unit," the department said. At present it consists only of six troops, which are a headquarters and service troop, a machine gun troop and four rifle troops. The three new units to be created will comprise two additional rifle troops and a special weapons troop. The latter organization is made up of .50 caliber machine guns and 81 mm. mortars.

"Housing facilities already exist at Fort Myer to care for the increase which will occur in November. For those men to be received in February, it will be necessary to add additional construction to the garrison. New buildings required will consist of two 63-man barracks, one 118-man mess hall, a troop recreation building, a troop supply building, and three stables."

Arlington to Get 50 Houses

The defense housing money, Palmer told a press conference, will provide 13,315 family dwelling units scattered throughout the United States. The contracts will be handled by the Federal Works Administrator, John M. Carmody, he said.

The coordinator estimated that all the projects would be completed within 4 to 12 months.

Officials said that funds had been provided for construction of the family units, chiefly for housing families of enlisted men of the Army and Navy, at an estimated cost of not more than $3,000 for each unit. Included among the sites are:

Aberdeen, Md., 500; Edgewood, Md., 500; Lee Hall, Va., 25; Baltimore, 100; Arlington, Va., 35; Virginia Beach, Va., 50; Langley Field, Va., 350; Phoebus, Va., 90; Odenton, Md., 115.

The Navy awarded a $41,886,581 contract for aircraft engines to the United Aircraft Corp., Pratt & Whitney Aircraft division, East Hartford, Conn. Numbers were not specified.

Other Navy contracts included: Midvale Co., Washington, D. C., steel forgings, $670,000.

Italians Claim Gains in Greece

Bombing of Troops Vessels in Corinth Gulf Reported

By the Associated Press

Rome, Oct. 31.—The Italian army in four days of war against Greece has advanced beyond the Kalamas River, 5 miles from the Albanian frontier, despite rain, mud and stiff Greek resistance, reports from the front said tonight.

Augmenting a high command announcement that Fascist forces had reached the river "at various points," the newspaper Lavoro Fascista's war correspondent said troops which jumped off from the border towns of Kakavia and Perat had crossed the stream.

The main force apparently was moving down the highway which threads through the mountains from Kakavia to Ioannina (Janina), industrial town on a lake of the same name 30 miles south of the border.

The Greeks are resisting "in some spots, and in some cases stiffly," the correspondent of the Turin newspaper Gazzeta del Popolo reported, but generally are falling back to their main prepared positions and confining their activities to harassing Italian communications.

In addition to the land operations, the high command said its air force flew through dirty weather to bomb loaded troop transports at the Port of Patras and the Lepanto naval base on the Gulf of Corinth, a barracks at Metzovo Pass in western Greece, and highway junctions in the Kalamas Valley.

The identity of the troops aboard the bombed vessels was not disclosed. (Salonika dispatches said British transports were reported authoritatively to have landed troops on undisclosed Greek islands.)

In the air operations the high command reported several "enemy" planes were shot down and that one Italian craft failed to return.

No mention was made in today's communique of activity along the northern Grecian front, where another Italian force is reported driving toward Salonika, Greek east coast port 100 miles away.

In the East African war theater the Italians said their forces had warded off British thrusts in the direction of Gadura, on the Kenya Colony border. They admitted scattered British air raids on other Italian African positions.

It was learned reliably meanwhile the Swiss Legation would take over Greek interests when the Greek Legation closes, probably tomorrow. Greek Minister Politis already has asked for his passports and is waiting for Greek consuls from various cities to join him on a special diplomatic train.

Held in the North

Bitolj, Yugoslavia (at the Greek Frontier), Oct. 31 (AP).—Italian troops were reported tonight to have gained ground in the southern sector of their thrust into Greece, but to be unable to crack the strong Greek resistance in the north.

Reports received here said the Italian columns attempting to smash their way into Epirus toward the strategic town of Ioannina (Janina) had made progress, although their gains were declared to be less than the 50 kilometers (30 miles) claimed by some Axis sources.

Ioannina appeared to be the immediate Italian objective since it is an important operating base for the Greek army in the southern sector and contains supply depots and military hospitals.

Border observers said strong troop concentrations could be seen on both sides of the front, indicating that the Italians were planning an offensive in the north (presumably from Corizza in Albania eastward toward Phlorina and Kastoria).

Yesterday and today the Italians brought up motorized forces and assigned them to points all along the northern front.

The Greeks claimed 100 Italian prisoners had been taken to Phlorina. Peasants on the shores of Lake Prespa near the juncture of the Greek-Albanian-Yugoslav frontiers heard continual machine-gun firing almost at hand and an artillery barrage in the distance.

Greek Conflict May Be Ruse, Diplomats Say

By Drew Middleton
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 31.—Diplomatic circles here are discussing the possibility that a German-Russian "squeeze play" may be keeping Turkey neutral and immobilized in the Italian-Greek conflict.

There are widespread reports that the Italians are attempting to feint British troops out of their positions in Egypt and draw them into exposing themselves in Greece. Any weakening of British forces in Egypt for the relief of the Greeks may be the signal for Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's Italian legions to advance eastward from Sidi Barrani toward Suez.

Some Balkan diplomatic sources express belief that Turkey's part in the Near Eastern drama is dictated by Moscow.

They say they believe that an understanding on the eventual disposition of middle Eastern spoils, such as the oil fields of Iraq and Iran (Persia), has been reached by Adolf Hitler and Joseph Stalin.

Some diplomatic observers express the opinion that Russia has been promised Iran and a corridor on both sides of the Dardanelles in exchange for "controlling" the Turks while Germany and Italy split up the Balkans.

When this is accomplished the three powers—Germany, Italy and Russia—then will confront the Turks with an ultimatum demanding a right of way for German and Italian troops leading to Palestine, Port Said and Suez and a denationalized zone around the Dardanelles to be controlled by Russia.

On the other hand, in other diplomatic quarters it is observed that Russia's silence on the Italian drive into Greece may be taken as showing uneasiness in Moscow as the Axis powers approach the Dardanelles.

It is pointed out that in the past Russia always has fought either for control of the Dardanelles for herself or for control by a friendly power. These sources say she is not likely to sit quietly while Germany and Italy approach the historic straits which form her only gateway to the Mediterranean.

Can Hold Out Alone, Greece Tells Turkey

By the Associated Press

Ankara, Turkey, Oct. 31.—The Greeks have told the Turkish government that they can hold out against the Italians without this country's help, authoritative quarters here said today.

They added that Turkey would enter the war only "in case of a Bulgarian attack on Greece or if Turkey's national interests are endangered."

Nevertheless, they said, this country has promised all possible aid to Greece even though that aid does not take the Turks to the point of becoming belligerents.

All this—the brief story of what must have been a series of feverish diplomatic soundings and exchanges—was disclosed by semiofficial informants while the official Turkish radio took one more fling at the Italians.

Italy, said the broadcast, is up against an important test of her military power, but has not "shown up brilliantly."

Discussing British aid to Greece, the announcer remarked that what was needed from the Greek standpoint was an R. A. F. bombing campaign on Italian air bases, and air attacks on "Italian cities, including Rome." To such raids, he threw in, the Italians "seem especially sensitive."

The radio again put forward the Turkish view that Italy was hitting at Greece "in an effort to prove to Germany that Italy can act on her own initiative," adding:

"Italy also wants what territory she can occupy in Greece to make sure she will be rewarded for her efforts in the war on the side of Germany."

There still was speculation as to the activities of German Ambassador Franz von Papen, who left yesterday.

(In Berlin today authorized sources declined any comment on the Von Papen matter, not even confirming that he had in fact left Turkey.

(German officialdom was represented as confident that the Italian-Greek war would be localized; that Turkey would not get in unless Bulgaria did, and that Bulgaria intends to remain neutral.)

British Won't Land in Greece, Cairo Feels

Axis Striking Force Too Great to Be Met By Available Troops

By Ralph W. Barnes
Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

Cairo, Oct. 31.—Anything resembling an attempt by the British to send a landing expedition to the Greek mainland, to oppose the Italian invasion, is a pipedream of armchair strategists, military experts here believe.

This opinion is founded on reports from London that about 70 German divisions have been concentrated on the southeastern border of the Reich, suggesting that a further Axis thrust into the Balkans may occur soon, coupled with the fact that British authorities have refrained thus far from disclosing the character of the counter-moves they are making or proposing to make in the Middle East.

Fleet's Work Not Disclosed

The Royal Air Force communique issued here today reported intensified bombing of ports and other objectives in Libya, Italy's north African territory, but made no mention of any British aerial operations in the new Grecian war zone. Fleet operations in the Eastern Mediterranean, save for an announcement of bombardment of the Italian-held Dodecanese Islands, have not been disclosed.

The German troops concentrations referred to might be employed, it is suggested here, in a drive through Bulgaria to the Dardanelles and perhaps beyond, in supporting a possible Bulgarian push through Grecian Thrace to the Aegean Sea or in bringing direct aid to the Italians in their invasion attempt.

Clearly, any limited British force which might be dispatched, with any hope of being adequately supplied by sea, could be overwhelmed in short order by the superior numbers which Italy and Germany together, if need be, could concentrate against it. An Italo-German force in that quarter would enjoy an immense advantage in having overland communications with its bases in the rear.

Must Weigh Whole Picture

If this appraisal of the possibilities is correct, British assistance to Greece must be confined largely to naval and aerial action, it is said here. Obviously, action of that sort has strict limitations when it comes to defense, wherein the primary object is to "hold land."

In plain fact, in determining their course at the present juncture authorities who direct Great Britain's war effort in this part of the world are under the necessity of placing considerations of grand strategy above those of fulfilment of the British pledge to Greece. This is no time, it is pointed out here, for operations which might involve heroic episodes resembling the charge of the light brigade and little else.

Optimistic Greeks Warned Of 5th Column

Told to Believe Only Official Communiques; Metaxas Confident

By A. C. Sedgwick
Copyright by New York Times

Athens, Oct. 31.—Premier Metaxas spoke to a group of Athens' newspaper proprietors today and made it clear that he viewed the situation with the "utmost confidence."

Earlier it was announced that the government wished to warn the people against letting themselves become overoptimistic and pinning too much faith in unauthenticated reports. It was pointed out that it is the duty of all to be calm and await the official communiques, which, it is intended, will hereafter be published each night. Persons spreading inordinately hopeful rumors without factual basis—and of these there have been many—were perhaps Fifth Columnists, it was suggested.

The people of Athens have buckled down to the realities of war and have accepted the hardships and inconveniences in good humor. Those habitually fond of cafe life stay indoors willingly. Monday's blackout, on the first night of this war, was perhaps amateurish. Tonight the blackout is complete and is accepted as a serious affair with rules which must be followed.

The consequences of air attack were made known tonight in the case of Patras where, it was declared, more than 100 were killed and about three times as many injured, mostly women and children. This assault, it was revealed, occurred Monday.

The citizenry of this small commercial west coast town had not learned of the declaration of war, nor did they suspect the impending hostilities. Only a few weeks before, the Italian consulate in Patras had let it be known that Graeco-Italian relations were good enough to permit the return to the Patras homes of the Italian colony previously evacuated. It appears now that this was a gesture to publicize the supposed friendship between Italy and Greece and cause a diminution in the latter's preparations.

In this Patras raid, according to Government sources, the Italian planes, some disguised as Greek, with blue and white markings, flew at a height hardly above the housetops and proceeded to rain death on the people congregated in the squares and along the quayside. Casualties among the Italian community who likewise were ignorant of the war's declaration were high.

Reports that certain sections of the Albanian populace were rising and had in some cases even sabotaged Italian military transports came with a tonic effect along with news from London that Britain had already gone some distance in implementing her guarantees to this country.

Lewis Asks Rules for State Military Units

By the Associated Press

John L. Lewis asked Secretary of War Stimson yesterday to prescribe strict regulations to protect "fundamental constitutional guarantees" where State military units are used in place of national guardsmen to suppress sabotage on defense work.

Lewis suggested that Stimson lay down regulations which would require that:

1. All State military unit expenses be paid out of public funds, and private contributions be banned.
2. That daily reports be sent to the Secretary of War giving the names of persons detained, injured or killed, and by whom, and that this record be made public.
3. That the units comply with all Federal laws and the constitutional guarantees protecting civil rights.

San Juan Slip Dragged Before Transport Docks

San Juan, P. R., Oct. 31.—A crew from the Coast Guard cutter Unalga this afternoon dragged the slip where the Army transport Hunter Liggett is berthed on a report to the authorities that heavy parcels had been seen put overboard from the former German steamer Vancouver last night.

A message radioed to the transport caused her to delay her arrival until the water adjacent to her pier could be carefully examined. Most that was found was a bag of potatoes. The Hunter Liggett was then signalled to dock. Aboard the transport were 1,200 officers and men to be ground crews for the Borinquen Field air base.

Defense Is in 'High,' Paint Men Told

1,200 Planes Monthly Due in January, Knudsen Aide Says

Production of airplanes for the defense program by January will probably be more than 1,200 a month, and output of the new Garand rifle within a few months is scheduled to reach 1,000 a day, Frank Bane, defense official, told the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association convention yesterday.

Bane, who is director of the division of cooperation, Advisory Commission to the Council of National Defense, outlined progress of the defense program at a session at the Mayflower Hotel.

Earlier in the day Ernest T. Trigg, president of the association, in his address disclosed that a plan for "the protection of structures in which war-essential materials are manufactured or housed" has been presented by his organization to the Advisory Commission.

The plan, he said, included suggestions for a topographical survey of certain portions of the Nation to determine best locations for plants for difficult identification "through enemy aerial observation."

While pointing out that "it is hoped and believed that there will never be the necessity for this," he said the defense program in preparation for "any eventuality" should include plans for a change in appearance of such locations "over night."

Bane, in his address on "'National defense: A Cooperative Job," pointed out that the Army and Navy airplane procurement program calls for production of more than 25,000 planes—all now under contract. By January we shall probably be making more than 1,200 planes a month and the production curve will increase steeply to a monthly output of, say, 3,000 by early 1942.

"More than 200 waships are already under contract and in the hands of shipbuilders. More than 25,000 trucks have been contracted for delivery before the end of this year. Light tanks (13 tons each is 'light') are being produced at the rate of 100 a month," Bane said.

"For heavy tanks, we are building the first mass production factory in the world. We have located 2 powder plants, 2 high explosive plants, 5 shellloading plants and 2 ammonia plants—a total of 11—with 5 more projected. Other plants will make smokeless powder and machine guns.

"Current production on the new semiautomatic rifle is at the rate of more than 2,000 a week. In a few months, it is scheduled to reach 1,000 a day.

"In the next year 80,000 freight cars will have been added to the present effective rolling stock of our great railroads," he added. "Recently 75,000 miles of strategic military roads have been mapped out, and the improvements and construction necessary for those highways to carry peak loads of defense plus civilian traffic are in the hands of Federal, State and local highway authorities."

Edwin B. George, economist, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., on the same program discussed "Economic Consequences of National Defense." Among numerous points which he cited, he said:

"So far there is no general claim that wages and hours are obstructing the defense program . . . But many observers believe in their hearts that intelligent and selective relaxation of some of our labor laws can hardly be avoided if we get into a really expanded program."

Wheeler McMillen, president, National Farm Chemurgic Council, in an address said:

"No better investment of public funds could be made than an appropriation this winter of $2,500,000 to provide an annual fund of $50,000 per State for research into new crops . . . to add strength to the agricultural income." He also urged the adoption of "the principle of incentive payments to farmers" to expand crops needed in the Nation.

Other speakers were S. D. Ren, executive vice president of the Universal Trading Corporation, on "China and Tung Oil" and Ellsworth C. Alvord, economist, on "National Finance and National Defense."

The Association held its banquet last night. Closing sessions take

HEALTH DEFENSE—Standing on the portico of the administration building, facing 3,000 doctors, Public Health Service employes and Montgomery County Democrats, President Roosevelt yesterday dedicated the National Institute of Health at Bethesda, Md. The President emphasized that total defense means not only guns and airplanes but mobilization of health and medical resources

ernment and the hospitals, the medical, dental, nursing and other professions. We seek the same partnership that we seek for industrial production in the Advisory Commission."

President Roosevelt, paying tribute to "the skill and self-sacrifice of the medical profession," said:

There can be no substitute for the personal relationship between doctor and patient which is a characteristic and a source of strength of medical practice in our land."

Trial Postponed Indefinitely

Trial of the 20 indicted doctors, the American Medical Association, District Medical Society and two other affiliated bodies was scheduled to open here on October 21. A few days earlier Edward A. Curran, United States attorney for the District announced an indefinite postponement.

The indictments were the outgrowth of allegedly unfair practices exercised by the defendants against Group Health Association, a medical cooperative for Federal employes which today marks the third anniversary of its founding.

The President, in an address carried by the three networks, assured his hearers that "the Nation today is better prepared to meet the public health problems of our emergency" than at any previous time in the history of the country."

Through health provisions of the Social Security Act, improved facilities in the States and notable research findings made by the National Institute of Health, America is well on its way to medical preparedness, the President asserted.

"Now that we are less than a day by plane from the jungle-type yellow fever of South America, less than two days from the sleeping sickness of equatorial Africa, less than three days from cholera and bubonic plague, the ramparts we watch must be civilian in addition to military," he said.

The health institute, research arm of the Public Health Service, has made important contributions to medical science down the years, particularly in pellagra, tularemia, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, typhus, yellow fever, malaria and psittacosis (parrot fever), the President pointed out.

Warmly Praises Mrs. Wilson

He spoke warm praise for Mrs. Luke I. Wilson, who, with her late husband, presented to the Government the 86-acre tract on which stand the six buildings of the National Institute of Health, including the National Cancer Institute. Mrs. Wilson was seated beside him on the platform.

"Today the need for the conservation of health and physical fitness is greater than at any time in the Nation's history," the President said. "In dedicating this institute, I dedicate it to the underlying philosophy of public health, to the conservation of life, to the wise use of the vital resources of our Nation."

His visit to the institute, accompanied by Gov. Herbert O'Conor, of Maryland, was the occasion for a campaign demonstration by Montgomery County Democrats.

A reception committee of approximately 2,000 partisans was on hand at the District line in Sixteenth Street. All cheered, many waved flags and a few held banners aloft.

"Western Maryland for Roosevelt by 15,000 Votes," one read.

"The Race is Only Close in the Papers," said another.

"Montgomery County for Roosevelt by More Than 8,000 Votes," a third proclaimed.

Crowd Pro-Roosevelt

From Sixteenth Street the White House procession turned into the East-West Highway, along which motorists waved and cheered from their parked cars. At Bethesda, where the motorcade turned north, the streets were lined with Roosevelt rooters.

There was an occasional "We Want Willkie" and a few pupils in front of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School extended Willkie buttons from their coat lapels but the crowds were predominantly Roosevelt.

The President was introduced by Wayne Coy, assistant to Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator. Coy, who delivered the only other address at the exercises, reviewed the achievements of the Public Health Service, a FSA bureau.

Four of the new six buildings of the institute are now in use. They are the National Cancer Institute, public health methods, industrial hygiene and administration buildings. The other two, one for infectious disease study and the other housing the chemistry, pharmacology, biologics control and zoology divisions, are completed and will be occupied in the next few months.

Andrew Newman, Montgomery County police chief, who was in charge of a special guard for President Roosevelt at the dedication exercises, is a brother of Lieut. Comdr. John F. Newman, who until recently was Presidential aide on the U. S. S. Potomac, Presidential yacht. Lieut. Comdr. Newman is now on duty with the Atlantic patrol.

Attack Italy Now, Chatfield Urges

British Admiral Would Speed Sea, Air Aid to Greece

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 31.—Admiral of the Fleet Lord Chatfield publicly recommended tonight that whatever sea and air forces Britain could spare for the defense of the homeland should "strike some violent blows against Italy now."

"Italy's object," the former minister for coordination of defense said in a broadcast, "may be to divide our military forces and so weaken our resistance in Egypt.

"But sea and air power will be of more valuable help to Greece than a large army sent to Salonika with all that means in transport and supply."

"The laws of strategy teach you," he went on, "to strike your enemy's weak spot with your utmost force. Italy is the enemy's weak spot . . ."

Can "Handle" Foe

He expressed a conviction that the British Mediterranean fleet, under command of Admiral Sir Arthur Cunningham, would be able to handle the Italian fleet, hold Gibraltar and protect the Suez Canal.

"Fighting in the narrow waters of the Mediterranean," he said, "the fleet has gradually taken the measure of its Italian opponent.

"It is quite true that never before has a fleet had more complicated tactical responsibilities than has ours today in the Mediterranean.

"Italy, by invading Greece through Albania, can maintain her armies by a short sea route across the Adriatic, not an easy sea for our fleet to operate in—but always there are possibilities for night action.

"If Italy plans to extend her operations by sea to the Greek islands, our fleet may be given that opportunity to strike that it has waited for."

Landings Unconfirmed

Authoritative military informants in London said their information was that the Italian troops invading Greece had not yet reached the main defensive line.

There was no information of British troop landings in Greece—Saloniki reports had said British troops had been landed on certain Greek islands—and nothing was said here as to any naval landings.

Tonight the Royal Air Force reported that its eastern Mediterranean operations had been extended, announcing that in flights over Greek and Italian coastal waters an Italian bomber was shot down.

Bardia and Tobruk, Italian bases in Libya, were declared to have been heavily bombed yesterday.

Swiss Detect Signs of Rift In Axis Lute

Believe Hitler, Duce Don't See Eye-to-Eye On Balkan Spoils

By Daniel Brigham.

Copyright by New York Times

Berne, Oct. 31.—Despite the "perfect identity of views" announced as existing between Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini in the communique after their Florence meeting, the Swiss newspaper Gazette de Lucerne sees at least one possible subject on which this "identity" was not reached without some fairly long explanations from Signor Mussolini.

That subject was the Balkan Peninsula in general and Greece in particular.

The Italo-Greek war does not seem to have aroused much enthusiasm in the German press, which confines itself largely to reprinting Italian press accusations against the little kingdom and pointing out that that conflict is something which concerns Italy alone.

This is possible, says the Gazette, but it might also be that the Roman government, seeing its "friend and ally" extending its zone of influence into the Danubian basin, now wishes to insure for itself at least this small zone of influence so that it, too, can pursue its "drang nach osten" (drive to the east) if the occasion for one presents itself.

"But might this not lead to an eventual conflict between the two allies?" asks the Gazette. "For Germanism, by a sort of Atavism or hereeditary instinct, has invariably turned its eyes towards the sunny south.

"There are many recent precedents for this. Did not Germany in 1914 also desire to become a Mediterranean power? Did she not send at that time a strong fleet with the intention of establishing a base in the Near East? And the Hamburg-Baghdad railroad line, did not that also fire the imagination?

"Peoples, as such, forget with difficulty that for which they have once hoped and ambition returns with returning strength."

Another source of conflict—or at least serious difference of opinion—is seen in the treatment to be accorded to France. Italian demands, far from softening, have seemed to increase with the daily leaking out of further information on them. Nice and Tunis were the first mentioned territorial claims "which if granted would facilitate negotiations about further claims." There have also been demands for Corsica, Jibuti and Savoy.

Greek Defiance Jolted Axis, Swedish Newspapers Report

Berlin Dispatches Indicate That Italy Counted Too Heavily on Fifth Column; May Explain Lack of Enthusiasm in Fighting

Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, Oct. 31.—Reports of Swedish newspaper correspondents in Berlin give a strong impression that the Axis did not expect Greek resistance and counted upon the success of Italian fifth-column activities in Greece—and especially on Crown Prince Paul—to get control of the country.

Apparently the Italians have muddled the job, though their eagerness to avoid fighting can be seen in the three days of comparative inactivity of their troops, which at first was attributed to a desire to study the weak points in the Greek defenses and now is believed owing to the Italian hope that their accomplices in Greece would force the capitulation of the country.

The Scandinavian News Agency reports from Berlin that "hope that the conflict would be short and followed by a rapid diplomatic solution has not been fulfilled. There is certainty here that the Greek King and Premier John Metaxas have firmly decided to fight till the last man."

The agency quoted Italian reports that all members of the Greek government were not in favor of rejecting the Italian ultimatum and says, "Certain circles and political groups around Crown Prince Paul, who has always been looked upon as a great friend of Italy, allegedly worked to force the Greek government to adopt the same attitude as the Danish government's on April 9."

The Dagens Nyheter's Berlin correspondent holds the same view. "It is possible that Italy thought the Greeks would capitulate. Italy waited three days, but since it was shown that Athens does not intend to accept the ultimatum, an official state of war has been declared."

Seville, Spain, Oct. 31 (AP).—Dethroned Carol II of Rumania, "terribly bored" at his enforced sojourn here, got out his pencil today and began writing his memoirs to while the time away.

As a starter he ordered up 1,000 sheets of paper—indicating he didn't have much hope of getting out soon from under the polite form of arrest in which he and Mme. Lupescu and Ernst Urdareanu, one-time minister of the palace in Bucharest, have been held for more than a week.

Earlier in the day he had sought a personal interview with Ramon Serrano Suner, Spanish foreign minister, to seek permission to continue his interrupted trip to Portugal but no immediate reply was forthcoming.

Dutch Put War Damage At $300,000,000

Amsterdam (via Berlin), Oct. 31 (AP).—War damage to the Netherlands was estimated by authorities today at 600,000,000 guilders (nominally more than $500,000,000.)

Rotterdam, which was bombed heavily by German Stukas in the invasion last spring, was the principal sufferer. The Rotterdam committee for damaged enterprises has received claims for 420,000,000 guilders (over $210,000,000 at the pre-invasion exchange).

British Order 'LargeNumber' Of Ships in U.S.

'Standardized Type' Of Vessel Called For, Morgenthau Says

Secretary Morgenthau said yesterday that the British government has ordered "a large number" of freight ships in this country.

The Treasury head said that he did not know whether the orders involved construction of a new shipyard in the United States for exclusive British use, but he added:

"They have ordered a large number of one standardized type of freight ship."

Morgenthau declined other details, explaining that his only part in negotiations had been to refer the British Purchasing Commission to Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, when the commission brought the subject to him.

Negotiations Going On

"The negotiations have been going so well that I have had no occasion to do anything further," the Secretary said.

The Washington Post said yesterday that the British and American governments have been discussing plans for construction of a huge ship "assembly plant" which would be "able to handle 28 keels simultaneously" on a mass-production basis.

He declined to elaborate on President Roosevelt's announcement in Boston last night that Britain had received permission to negotiate in this country for an additional 12,000 military airplanes.

Two Conferences Held

Morgenthau reported his only work on the request, after he received it from Arthur B. Purvis, head of the British commission, was to refer it to American defense authorities. Only they or the British were authorized to discuss details, he said.

The order was the subject of two conferences in his office Tuesday, Morgenthau said. One meeting brought together nearly every ranking official in the Army, Navy and Defense Commission. In the other only British representatives met with Morgenthau.

Asked whether the presence at the first conference of Jesse H. Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, indicated the Reconstruction Finance Corporation might finance new factories to build the British planes, Morgenthau replied, "We invited to the meeting everybody who could have any possible word of advice to the President on the matter."

British Study Winter Health, Heat Problems

Government Ponders Compulsory Evacuation From Urban Centers

By Edward Angly

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

London, Oct. 31.—Slowly and awkwardly—which is the English way, but surely—and that, too, is the English way—the government is getting on with its plans to provide a less abundant, but somewhat safer life in the gloomy winter months for the people of London, Liverpool, Birmingham and the other urban centers, which have become constant targets for the German bombers.

Since Britain is still a democracy compulsory evacuation of non-essential city dwellers is a thing, too, charged with political dynamite to be attempted just yet. Similarly, compulsory vaccination is dangerous politically, for England is filled with cults and minorities whose views the politicians must respect, even in a total war.

Home, Health and Heat

For the urban millions the war problems largely are focused on home and health and heat. There is no guaranty that any of the three can be kept at anything like normal in the months that lie ahead.

For London, transport is also a major problem. Up to now neither the importations of buses from the provinces, nor the bribes of extra gasoline offered to private motorists who will consent to pick up hitch-hikers to and from the business centers every morning and evening have been sufficient to offset the dislocations in rail and subway transportation, and the even graver situation which the sun creates each day by rising a little later and setting a little earlier. This means that the German bombers come over a little sooner and remain a little longer every night.

With the war on the eve of its fifteenth month, the government is still finding it difficult to tear families apart by evacuating women and school children from London and other hard-hit cities. Human nature provides still another stumbling block in every effort to persuade the people of the crowded slum areas to scatter at night rather than to cluster in greater and greater groups in the larger shelters.

If the nightly bombing has proved nothing else, it has given verity to the old adage that misery loves company.

Statisticians and city planners and even Prime Minister Churchill may argue as much as they like that relative safety lies in dispersal of the populace, but when the darkness comes on and the bombs begin to fall, people like to be together, and this is just as true of the wealthy in the West End and as it is of the poor in the slums.

Extra Burden on Buses

Disruption in rail and underground transport and the reluctance of passengers to get into trains that might stop and turn them out in case of an air raid alarm—have added extra burdens upon the bus system. Few problems which the war has bred are more important than that of providing for the 7,500,000 passenger journeys which Londoners make each day on their way to work, or to shopping excursions. The question of how to take them to or from their play no longer exists, for playtime just isn't any more.

London's bus system has been hard hit not only by a new rush of passengers, but also by a loss of 10,000 employes who were conscripted or given leave to volunteer for the fighting services. The attempt to replace many of these men by hiring women has been a failure, particularly since the air blitz began and the night hours have become unfit for man or beast, let alone the female of the species.

U. S. Massing Sea Power At St. Lucia

Welles Told France Doesn't Contemplate Transfer of Islands

Key West, Fla., Oct. 31 (AP).—Three more destroyers were hastily loaded with stores and ammunition today and sped southward from Key West, base for the United States neutrality patrol.

Five of the fleet war craft left Tuesday. Three of the 11 seaplanes which winged away at the same time returned today.

(The Miami Herald said it had "learned unofficially that the concentration of United States seapower now under way is near St. Lucia."

(St. Lucia is one of the Caribbean air and naval bases leased by the United States from Great Britain. It is about 25 miles south of Martinique, French-owned island.)

The destroyers which put out today were the Overton, the Sturtevant and the Bainbridge.

Four Leave Puerto Rico

San Juan, Oct. 31 (INS).—Four United States destroyers steamed out of Puerto Rican waters today for an undisclosed destination.

France Reassures U. S.

By Bertram D. Hulen.

Assurances were given to Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, yesterday by Gaston Henri-Haye, the French Ambassador, upon the basis of official advices from his government that no question of the cession of French territory to Germany was involved in the recent discussions of Marshal Petain with Chancellor Hitler. This applies both to France proper and the empire, covering North Africa, Indo-China, the West Indies, and other places.

Neither was there even a suggestion, the Ambassador reported, of peace proposals. Previously he had informed Welles that transfer of French air and naval bases was not discussed.

The report could be considered as in the nature of a partial reply to President Roosevelt's message of last week to Marshal Petain in which he expressed anxiety over reports that France might enter the war against Great Britain. In that connection, he reiterated that the United States and Latin America would be prepared to occupy the French West Indies, if a transfer of their sovereignty to Germany should be impending.

Navy Hunts Strange Sub

Balboa, C. Z., Oct. 31 (INS).—The United States Navy tonight was investigating reports that an unidentified submarine had been seen near the Gulf of Darien east of the Atlantic entrance to the Panama Canal.

This report was coupled with the possibility that the submarine may be a German craft, as the Nazi freighter Helgoland, loaded with Diesel fuel and gasoline, was sighted this afternoon 8 miles from the Atlantic end of the canal and could have contacted a submarine to transfer fuel.

The Helgoland slipped out of Porto Colombia, near Baranquilla, on October 28, without obtaining clearance papers.

It was recalled that in recent days the German high command in Berlin has announced in communiques that German sea raiders had sunk several ships "in overseas waters."

Likewise, British admiralty reports have stated that the Germans, in intensifying their submarine war to blockade Britain, now were employing new and larger types of sea-going U-boats. These undersea craft are capable of long cruises and if supplied with fuel by "mother ships" disguised as merchantmen are capable of remaining at sea almost indefinitely.

British Arrest Gandhi's Aide

New Delhi, India, Oct. 31 (U.P.).—Jawaharlal Nehru, influential leader in the Congress Party and aide to Mohandas K. Gandhi in the Indian Nationalist movement, was arrested by British authorities tonight under the Defense of India Act.

Nehru was arrested at Cheoki, a wayside station near Allahabad, en route to Wardha after a meeting with Gandhi.

4,500 in District to Get Draft Questionnaires at Once

numbers to selection headquarters in the States, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and Alaska.

Local boards need the lists in order to determine to which men questionnaires shall be sent first.

On the local scene, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, selective service executive for the Capital, promised to mail quickly the eight-page selection forms to 4,500 District men.

Dispatch of the questionnaires—virtually throwing into high gear the ponderous classification process—will come "almost immediately," the officer said, despite the "continual failure" of national headquarters to furnish him an up-to-date quota.

State and District quotas must be broken down into local board allotments, proportionate to their size, before the number of men to be called from each—and the number of questionnaires which must be mailed immediately—can be determined.

Other developments in the defense picture yesterday:

The famous Third Cavalry, "Washington's Own," at Fort Myer, Va., is to be doubled in strength by stationing of selectives at the post. The Army high command ordered sufficient trainees added to the crack regiment to boost its personnel from 659 to 1,342.

In a move to standardize physical requirements for personnel of the Nation's future armies, the War Department relaxed Regular Army standards to make them identical with those prescribed for selectives. Chief modification was reduction in the minimum height and weight requirements to 5 feet from 64 inches and from 115 pounds to 105 pounds.

Rushing housing accommodations for the expanding forces, the National Defense Commission announced construction soon of 13,315 barracks units at 63 posts and industrial centers throughout the country. They will house Army and Navy personnel and workers in key defense industries.

Meanwhile, national Selective headquarters announced that a total of 6,278 local boards had been established in 48 States and Hawaii. Alaska and Puerto Rico have yet to report their board organizations.

On the basis of this tabulation, an average of 127 men will be called from each area. However, the number will vary in proportion to the size of the district.

Draft officials have estimated that few men whose order numbers came after No. 500 need expect a call in the first 12 months of Selective Service. Nevertheless, questionnaires will be sent out quickly to several thousand registrants among the first on the lottery list to provide a fool-proof margin for deferments and exemptions.

Here, 4,500 questionnaires will be sent out to assure a reservoir from which 450 men will be inducted from the Capital in the first two increments called up—150 on November 18 and 300 on December 2.

Over the Nation, 30,000 and 60,000 civilians will go into uniform in the two first calls.

"Credits" for Volunteers

Before local boards can determine definitely how many selectives their communities are to furnish the expanding armies, "credits" will have to be subtracted from the preliminary quota on the basis of volunteer enlistments.

The Washington contribution in the first call may be slashed below the 100 mark and may possibly be as low as 50 when recruiting statistics are available.

Questionnaires must be filled out and returned within five days, after receipt, according to regulations. Draft officials here expect all forms sent out here will have been returned within two weeks. These units then will begin the task of deciding deferment and exemptions cases, and assignments to Class 1-A, those immediately available for military service.

Second Lottery For Selectives May Be Necessary

America's first peacetime conscription may have a sequel.

Officials at National Selective Service headquarters said yesterday that although a huge segment of the Nation—17,000,000 men—were inventoried for Army service on registration day, another registration day and lottery may be necessary.

While plans are still in the speculative stage, men now under 21 who reach that age next year or the year after will have to be registered in a separate ceremony. The second process would be made necessary, too, by other changes of circumstances. For instance, some men may become physically disqualified subsequent to classification in Class 1 in the present selection.

Japanese Envoy, Molotoff in Huddle On Nonaggression

Moscow (Friday), Nov. 1 (U.P.).—It was understood today that the new Japanese ambassador, Lieut. Gen. Yoshitsugu Tatekawa, had a conference with Premier and Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotoff on Wednesday.

London, Moscow, Shanghai and Tokyo all have reported that Gen. Tatekawa was expected to begin negotiations with the Soviet foreign office soon after presentation of his credentials for a Russo-Japanese nonaggression treaty as preliminary to a broad Russo-Japanese accord which would include a joint effort to bring the Chinese-Japanese conflict to an end.

Don't throw a FIT — get one!

HERE'S HOW:
(1) Have fun picking from probably the largest line-up of sizes and models in town—81 distinctly different measurements.
(2) Put yourself in the hands of a factory-trained fitter—an expert who knows how—for those final fitting touches that spell perfection.
WHERE?—at BOND'S, of course!

DRAPE—a la potato sack. Take short man, cover with regular size coat, add chalk marks, chop with sharp shears. Presto! A perfectly tailored misfit. If you're short, let Bond's show you the difference—with a specially built short suit. We've got 'em very short, average short, plump short.

WEDGE—up-side-down. He'd look lots smarter standing on his head. For this year's wedge silhouette starts with vigorous shoulder spread, tapers to flat hips. Only flawless tailoring can make it fit correctly. And that's where Bond shines. None finer than Rochester, you know.

CHESTY—in reverse. Mr. Tall is not happy. Look at those sleeves, that pea jacket. No joke—happens every day. Why doesn't somebody tell him about Bond clothes for slim men? Broad of chest, with longer body—high, wide and handsome as a tall man's suit should be.

HORSE COLLAR—look out for it, when you get that overcoat. Hard to cure, but easy to avoid when Bond is your tailor. Rochester needlework does it. With hand-set collars that fit your neck like a Hedy Lamarr hug. Not expensive either!

Democracy Dead in World, Laval Believes

Vice Premier Implies He Ernestly Desires Defeat of England

By Roy P. Porter
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, Oct. 24 (Delayed via Berlin).—Pierre Laval says he believes democracy is dead all over the world.

The vice premier of France told me this in a broad review of the international system just before he initiated the conferences with Adolf Hitler which intrigued the world this week.

He gave me the definite impression that he earnestly desires the defeat of England. And all authorized sources here now agree that Laval's subsequent conference with the German Fuehrer had more to do with a continuation of the present war than effort to stop it.

[Laval conferred with Hitler October 22 near historic Compiegne Forest, scene of two armistices. Three days later Hitler conferred with France's premier and chief of state, Marshal Petain, and it was announced to the world that they had agreed "on the principle of collaboration," especially in the field of "reconstructing peace."

[Subsequently Petain broadcast to the French that he had decided on this collaboration to lighten their burden and disclosed France thus would receive certain economic and administrative advantages.

[Laval in the last few days has been negotiating with the Germans in Paris on economic and colonial questions and "practical" means of implementing the new collaboration, he said in an interview relayed to Vichy today from Paris.]

I saw Laval behind his littered desk in the Hotel Matignon.

He declared that he was staking the future of France on collaboration with Germany, and that France's future depended upon the friends she made at the present time.

The almost unopposed victories of the totalitarian powers in the last year convinced him, he went on, that democracy is lost in all countries.

His dislike for the English has not lessened. I cannot say he said that definitely, but I can cite a word used by one high French source in describing what he hoped would happen to the English. That word is "Crabouiller," which might be translated into American slang as "to leave only a grease spot."

What Laval and Hitler talked about remains a secret. Yet it can be said that one thing which happened even before their conversation was in line with the Vere Premier's views. That was the German action in handing over to the French all French Atlantic ports not actually in the combat zone, so that the French Government's army and navy will defend them.

Three Attempts And He's in Army

Wodehouse 'Missing' Since Fall of France

Noted British Author Believed Somewhere In Nazi-Occupied Area

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 31.—Somewhere in occupied France, another story about the inimitable Jeeves may be pouring from the prolific pen of P. G. Wodehouse, but his American friends don't know.

The whereabouts of the British author, who also created "Psmith" and "Bertie Wooster" and scores of other characters familiar to American readers, remains a mystery five months after the fall of France.

His American publishers and his New York agent, by meager details from indirect sources, are convinced he was restrained at Le Touquet, French channel resort where he had a home.

The general belief is that he was not sent to a concentration camp, and that his wife, who was with him at Le Touquet when the Germans advanced toward the coast, was permitted to return to London, but since has rejoined him.

Three weeks ago his agent in London is said to have learned "he is well."

Meantime, messages to him remain unanswered. There has been no direct word from him since the end of May.

Wodehouse's writings always had a brisk sale in Germany, and the book world believes that by reason of this popularity he might get good treatment.

Communication with Americans in occupied France in most cases can be effected through the State Department. New York friends of Wodehouse have been asking the State Department to intercede with the German government, but their efforts have been hampered by the fact that he is a British subject.

Japanese Quit South China, 74,000 Feared Dead of Disease

By the Associated Press

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Oct. 31.—Japanese troops have withdrawn from Kwangsi Province in southern China, and nearly 7,000 already have sailed from Haipong, Indo-China, to a destination that was not disclosed.

They retired by way of the northern border of Indo-China, into which other Japanese detachments had marched more than a month ago to gain a lodgement in French territory and a new position from which to strike at China.

[The Japanese withdrawal from Nanning, capital of Kwangsi, has been described by the Japanese command as voluntary, with the explanation that the city was of no essential value now that Japan has bases in Indo-China.

[The Chinese claim that it was anything but voluntary, that the Japanese campaign in Kwangsi Province notorious for its epidemics—cost the invaders 74,000 men through death, injury or illness, and that the whole affair was a heavy blow to Japanese prestige.

[An International News Service dispatch from Shanghai quoted Chinese sources as describing the Japanese retreat from Nanning as a rout and stating that Chinese soldiers were in full pursuit. Nanning, this dispatch said, was in flames.]

[In Hongkong today the Chinese claimed another victory, announcing that 2,000 native troops recruited in eastern Shantung Province by the Japanese had surrendered to Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

[At Chungking, Chinese reports lacking independent confirmation said the city of Ichang, Hunan Province, had been abandoned and fired by the Japanese who captured it last June.]

U. S. Alarms Tokyo Paper

Tokyo (Friday), Nov. 1 (AP).—The independent newspaper, Nichi Nichi, in a Shanghai dispatch, charged today the United States "is rapidly developing a multi-sided war program against Japan."

In support of its charge, the newspaper said, American Marines in Shanghai are undergoing wartime training, that huge war stores are being collected at Manila and that assembly plants for war materials are being installed there to be operated by highly trained Army personnel from Michigan and California.

The supplies assembled at Manila, Nichi Nichi asserted, include more than 100 bombers and pursuit planes, 100 heavy tanks, 1,100 armored trucks, artillery and anti-aircraft guns.

Two-thirds of the United States fleet is considered ready to enter the western Pacific at a moment's notice, Nichi Nichi said.

Roosevelt Threat Count Declared Legal

Bill of Particulars Asked by Blount Is Ordered, However

Justice F. Dickinson Letts yesterday upheld the legality of the indictment which accused Edward De-Roulhac Blount, 30, of threatening on two occasions to kill the President.

However, Justice Morris granted the demand of Blount's attorney, James F. Reilly, for a bill of particulars, in which District Attorney Edward M. Curran must say exactly what threats are alleged to have been made, to whom and under what circumstances.

Blount, socially prominent and a former Census Bureau employe, pleaded guilty when first arrested, then pleaded not guilty after being indicted and withdrew his not guilty plea in order to attack the legality of the indictment by the demurrer which was overruled yesterday. He will be brought before the District Court this morning to enter a new plea. Curran has announced that the trial will be held soon, as a matter of public policy.

T. H. Garrison, 'The Sheriff,' Dies at 70

Prince Georges County lost one of its most picturesque characters when Thomas H. Garrison, of Hyattsville, died in Sibley Hospital Wednesday night. He had been ill for some time.

GARRISON

Mr. Garrison, who was born in Prince William County, Va., 70 years ago, had lived in Prince Georges County since he was 14.

For more than 35 years he had served the county as sheriff and deputy sheriff. It was his boast that he had never used his revolver in making an arrest. Wearing a Western style hat and possessor of a flowing handlebar mustache, he was the personification of the old-style peace officer who brought law and order to the Old West. He was, in fact, approached by movie studios in regard to entering Western films.

Since his retirement from political circles, Mr. Garrison had operated a bonding company in Hyattsville. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mollie Garrison; two sons, Carroll and Richard, and a grandson.

The funeral will be held at Gasch's funeral home in Hyattsville, at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery in Laurel.

Morris Wins Red Cross Honor Award for Work in Roll Call

The Red Cross Certificate of Honor, awarded to only three persons in Washington, was presented yesterday by Brig. Gen. F. R. Keefer, District chapter chairman, to Edgar Morris for his leadership in the Roll Call just ended, the most successful in local history.

Three campaigns conducted by Morris, it was pointed out by Gen. Keefer, have set enrollment records. The last, which ended yesterday, brought in 152,050 memberships, more than 22,000 over the goal of 130,000. Enrollment in 1939 totaled 125,300 and in 1938 reached 114,431.

Final standings of all committees were: Governmental, 97,933; financial, 4,480; professional, 8,067; utilities, 8,052; general business, 22,918; residential, 4,045; special gifts, 244; booths, 6,135; Takoma Park, 176. The governmental committee exceeded its quota by 11,933 and general business by 3,918.

Visitors to Roll Call headquarters yesterday were received by Chairman and Mrs. Morris. Music was furnished by the United States Marine Band.

The District chapter, continuing its work of supplying surgical dressings to England, announced yesterday that volunteer workers are needed. Volunteers meet daily except Saturday under direction of Mrs. Hazel Lind, chairman of war relief surgical dressings, who can be reached by telephone at Hobart 1838.

London Bombed At Full Force

the shortest with the exception of one memorable night when the warning was in force only some minutes. After the first hour of intensive gunfire last night, when the planes were reaching London in a steady stream, there was a long period of inactivity before the sirens announced that the raiders had departed.

Enemy bombers also reappeared later over other parts of Britain.

Unfavorable wheather restricted British operations on Wednesday night. Nevertheless, docks at Antwerp and Flushing were heavily bombed and the naval base at Emden was attacked, according to the air ministry. During daylight operations on Wednesday Cherbourg harbor was attacked. One enemy plane was destroyed and one British plane is missing.

At Cherbourg, an "invasion port," dockside buildings were hit, according to pilots reports. Twenty miles out to sea bombers discovered four German motor torpedo boats and dropped a salvo among them.

The coastal command with its Blenheims also were in action Wednesday night, bombing targets at Ostend which had been bombed before and repaired by the Germans. Direct hits were made on quays and berths. Every second bomb burst, said the air ministry was followed by heavy debris which the crews could see thrown into the air.

One enemy plane glided down on the London area last night from a great height above the clouds. One bomb was dropped but did no damage, landing in a waste area. A "Molotoff breadbasket" fell in another area but its scattered incendiaries were put out within ten minutes. A heavy barrage was put up in outlying districts.

Still there was a scattered bombing and some casualties when one bomb crashed near a surface shelter. Raiders last night also were over Scotland and the Midlands.

Day raids were spasmodic. There was a long warning yesterday afternoon over London and other cities also had attacks. According to the air ministry, a single aircraft killed a few people and injured some others in a southeast town. Incidentally the air ministry has revised Wednesday's figures to show nine Germans shot down that day instead of seven. Five British planes are missing with one pilot safe.

Italians Join Raids

Another feature yesterday was the fact that the British now agree that Italian planes have taken part in recent bombings. Fiat bombers escorted by Fiat fighters have been used.

Correspondents are now allowed to say that Leicester Square has been badly hit—perhaps worse than any other part of London, though Berkeley Square runs it a close second.

This is the center of London's theatrical life. A photograph studio was razed by a heavy bomb. Next door Thurston's, perhaps the most famous billiard hall in the world and the center of the all-England's championship play, was wrecked completely. The blast wrecked the square completely, breaking all statues and all windows and wrenching off most shop fronts. The Automobile Association Building has 100 windows on the square and they were all broken.

Thurston's runs an exhibition of billiard history and most of this was destroyed, including a table owned by Queen Victoria, another which was exhibited in the 1885 exposition and a third which was presented to Alexander of Russia by Napoleon.

Wimbledon Bombed

One of three high explosive bombs crashed in the competitors' stand at Wimbledon, tennis capital of England, and threw debris over the center court. It is said the turf has been repaired. Damage also has been done to other parts of the grounds and to the All England Tennis Club.

Stationers Hall, rebuilt in 1670 and one of the finest livery company halls in the city, was severely damaged by a fire started by an incendiary bomb. The Dutch church in Austin Friars, given by Edward VI to refugees from the Spanish persecution, was wrecked. Bart's Medical College lost the roof of its refectory. St. Boniface's Church also was damaged.

Malcolm MacDonald, minister of health, yesterday announced that the ministry of health is starting a fresh effort to encourage evacuation of children from London. Parents will be urged by house-to-house canvassers to get their children away. MacDonald expressed pleasure that 563,000 children had been removed, but said he still wanted to reduce the 279,000 who were left behind.

Browder's Wife Ordered Deported

with these findings:

That Mrs. Browder was married to the secretary-general of the Communist Party in Russia in 1926, and that since coming to the United States she helped him prepare speeches and writings.

Jackson said that when Mrs. Browder was asked if she were a Communist she testified that she was not.

Asked if she subscribed to the aims of the Communist Party in the United States, Mrs. Browder replied, "I never gave it any thought," Jackson's opinion said.

Mrs. Browder's "evasive testimony" regarding her relationship to the Communist Party "had created doubt as to her eligibility for leniency," the ruling said.

Browder, who was born in Kansas, was convicted of passport fraud in Federal Court in New York last January 22, sentenced to four years in prison and fined $2,000. The United States Supreme Court has agreed to review his case.

According to the opinion of the Board of Immigration Appeals, Mrs. Browder said that she entered the United States by train from Canada in 1933 with the intention of remaining permanently here and that she was not in possession of an unexpired immigration visa at the time of her arrival.

Mrs. Browder, who resides with her husband in Yonkers, N. Y., has three sons, two born in Moscow in 1927 and 1931, and one born in New York in 1934.

Officials first questioned Mrs. Browder about her entry into this country at Ellis Island, N. Y., in October, 1939. Though the case was deferred pending her husband's trial, it was reopened on August 6, 1940.

Attorney General Jackson's opinion said that the hearing on her deportation could be reopened at any time if Mrs. Browder wants to produce evidence to "dissipate the doubts" in the present record. Until that time, her application for leniency "must be denied," he said.

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Communist Presidential Candidate Earl Browder's only comment tonight on the order for deportation of his Russian-born wife was:

"Mr. Robert H. Jackson (Attorney General) seems to be as handy with his knee as Mr. Stephen Early."

Blaustein Back Tax Claim Overruled

The Tax Appeals Board overruled yesterday a Treasury claim that the estate of Louis Blaustein, who died in Baltimore, Md., July 27, 1937, owed $794,065 in taxes for 1934, 1935 and 1936.

The board also reduced income tax deficiencies claimed by the Treasury against the four Baltimore executors of Blaustein's estate.

Gillette Aides Plan Probe in W. Va.

Kentucky Absentee Votes in Jeopardy by Registration Ruling

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

Washington absentee voters encountered some new trouble yesterday as Chairman Gillette, of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, announced that investigators are being sent into West Virginia to check further on complaints of illegal registration.

A decision by the Kentucky Court of Appeals upholding a circuit court ruling of Judge Churchill Humphries, threw some consternation into the ranks of Kentucky voters residing in the District. Its effect is to bar from balloting any Kentuckian who had not registered prior to September 7.

Heretofore, under provisions of a 1936 law, Federal employes were permitted to register on the day before election anywhere in Kentucky except in Louisville. A special train carried them back home in 1936 and 1938.

Because of confusing reports, Kentucky voters in Washington at first believed that the court ruling nullified previous registrations. However, an investigation by Senator Barkley's office disclosed that the previous registrations were recognized as permanent and consequently unaffected.

Based on Test Case

The number of Federal employes who may be barred from voting because of the ban on last-minute registration was unknown. It was believed, however, that the majority of an estimated 1,000 Kentucky voters in Washington have registered in previous years.

The Court of Appeals ruling was based on a test case brought by the Jefferson County attorney to determine why Louisville should be excluded from the 1936 act. The court held that the "Purgation Act" of 1938 repealed the former law.

Senator Gillette made no explanation of the decision to send investigators into West Virginia, but his announcement followed on the heels of a letter of protest from Calvert L. Estill, Charleston (W. Va.) newspaperman, who filed the original complaints of illegal registration of Washingtonians.

Headquarters Busy

A protest also was made by Robert H. C. Kay, chairman of the West Virginia State executive committee, that the investigation of illegal absentee voting was not carried into any county or city of the State but was confined to lists carried in Washington ballot bureaus.

The Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee is not expected to be completed before the election.

Meanwhile, the Democratic and Republican National Committees' absentee ballot bureaus at 734 Fourteenth Street and Fifteenth and H Streets were doing a land office business as thousands of Washingtonians sought notarization of their ballots.

Because many States require that absentee ballots be received from 1 to 4 days prior to election, the majority of votes will be in the mails before the end of the week.

"During the discussion there was a great deal of jostling and shoving in the crowd which had gathered there; and I am deeply sorry that a policeman appears to have been hurt while trying to carry out instructions which he had received. I did not have any personal controversy with this man; having all my discussion with the sergeant in command of the detail.

"I do not believe that I did anything wrong in this incident. I did not attack or kick any officer. But since one officer believes that I was responsible for hurting him, I wish to apologize to him particularly and to Commissioner Valentine for having had any part in this regrettable affair.

"I cannot understand why Republican politicians are attempting to find political significance in this incident.

"In all my experience in New York City, the police department has always shown the utmost cooperation and efficiency.

"When I telephoned Police Commissioner Valentine shortly after the incident, I understood that he was making a full investigation of the facts. I am anxious to cooperate with him 100 per cent. In order to do that, I intend to devote all of my time necessary to cooperate with him until his inquiry is completed."

Dewey's Office Acts

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—The office of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey today entered the investigation of the alleged "kneeing" of a police officer by Presidential Secretary Stephen Early.

Acting District Attorney Milton Schilback, in the absence of Dewey, who was on a speaking tour in the Middle West, said Police Commissioner Lewis Valentine had been asked to forward the police department's report on the incident.

A "police aided" card, signed by James Sloan and filed at the West Thirtieth Street Station, reported that the officer had "received his injuries with kicks by one Stephen Early." The card named two other officers as witnesses.

The incident was mentioned by Representative Bruce Barton, of New York, Republican candidate for United States Senator, during a speaking tour in Harlem tonight.

After saying that he and heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis would make a tour of Harlem together tomorrow night, Barton said in one talk in a church:

"If Mr. Early needs more knee exercise, I hope he will meet up with us tomorrow night. I haven't seen him around here anywhere, have you?"

Louis, who was on the platform, urged the election of Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell L. Willkie, saying there was "no future on relief and the WPA."

Injured Man for Roosevelt

Sloan, the injured patrolman, said today he intended to vote for the President.

As Louis and a half dozen Negro Republican officials gathered at Sloan's bedside, a newsman asked Sloan how he was going to vote.

"I'm a Democrat," the policeman said.

"Will you vote for Roosevelt?" he was asked.

"I will," he replied.

Secretary Perkins Shaken in Crash

Woolwich, Me., Oct. 31 (AP).—Secretary of Labor Perkins was shaken up but uninjured when her automobile and another collided head-on here today.

The Secretary, accompanied by two other women and her chauffeur, all of whom were unhurt, was en route to her summer home at Newcastle. The party continued the journey.

Occupants of the other automobile, the driver of which was unidentified, also escaped injury and police took no action.

Insurance Men To Attend Senate Hearing

Representatives of at least two large insurance companies and of the pro-Roosevelt National Committee of Independent Voters are expected today at hearings of the Senate committee investigating campaign expenses.

Spokesmen for the New York and Guardian (and possibly the Metropolitan) Life Insurance companies will be questioned on what assistance—if any—they have given the pro-Willkie Peoples Committee to Defend Life Insurance and Savings.

It was intimated—and denied—at a recent hearing of the Senate committee that life insurance firms had lent their mailing lists for the dissemination of pro-Willkie literature.

The appearance of the insurance representatives at today's hearing will follow by 48 hours President Roosevelt's Hartford attack on "many executives of insurance companies" for allegedly spreading fear among the Nation's policyholders.

In addition to the insurance representatives, Miss E. R. Haig, assistant and acting treasurer of the National Committee of Independent Voters will testify today on the organization's financing and disbursements.

Other political organizations which will send spokesmen to testify at today's hearing include the Citizens' Information Committee and the Volunteer Division of the Republican Coordinating Committee, both of Chicago; the National Republican Builders, of New York; the American Writers for Wendell L. Willkie; the First Voters' League and the Anti-Third Term Association.

Senator Gillette (Democrat), of Iowa, chairman of the committee, announced yesterday that the subcommittee investigating New Jersey "had recessed until an undetermined date after election." Investigators will continue working in the State, he added.

The New Jersey subcommittee has been producing heated clashes between one of its members, Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

Declaring that the subcommittee's work has been "unusually onerous," Senator Gillette indicated that another member might be added after the election. Senators Tobey and Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, are the only members at present.

Despite reports to the contrary, it was stated yesterday that the wire-tapping investigation committee headed by Senator Stewart (Democrat), of Tennessee, would not hold a hearing today, as all of its five members are out of town.

Bittner Speaks For Roosevelt

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 31 (AP).—Van A. Bittner, one of the C. I. O.'s chief lieutenants, omitting any reference to John L. Lewis' support of Wendell L. Willkie, spoke tonight for reelection of President Roosevelt as a "man of peace" and friend of labor.

In a radio address broadcast over eight West Virginia stations Bittner asked:

"Who is more likely to think of the 'little fellows' as human beings and not merely as cannon fodder?

"Franklin Roosevelt, the lifelong time-tried, beloved humanitarian?

"Or Wendell Willkie, who cheered as a 'hero' the man responsible for the South Chicago strike massacre, Tom Girdler?"

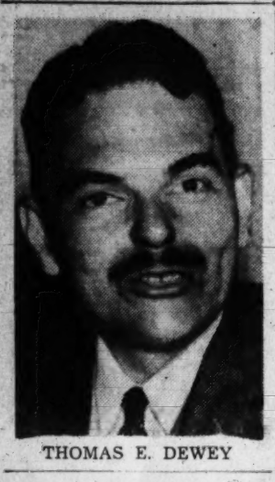
3d-Term 'Assault' To Fail, Says Dewey



THOMAS E. DEWEY

Describes G. O. P. As Only 'Free Party;' 'Must Laws' Attacked

Copyright by New York Times

Caldwell, Idaho, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt's third-term candidacy is an attempt "contemptuously" to override the American tradition that "no man shall fasten himself permanently upon us," District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, said here tonight in a speech broadcast by the National Broadcasting Co.

"But this assault like all other assaults will be repulsed," he declared. "Our traditions are strong. They are strong because they are right. America is greater than the will of any man. This year we Americans shall preserve the things we live by. This year we shall keep America strong and we shall keep America free."

Dewey described the Republican Party as the only free party in the United States and dubbed the opposition the "party of self-perpetuation." The Democratic Party, he said, died at the Chicago Convention with the President's renomination.

Multiplied Bureaus

Quoting a Roosevelt compaign statement of 1932 that the Hoover Administration was the greatest spending and most bureaucratic Administration in history, Dewey said that "if those words were 10 per cent true in 1932, they are 100 per cent true today . . . for Roosevelt has multiplied the bureaus and pyramided the bureaucrats."

The President, said Dewey, has admitted that the instruments of power which he has created could, in the wrong hands, provide "shackles for the liberties of our people."

"On the basis of the record," Dewey declared, "I say they are in the wrong hands today."

In eight years, Dewey said, so many "must" laws have been enacted that even lawyers cannot find all of them. A compilation of the laws of the Government's bureaucracies, he said, would fill 20,000 pages.

Delegated Powers

In 1938, Dewey recalled, Congress appropriated $450,000 to collect and codify the rules and regulations of New Deal agencies. At the time, he added, it was estimated that the task would be a two-year job. At the present rate of progress, he asserted, "it will be 1946 before we can even find out the rules and regulations of 1938.

"In less than eight years," said Dewey, "the President has signed more executive orders than all the peacetime Presidents who preceded him combined. By these orders—in other countries they would be called decrees—he has delegated his authority. Into whose hands has he delegated these possible 'shackles'?"

One of them, Dewey said, was Henry A. Wallace, former Secretary of Agriculture, who is the Democratic candidate for Vice President. Two others, he said, were Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, and J. Warren Madden, former chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

"In this campaign we are fighting the battle of the people. We are fighting to make these agencies for public good serve the people and not attempt to be their masters. We are fighting to strike the shackles from our people."

Missouri Shifts To Willkie in Poll

speeches in the coming days will alter the trend, only later sampling will indicate.

In spite of the Willkie gains, the Democratic forces can take heart from the Roosevelt lead in Kentucky. This State has been a good barometer of national sentiment in recent Presidential elections. With one exception it has been on the side of the winner in every Presidential year since 1912.

In fact, in the extremely close Wilson-Hughes election of 1916—an election which today's race resembles—Kentucky was exactly 1 per cent from the national figure, showing 52.7 per cent for Wilson, as compared to 51.7 per cent for the Nation.

Returns have been tabulated and reported this week to date for New York, Connecticut, Delaware and Indiana. New York and Connecticut have shifted into the Republican column, each voting 51 per cent for Willkie, 49 per cent for Roosevelt. Willkie has shown a sharp gain in Delaware, although that State still remains on the Democratic side with 53 per cent. In Indiana the situation was shown unchanged with Willkie at 53 per cent to 47 percent for Roosevelt.

As reported two days ago, the Willkie trend throughout the Nation during the week October 22 to 27 has put the Republican candidate within striking distance of victory, because it pushed the Roosevelt popular vote percentage down from 54.5 to 53 per cent. This is only one per cent more than the percentage needed for Roosevelt to win, which, owing to the surplus Democratic majorities in the South, is approximately 52 per cent.

Sampling surveys are subject to a normal expectancy of error, which in recent elections has averaged 4 per cent. The Institute has pointed out that many unsurveyable factors, such as the activities of political machines, the effect of weather on election day, and the relative turnout of voters in each party, must be taken into account in interpreting any survey figures, including those of today.

The Institute is now compiling State-by-State returns, which will be supplemented by a special telegraphic survey this week-end. Groups of States will be reported as the returns come in and a final 48-State roundup will be published next Monday.

Wilkie Renews Dictator Charges

"It's the people's White House."

This Democratic town turned out en masse for the President's inspection tour through here last week, and tonight it gave Willkie a good hand. Police had to force an entry into the jammed auditorium for the Willkie party. The crowd was with him, cheered him on in his mocking at the President, and booed the third term.

At the end of his radio address, he told the crowd in the auditorium that South Jersey reports were being spread that he would abolish time-and-a-half for overtime.

"I know what it is to work overtime," he said, "and I'm not going to abolish any social gains."

A tour of north central Jersey tomorrow morning, and a Madison Square Garden address Saturday night will bring Willkie to the end of his lightning campaign. Behind him will be 18,759 train miles, 8,884 air miles and 1,500 motor miles of stump touring. His total speeches numbered 544 by tonight.

Willkie strategists said their candidate has laid down all of his major campaign policies and issues. From now on he will devote himself to driving these home and prompt "discussion" of the President's own speeches.

Tonight at Camden he charged Mr. Roosevelt is trying to pump life into a "dying campaign" by calling Ambassador Kennedy home to help him.

At Burlington, N. J., he said Democrats were paying small boys to boo and "hirelings" to carry Roosevelt banners at his meetings.

"That shows that they're on the last road to defeat. They are on the way out," he shouted.

Tonight's Camden address was on "faith in America." He charged that New Dealers around the President have lost "faith" and no longer believe in the ability of democracy to solve its own problems.

More than 100 office holders in the New Deal belong to the National Lawyers' Guild, he said. He quoted Assistant Secretary of State Adolph Berle's resignation from the Guild because to him "it is a Communist organization."

Willkie said an assistant director of the Consumer Counsel division of the Interior Department, whom he did not name, was formerly connected with the Congress of American Revolutionary Writers and once said: "The whole capitalist shell game can sink and be damned."

It was at Plainsboro, N. J., as the train pulled to a siding beside the Walker-Gordon Laboratories, Inc., dairy farm, that Willkie accused the President of "cheap politics" in announcing in his Boston speech that England had ordered another 12,000 planes. "It's no wonder that such a man says: 'My Ambassador,'" said Willkie.

To a crowd of 12,000 in Wilmington, Del., he had first mentioned the President's British plane announcement.

Recalls "My Ambassador"

Willkie asked "Who wouldn't?" sell Britain the planes. If he were elected, he said American plane production would be so geared "that such a request wouldn't even constitute news."

And at Trenton, N. J., he slapped again at the President's reference to Joseph P. Kennedy as "my Ambassador."

"Maybe the Ambassador, in view of the fact that he is back in America making political speeches, is owned by the President of the United States, but if you elect me President they will be your ambassadors," he told a Trenton crowd of 8,000.

To demands that the President state his third term case, he charged the President replied, in effect: "Take me as I am. Take me with my ambassadors, my courts, my legislatures, my corrupt bosses. Take me, people! I own you! I have bought you with your own money?"

At Camden he said the President will learn "it isn't his White House."

He said the President offered only a "side show" in answer to his call for a discussion of issues.

Willkie skipped Philadelphia, Republican trouble spot that has been seeking his return, but spoke at nearby Chester, Pa.

From a Chester street corner, he told a cheering crowd of 10,000 that the "upsurge is on, the desperation of the opposition is apparent." He said he had just been informed "that California is going over the top."

In Wilmington's Rodney Square, his only stop in Delaware, some Roosevelt demonstrators mingled with the Willkie rooters. One delegation of elderly ladies waved Roosevelt banners at the passing motorcade.

Senator Townsend, seeking reelection, introduced Willkie at Wilmington. It was here that Willkie first condemned the President's Boston attack on House Minority Leader Martin, Republican National Committee chairman. He asked if the President was running for Congress against Martin, and predicted "Joe" would beat him if he did.

Trenton, Willkie's first stop in Jersey since he invaded Mayor Hague's Journal Square, gave him a shower of confetti and cheering street throngs. Before Trenton's War Memorial Building he again paid his compliments to Hague as "an apostle of purity" and referred to his "intimacy" with President Roosevelt.

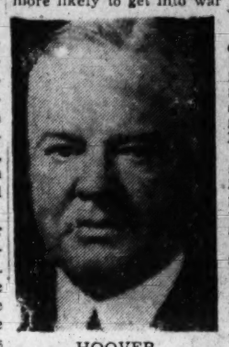
Roosevelt Pricks 'Tigers,' Hoover Says

By the Associated Press

Lincoln, Nebr., Oct. 31—Former Republican President Herbert Hoover, in a radio address tonight, charged President Roosevelt with "sticking pins in tigers all over the world" and told the Americans "you are far more likely to get into war with Franklin Roosevelt than with Wendell Willkie."



HOOVER

Hoover opened his speech on "Our Foreign Relations" with charges President Roosevelt had broken up the 1933 World Economic Conference at London, had failed to press for advantages that might have come from the 1932 land disarmament conference at Geneva, and had meddled in European power politics.

"Beginning with the speech on our quarantining dictators three years ago, Mr. Roosevelt had been continuously sticking pins in tigers all over the world—and that without seeming to realize that this requires a reserve of firearms," Hoover charged.

Terming any invasion of the United States a job far beyond the abilities of the dictators, the former President continued:

"Our ultimate problem of defense is larger than this. Our problem is to protect the Western Hemisphere. To do that we must have such defensive strength that no one will even entertain the dangerous thought of coming to any part of it. And we must be ready to rely upon our right arm alone.

To meet the day's dangers he laid down a proposed national policy of:

"1. Furnish all the support to England we can within the law. And I emphasize within the law, for liberty lives by law. Congress makes the law.

"2. Stop cultivating hysteria at home and sticking pins in tigers abroad.

"3. Make just one more talk and then stop talking.

"4. That one talk should emphasize that this Nation wants peace with the world. It should inform the world that we are arming this country to the teeth; that we are organizing its economic strength; in every corner, from the cellar to the garret; that after a year or two years, or whatever time the job takes, we are going to talk again. Then we are going to say exactly what we expect the relations of other nations to be to us and our interests. Then we will be talking the one language which they will understand.

"5. For the moment that would be enough statesmanship."

Al Smith Replies To Boston Speech

Boston, Oct. 31 (AP).—Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic Party's standard bearer in 1928, asserted tonight that President Roosevelt's Boston speech was "a perfect smokescreen intended to blot out the New Deal's failures in handling domestic affairs."

SMITH

On the platform of Symphony Hall, across town from the big Boston Garden, where the President spoke last night, the man who was called "The Happy Warrior" when he campaigned against Herbert Hoover 12 years ago told an applauding audience:

"The third-term candidate declared that 'we have the greatest fighting equipment in the world.'

"So we have," Smith shouted, "but the trouble is that we have so little of it."

Wearing a "Willkie" button on the lapel of his pin-striped suit, a green tie, green handkerchief and green socks, Smith spoke to more than 3,000 persons packed into an auditorium that has a normal seating capacity of 2,700. He stood beneath a huge placard depicting Uncle Sam with his thumbs down, saying "No Third Term—Democrats for Willkie."

Hundreds in Aisles

Hundreds stood in the aisles and in the streets outside.

Smith was interrupted frequently by cheers and laughs. He struck out at President Roosevelt's description of Ambassador Joseph Kennedy as "my Ambassador."

"I understood," Smith declared, "that these Ambassadors represented the people of the United States. They have to be confirmed by the Senate. So Joe is our Ambassador, not 'my Ambassador.'"

The President, Smith said, "says he's having a lot of fun, having a good time. Well, he has certainly been giving us a wonderful time for seven and a half years. But I'll tell you one man that isn't having a good time. That's the candidate of the other party. He's been making the greatest appeal and the greatest sacrifice and putting in the hardest work that's been done since the Civil War."

"Slugged" Business

The 1928 Presidential candidate charged Mr. Roosevelt with "slugging" business, and said that "our dear old friend, Jack Garner," had urged the President to "let up."

"The New Deal slams it over all business," he continued, "instead of ferreting out the dishonest ones."

"Democracy is on trial," Smith said. "Our Almighty has always presented America with a man when she is on trial."

"Willkie," he shouted, and his audience cheered.

Franklin, Jr., Says Father Will Win

New York, Oct. 31.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., 26-year-old son of the President, said today on his return from a tour of ten States that he was sure his father would be reelected, but admitted that he did not know how his wife, the former Ethel duPont, of Wilmington, Del., would vote.

"I don't discuss politics with my wife and she does not discuss politics with her family," he said. "Naturally being a duPont, she's kind of in the middle."

On October 28 it was announced that Mrs. Roosevelt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene duPont, of Greenville, Del., had contributed $4,000 to the Republican National Committee.

Third Term Called 'Door to Socialism'

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Samuel Seabury, one-time Democratic candidate for Governor of New York, declared tonight that the election of President Roosevelt for a third term would mean "that the Nation will go through the open door of national state socialism."

SEABURY

In a prepared radio speech (WJZ), Seabury asserted that "the attempt to secure a third term is itself a menace to the liberties of this country, but the pretense that he was drafted against his will is an insult to the intelligence of the American people which I hope they will resent at the polls."

"For the first time in our national history," he continued, "we now have a President who has successfully used the powers of his great office in an attempt to perpetuate himself in power, and has succeeded in nominating himself for a third term."

The people of the Nation, Seabury declared "are faced with a crisis in their history. They must determine which of two ways they will take. One is the way charted and pursued by the fathers of the Republic. The other way is the totalitarian way—the way pursued under the despotisms created by the infamous Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin."

Seabury, whose investigation of the administration of James J. Walker as Mayor of New York led to Walker's resignation while President Roosevelt was Governor of New York, charged that the President "designated" Walker for appointment by Mayor LaGuardia to the $20,000-a-year post of impartial chairman of the New York City cloak industry.

"In the appointment of Walker," Seabury added, "Mayor LaGuardia adopted the tactics of his ally in the present campaign, Boss Flynn. If a Tammany mayor had made the appointment the whole community would have denounced it as a disgraceful act."

LaGuardia Attacks Willkie 'War' Talk

St. Louis, Oct. 31 (AP).—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York tonight branded as "unjustified and unpatriotic" a statement by Wendell L. Willkie that, on the basis of President Roosevelt's "past performances and pledges" the country "may expect war by April, 1941" if the Chief Executive is reelected.

LaGUARDIA

Addressing a Roosevelt rally sponsored jointly by the A. F. of L., C. I. O. and Railroad Brotherhoods, LaGuardia said in his prepared speech the Republican Presidential nominee's statement at Baltimore last night "has caused a great deal of consternation among his campaign managers in various parts of the country."

"The utility candidate, Wendell Willkie, will wind up his campaign bewildered and in despair," LaGuardia said, "driving home the war scare.

"While this was known to his advisers, even they are somewhat stunned at the reckless and unpatriotic statements their candidate is making."

Pennsylvania Reports Record Enrollment

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 31 (AP).—Pennsylvania has the highest number of persons qualified to cast a ballot in the history of the State.

The record enrollment is 5,022,423. Republicans number 2,784,040, and there are 2,171,011 Democrats.

G. O. P. Contributions In N. Y. Total $772,275

The United Republican Finance Committee for Metropolitan New York reported to the Clerk of the House today contributions of $772,275, and disbursements and liabilities of $322,121 for the period from September 6 through October 23.

Girls Discharged In Onion Tossing Case

New York, Oct. 31.—Magistrate Nicholas H. Pinto dismissed the charges of disorderly conduct against Italia D'Arpe, 23 years old, and her sister, Mary, 21, of Brooklyn, in Flatbush court, Brooklyn, today.

But he advised the younger girl to tell President Roosevelt by letter "that you had no ill feeling toward him and that you did not mean to throw the onion which fell in the street as his car was passing last Monday night."

Mary testified the incident was an accident. She said she and her sister went to the roof and tore up some newspapers to toss during the procession. Unintentionally, she said, the onion was mixed up in the papers and was thrown inadvertently.

Jackson Quotes 'Contradictions'

Attorney General Jackson, in a speech prepared for delivery last night at Cohoes, N. Y., said Wendell Willkie "is not a 'businessman' as you and I define the term. The one and only qualification of the Republican candidate for the Presidency is that he is a lawyer, a Wall Street lawyer, a Wall Street public utility lawyer."

JACKSON

Accusing Willkie of a "torrent of contradictions" and citing numerous statements by the nominee to support the charge, Jackson added:

"At Chicago, on September 13, he said: 'If you elect me President, I shall not promise the moon.'

"No moon, perhaps, but on September 18, five days later, he declared unequivocally: 'I pledge a new world.'

"This is part of the record of words of the candidate who criticized the destroyer deal with England, the defense pact with Canada, and then shouted he would aid Great Britain more if elected President!"

President's Power Too Great, Thomas

Milwaukee, Oct. 31 (AP).—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, told the Milwaukee State Teachers College students and faculty today that the draft "gave the President powers that no Angel from Heaven should have."

"We have a quasi-dictatorship, with too much power invested in the President," Thomas asserted. He added: There are not ten responsible men in Washington who believe we needed conscription. The Administration deliberately tried to stampede us into hysteria so they could exploit the hysteria.

"The President unconsciously is being driven into this imperialist war by a sort of Messianic complex. He is seeking an escape from his failures at home. If he can't solve our own problems, he wants to solve the world's problems."

Martin 'Declines' Agriculture Post

Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., of the Republican National Committee, said last night that President Roosevelt "indicated plainly" in his Boston speech last night that he realizes his third-term effort has failed.

MARTIN

In a formal statement, Martin said he "admitted defeat when he nominated me for Secretary of Agriculture."

Mr. Roosevelt had criticized Martin's farm policy, asserting he had voted against every farm measure recommended during the last seven and one-half years by the New Deal, and said he "perhaps will be rewarded for his loyal service to the principles of his party by being appointed Secretary of Agriculture."

"I hasten to decline the nomination," Martin said. "But the third-term candidate need not worry. The country can now be certain President (Wendell L.) Willkie will name a Secretary of Agriculture who will give every farmer a real break and who will give real prosperity to the former instead of a dole, which they believe would keep them in political bondage."

He chided Mr. Roosevelt for attacking the Republican leadership in Congress and asked whether it had been prompted by the G. O. P. members' refusal to adjourn last June contrary to his wishes.

"If this adjournment had taken place," he added, "the defense program would not even have been 'on order.' Truly Mr. Roosevelt, if wholeheartedly for defense, you should be giving the Republican Congressmen orchids instead of tomatoes and eggs."

He Likes Willkie—Just for a Name!

Detroit, Oct. 31 (INS).—Harry Wilczynski filed a petition in probate court today to have his name changed to "Willkie"—but he was wearing a large Roosevelt button on his cap and that's the man for whom he'll vote, he said.

"Changing my name has nothing to do with the election," he explained.

Willkie 'Confused,' Says Housing Chief

New Deal Brought Order Out of Chaos, McDonald Claims

Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald said in a prepared radio talk last night (MBS) that "Wendell Willkie charges confusion in the Government's housing program. The only confusion I know of is in his own mind. We have brought order out of chaos."

Willkie had charged the housing program had "bogged down."

McDonald declared that "if the Republican candidate will pull up the shades of his campaign car, as he travels over the land campaigning, he will find plenty of evidence to refute his own words. For example, he will see ten times as many houses being built as in 1933, when the present Administration came into office. And these homes, let me remind you, are being built largely through private capital under the leadership and through the cooperation of the Federal Government."

Cites Increases

McDonald recalled that in 1933 the "dead" home building industry produced only 55,000 dwelling houses.

"Every year since then has shown a tremendous increase in privately owned homes," he said, "and this year the rate of that construction is exactly 900 per cent over what it was when this Administration took hold.

"In fact, this will be the largest building year since 1928 and will exceed any year in the past 11."

He said that if Willkie will "look around him" he will see "hundreds of thousands of new small homes being built all over America. He will see 10,000,000 people living more comfortably in older properties that have been repaired and modernized; whole neighborhoods in our cities being restored; real estate taxes being paid; city slums being cleared; and a million families living in homes that were saved from foreclosure. He will see farm homes and farm buildings saved from utter ruin, or that have been repaired and painted, and put in livable shape again. And all this, be it remembered, is being done on the most favorable terms ever known in our history. . . .

Reviews Benefits

"Perhaps the candidate doesn't recall the unhealthy construction boom of the twenties, or the utter collapse and ruin of real estate values? And has he forgotten the thousands of innocent investors who lost their life's savings in that crazy era of speculation in real estate bonds and securities?"

McDonald reviewed the work of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, the Home Owners Loan Corporation, the Federal Housing Administration, the Farm Security Administration and the United States Housing Administration, and said:

"I assert that the New Deal's housing program is a well-rounded one. It is a necessary and logical program and more than a program. It is an accomplished fact."

Mrs. Caraway Becomes Senate Leader Pro Tem

The Senate had a woman majority leader yesterday for the first time in history.

Mrs. Hattie Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas, acted as majority leader in absence of Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky.

CARAWAY

The post of minority leader was filled by Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, in absence of Senator McNary (Republican), of Oregon, who is campaigning for the Vice Presidency.

Jewish Vote Reported Split

The National Jewish Monthly said yesterday there were no issues involving race or religion in next Tuesday's elections, and that many members of the Jewish race would vote for each Presidential candidate.

President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie, the Presidential candidates, were described as "fine examples of the highest type of American manhood," who "cherish democracy and hate oppression, discrimination and injustice."

Cook County Registration Reaches New High

Chicago, Oct. 31 (AP).—Registration of voters in Cook County, the metropolitan area embracing Chicago, reached an all-time high of 2,185,166, the board of election commissioners announced today.

It topped by 81,096 the total registered for hte Presidential election of 1936.

Jesse Owens Supports Roosevelt

New York, Oct. 31 (INS).—Jesse Owens, known several years ago as "the world's fastest human," has announced his support of President Roosevelt and has issued a challenge to Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis to debate the issues of the campaign. Louis is supporting Wendell Willkie.

When informed of the challenge, Louis made what for him was a lengthy statement. He said:

"At last the Democrats found somebody that could make a good run."

Apathy in South Buoys G.O.P. Hopes

Democrats Asleep, As in Kentucky, Say Republicans

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, Oct. 31.—Antipathy and apathy nourish Republican hopes for a successful November 5 raid on the Southern political orchard where the plums plump regularly into the Democratic basket.

Intraparty antipathy to Mr. Roosevelt and his works—as climaxed by the third-term bid—is the positive, motive force of a quiet but intense drive for Wendell Willkie, erstwhile Democrat. But looming large and imponderable in the background is the Southern Democratic voter's traditional indifference to general elections once his State affairs have been settled in primaries.

Typical is this statement of a Republican leader—anonymous by request—in borderline Kentucky:

"The Democrats in Kentucky are asleep and too confident and we hope to slip up on them."

Fanfare Lacking

This reasoning is reflected in a campaign which has leaned heavily on man-to-man contacts, on radio addresses, newspaper advertising and billboard appeals, rather than on the fanfare of mass meetings, rallies and extensive stumping.

There have been almost no "imported" speakers.

Spread among 12 States from Maryland to Texas are 120 electoral votes. Most actively G. O. P.-coveted of these are Maryland and Kentucky in the "border State" group and Florida and Virginia of the "Solid South" which has been solid in fact since 1928 when Florida, Virginia, North Carolina, Texas and Tennessee broke ranks.

Head-of-a-pin survey of these States, including the electoral votes of each and the 1936 vote for Roosevelt and Landon:

Kentucky (11; 541,494—369,702)—Democrats claiming 60 per cent of vote, campaign quiet, Republicans "layin' low," on predictions.

Maryland (8; 389,612—231,435)—Normally about 2-to-1 Democratic, party lines apparently holding in State races but not in Presidential battle. Republicans hopeful, Democrats confident.

Virginia (11; 234,980—98,366)—Campaign gaining vigor in final week, with ant-Roosevelt forces hammering third-term issue. Democrats profess to have no fear. Outlook complicated by past opposition of Democratic Senators Glass and Byrd to many Roosevelt policies.

Campaign Listless

North Carolina—(13: 616,141—223,283) Campaign unusually listless, but Republicans remind that so was the 1928 one. Gov. Hoey third-term foe, but now campaigning actively for Mr. Roosevelt.

South Carolina—(8: 113,791—1,646) Willkie forces not so hopeful in face of those figures.

Florida—(7: 249,117—78,248) Cooperation between dissident Democrats and Republicans frank and vigorous here. Democratic leadership also campaigning actively, although claim State safe.

Georgia — (12: 255,364—36,942) Democratic spokesman says "South more solid than ever," but Republican chairman counters "situation better than we hoped for."

Alabama — (11: 238,195—35,358) Willkie's Democratic background strongly stressed in quiet campaign. Democrats claim 80 per cent of vote. Willkie-ites "have hopes of getting 53 per cent."

Mississippi (9: 157,318—4,435)—Democrats aren't worrying about this one, and neither are the Republicans. Willkie clubs just for the record.

Louisiana (10: 294,894—36,791)—About 40 Willkie clubs throughout State making campaign lively and Republicans insist "may go over top" despite big handicap.

Arkansas (9: 146,765—32,039)—Democrats say it's obvious. Republicans making no claims but not giving up.

Tennessee (11: 327,083—146,516)—Willkie no stranger in this TVA battleground. All but one major State newspaper backing the Republican and a vigorous campaign indicates heavy vote with "upset" potentialities.

GOV. O'CONOR TALKS WITH PRESIDENT—Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland accompanied President Roosevelt yesterday to Bethesda, where the Chief Executive dedicated the National Institute of Health. Landon Hits Gold Policy of New Deal

Sees 5-Billion Loss In Huge Supply Stored in Kentucky

By the Associated Press

Sioux City, Iowa, Oct. 31.—Alfred M. Landon tonight declared liquidation now of the Federal Government's gold holdings probably would cost the United States "at least $5,000,000,000."

LANDON

Attacking the Roosevelt Administration's money policies in an address prepared for a G. O. P. rally here, the 1936 Republican Presidential nominee said:

"We have some $20,000,000,000 worth of gold stored in the vaults of Kentucky. It is not money . . . It is merely a commodity which the Government is buying at a price some 50 or 75 per cent above its value in the world market . . .

"If we had to dispose of it today, we would probably lose at least $5,000,000,000 of the amount we have stored away. At an interest rate of 2 per cent, it costs us today $400,000,000 in interest per year to carry this gold hoard."

Charging that the Administration has "fooled around" with national defense, the speaker said the Nation armed at a rate of 28 times faster between April and October, in 1917, compared with the corresponding period in 1940.

"The same mistake of mixing reform and politics that bogged down recovery is bogging down the defense program," he added.

On the international front the speaker accused the Administration of inconsistency in its relations with Japan.

"If we are finally forced into war with Japan—and it is not certain that we will avoid it—," he said, "we shall find our ships bombed with steel made of our old lawnmowers, which our Government has permitted the Japanese to buy."

Landon recommended Wendell Willkie, the Republican nominee, for the job of "getting men back to work and streamlining our national defense program."

"How can any reasonable person," he asked, "interpret Mr. Roosevelt's record as one that has created reasonable national cooperation and team work?"

The speaker said national defense news is given out by Federal sources "for political advantage, or is withheld for political advantage."

Democrats Get Million Vote Edge in Calif.

Predict Victory by 400,000 but G.O.P. Sa 'We Can and Will Win'

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, Oct. 31.—Crosscurrents have so distorted the reflecting power of the Presidential campaign on the Pacific Coast that it scarcely can cast an image of what it may look like the day after election, but the Democrats still hold a 1,000,000-vote edge in registration in California, one of the biggest prizes west of the Mississippi, with 22 electoral votes.

"President Roosevelt will carry California by a majority of 400,000," says William B. Malone, Democratic State chairman.

"We can and will win California," says Republican State Chairman Thomas Kuchel, "if the magnificent fight on behalf of Americanism, in which the Willkie volunteers, the Democrats for Willkie and the regular Republican organization have joined hands, is carried right up to election day."

The Republicans are expecting the Democratic registration advantage to be offset by the pro-Willkie efforts of Senator Hiram Johnson and John L. Lewis, plus a split in Democratic State Party leadership and the anti-New Deal and anti-third-term Democrats.

Claims Swing to Roosevelt

Malone asserts the President's recent speeches replying to Republican campaigners had resulted in a "rush" of on-the-fence voters to the Roosevelt side and that the Johnson and Lewis speeches boomeranged against the Willkie-McNary camp.

But the Democrats haven't worked as intensively as the Republicans. The Democratic split, which has been a wide-open affair since Lieut. Gov. Ellis E. Patterson, a left-wing leader, told Gov. Culbert L. Olson to "go to hell," worried National Chairman Edward J. Flynn, who suggested a reconciliation for the sake of the Roosevelt cause.

Subsequently Olson, who is national committeeman, announced the appointment of John C. Packard to head of committee to handle the Presidential campaign in populous southern California. The appointment presumably was the choice of the Democratic national organization.

Since the formation of the Packard committee, the Democratic committee of Los Angeles County, which contains nearly 42.5 per cent of the State's 4,052,395 registered voters, has confined its campaigning mainly to State and local issues. It reputedly was short of campaign cash.

Oregon Republicans are counting on their own Senator McNary, the Vice Presidential nominee, to put the State in the Republican column. The Republicans have a slight edge in the registration, but an even smaller one than in 1936 when the State voted overwhelmingly for Roosevelt.

However, the State since then has chosen a Republican Governor, a Republican Senator and two Republican Representatives. It has five electoral votes.

Washington State, with an estimated 900,000 registration and eight electoral votes, always is a pre-election enigma because its citizens are not registered by parties.

The campaign there has centered largely on a race between Stephen Chadwick, former national commander of the American Legion, and Mon C. Wallgren, New Deal Congressman.

Chadwick bolted the Democratic Party over the third-term issue and is running as a Republican. Wallgren, a Democrat, has the backing of the Administration to succeed former Senator Lewis B. Schwellenbach, who has been appointed to the Federal bench.

Text of Willkie's Camden Speech

By the Associated Press

Camden, N. J., Oct. 31.—Following is the prepared text of Wendell L. Willkie's address tonight:

I am delighted to be here in Camden tonight, in the closing days of this great campaign—this crusade to keep America free.

This is one of the great industrial regions of America, a symbol of America's past, and a guide post to America's future.

I want to talk to you tonight about faith—faith in America. I want to talk to you about the faith that will bind us all together in the days to come; the faith that binds you people of New Jersey with the people of California and Oregon and Washington; the faith that will enable us to meet the difficult days that lie ahead.

We have had enough of cynicism, people of America.

We are sick of the kind of politics that refuses to recognize our craving for clean, hard, open debate; the kind of politics that seeks to win a third-term by hiding behind the bushes of two terms.

Yes, we are sick of the kind of one man government that calls an ambassador of the United States "my ambassador."

It used to be "my friends." Now it is "my ambassador." Pretty soon it may be "my generals." Then it will be "my people." But there is one thing that will be perfectly clear after November 5. It isn't his White House.

It's the people's White House.

And, if Mr. Kennedy is the ambassador of the third term candidate, who is our ambassador to Great Britain, that's what I want to know.

We, the people, want an ambassador in Great Britain—and one who is on the job.

Here "On Order"

And, incidentally, if we had one, he would not be over here on order, to help out with a dying political campaign. He would be at his post in this critical hour, doing everything he possibly could to keep us advised of conditions in Great Britain.

We are sick of the type of government that treats our Constitution like a scrap of paper.

Our Supreme Court is regarded as an obstruction. Our unwritten law against granting a third term to any President is not even mentioned by the third-term candidate. He doesn't even attempt to justify his violation of it.

How can we have faith in this kind of Government? How can we have faith in America if our elected representatives have such a low opinion of our traditions and our basic laws?

Believe me, the task ahead of us is hard. Never have Americans been faced with so much to do, so quickly; never before has it been so necessary for us to be worthy of ourselves and of our great Republic. This is a crusade that we are on. It is a crusade that will not end on election day.

It will begin—it will really begin—on election day.

People of America, we are faced with a great issue. It is the ultimate issue of this campaign.

Reaction Sweeps World

There has been, as you know, a terrible reaction sweeping across the peoples of the earth. This is a reaction, a counterrevolution, against what we know as the democratic way of life.

The essential principle of that counterrevolution is the domination by the government of all the important activities of men. It is the domination, or even the ownership, of their enterprises and of their farms. It is the domination of their households, of their education, of their learning, of their arts, of their sciences, and of their worship of Almighty God.

That system—that reactionary system—has exercised a powerful influence in our modern world. It is hammering at the gates of the little island of England. It is reaching across the Atlantic to trouble the peace of this hemisphere. It has reached around the other side of the world to make an alliance with Japan.

Now, what is the meaning of this reaction? For centuries, men struggled against the state. For centuries they struggled against the domination of kings and tyrants.

WENDELL L. WILLKIE walks along a path carpeted with flowers by enthusiastic residents of Trenton, N. J., on his way to the speakers platform

Two hundred years ago the men of the Western World began to break free. They began to overturn the thrones of Europe, and to assert the proposition that all men are created free and equal. Through their struggles they came to possess certain rights, rights which no one, not even the state, could take away.

This was the achievement of our forefathers in the American Revolution of 1776. And, thereafter one after another, the peoples of the Western World heard the call to freedom, and became free.

Why have men suddenly given up those rights and that freedom? Why have free men throughout the world surrendered?

We are living in the machine age—the industrial age. In the days of Jefferson the working of democracy was relatively simple. But in our day vast new problems have been introduced.

In misery and fear and hopelessness, and because they believed that democracy and machines could not exist together, the peoples of Europe have turned to their governments. They have said, in effect: "We cannot master the machines. They cause us misery and unemployment and despair. So we want you, the state, to take them over. We want you to control them and to control us. If this means that we must give you back the freedom that we fought so hard to win, then take it, take it. Freedom does us no good because we cannot control the machines."

Now, we in America are part of the machine age. We have been the leaders in building it.

Same Problem Faces Us

We, too, are faced with this problem of controlling the machines. We have 9,000,000 unemployed, and for more than ten years our industrial system has failed to grow. We cannot go on like that. We must become the misters—not the slaves—of the machines.

And, how shall we do that? Shall we, too, like the bewildered people of Europe, turn to the state. Shall we too, say: "Take it, take it. Take control of it. Take control of us. Anything, so long as you put us back to work."

People of America, this is the challenge that I put to you.

Often before this we have shown the way to liberty. Our Declaration of Independence, our Constitution, our Federal system which Abraham Lincoln fought to preserve—those were all solutions that we found to establish liberty upon the earth. Those were the lessons that we taught to other men.

We are faced today with the problem of finding another solution. We are faced with the problem of finding out how to preserve the democratic system in an industrial age.

The people of Britain are fighting with their lives against the aggressor. That is the duty to which they are called. And we must help them. We must help them with more and more of the materials that they need.

But ours is a different duty than the duty to which the people of Britain are called. Ours is to find within ourselves, the solution to this problem that has wrecked the democratic world.

Ours is the duty to reestablish liberty on earth; to reestablish it in this industrial world; to work out among ourselves the new principles and the new methods that will be required to preserve it.

That is the challenge, people of America. That is the challenge that I put to you.

We Have Not Tried

Now, for the past eight years we have not met that challenge. We have not even tried to meet it. The New Deal has tried to patch things up the way France did. It has asked for more and more power and we have given it that power.

Please understand me. I don't know what the motives of the third-term candidate are. He says he wants to preserve democracy. Let us grant him that. Let us grant that he is acting with the best intentions in the world.

Yet, the drift in America cannot be mistaken. The problems of our industrial society have been forcing us further and further toward Government domination.

We are following a pattern which would look familiar to many of the peoples of Europe.

We have spent $60,000,000,000 in less than eight years. We have doubled the national debt. Our total tax bill is higher than in any year in our history.

The pattern shows itself in our politics also. A new party has grown up within the Democratic Party of concentrated power, relying for millions of its votes upon the controlled and manipulated city machines that feed on the Federal Government. This party, this New Deal Party, has declared 67 emergencies in the last eight years. For almost every emergency it has appropriated more money and seized more power. It still retains all its emergency powers.

And the head of that New Deal Party comes before you people today and asks for one more extension of power, a vast and unprecedented extension. He asks you to abrogate that tradition which has always assured the American people that no man could gain ultimate power over them—the tradition of the third term.

All On the Record

I will leave it to you people whether this is a falsification. I will leave it to any student of our times, whether the pattern I have described is, or is not, the pattern of the decline of democracy. It is all written out. It is all in the record.

In judging the record you must take into account not alone the candidate, but the men whom the candidate has appointed, the thousands and thousands of members of this Administration in responsible positions. You must take into account what they believe in.

They are the secret ballot behind the ballot that the third-term candidate offers to the country.

For instance, there is an assistant director of the consumers council division in the Department of the Interior. He has been connected with the Congress of American Revolutionary Writers. He once said, "The whole capitalist shell game can sink and be damned."

Not so long ago, Mr. Adolph Berle, Assistant Secretary of State resigned from the National Lawyers' Guild because, he said, its management was not—and I quote—"prepared to take any stand that conflicts with the Communist Party line."

Mr. Berle certainly is not conservative. Yet to him the National Lawyers' Guild is a communist organization.

What then shall we say of the hundred odd office holders in the present Administration who belong to the National Lawyers' Guild and have not resigned? These are the men behind the ballot, these are the invisible ballot that the third-term candidate represents.

They Have No Faith

Please understand me. The men who hold those views may be honorable men. But, people of America, they do not believe in the ability of democracy to solve the great problem of today. They have no faith in our way of life.

They have granted the first premise of the counterrevolution—the very first premise that Hitler, for instance, insists upon. They say that democracy and free enterprise are decadent. They say that ours is a dying way of life.

You cannot expect these men, with defeat in their hearts, to fight successfully for our way of life. As you look into the future you cannot expect to find our way of life still existing there, if these men are returned to office.

That is the issue. That is the ultimate issue upon which I stand.

We face enormous problems—problems of great difficulty, which the people of Europe failed to solve and within the framework of the democratic way of life.

But I believe that we can solve them. We can solve them as free men, in possession of our rights and our liberties.

Yes, we can become masters of our machines. From our industrial age we can create a new world that we would scarcely recognize today. But we would recognize the citizens of that world. Because they will be free citizens.

I see an America of free workers and free farmers, producing more and more for each other by the use of mastery of the machine. I see an America in which capital, wisely regulated, will be free to flow into every corner of the land, to make jobs.

I see an America whose representatives in Washington believe in America. I see a country governed by men in whom our producers—labor, agriculture and business—have confidence.

People who do not believe in America are entitled to their opinions. But they are not entitled to govern us. And under our Administration they will be dismissed.

I see an America in which, by the cooperative efforts of farmers, workers, managers, and owners, new solutions will be found to the problems of the industrial age.

I see an America from which democracy will arise to a new birth; an America which will once more provide this war-torn world with a clear glimpse of the destiny of man.

My fellow countrymen, five days hence you are going to the polls. You are going to exercise the right of the free ballot—that right that you have inherited from our forefathers—that right that you, almost alone among the great peoples of the earth, still hold.

The ballot that you cast on that day will not be merely a ballot for a candidate, or for a national or State ticket. That will be a ballot for faith in America.

That ballot will tell the world whether you have lost hope for liberty, or whether you still believe that liberty will live.

I know what that ballot will say. I have no doubt. The great cause will be won. The great future will stretch out before us, endlessly, like a new and undiscovered land.

'Election Campaign To Be Analyzed On Radio Forum

Washington newspaper correspondents and columnists will analyze the Presidential contest on Theodore Granik's American Forum of the Air Sunday night.

The forum, to be broadcast as usual from the Willard Hotel at 8 p. m., will be heard over WOL and the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Scheduled to speak are Ernest K. Lindley, Washington Post columnist and chief of Newsweek Magazine's Washington bureau; Kenneth G. Crawford, Washington chief for the newspaper, PM, and former president of the American Newspaper Guild; Boake Carter, radio commentator and newspaper columnist; Jay Franklin, writer of the column "We the People"; Emil Hurja, political forecaster and publisher of Pathfinder Magazine and Ray T. Tucker, author of the "National Whirligig" column.

30 Convicted Of Communist Election Frauds

Pittsburgh, Oct. 31 (AP).—Thirty men and women, including several leaders of the Communist Party in western Pennsylvania, were convicted today of perjury and conspiracy charges growing out of the circulation of Communist nominating petitions in Allegheny County.

The verdict, ending a month-long trial, brought a charge from George Powers, western Pennsylvania party secretary and one of the defendants, that the trial was a "frame-up" and "part of a national conspiracy which originated at the White House to steal the Communist Party vote."

Commonwealth witnesses testified the petitions had been represented as protests against this Nation's entry into the European war and as pleas for increased relief and more jobs. Some whose signatures appeared on the petitions said they had not signed them.

The War In Greece

It took the German army just five days to smash the resistance of the Netherlands and compel the surrender of the hard-fighting Dutch army.

The Italian forces in Greece are having no such easy time of it. Indeed, reports from Ankara say that the Greeks are now so confident of being able to stem the Italian invasion alone that no assistance from Turkey is being asked.

That report is not to be taken at its face value. The Greeks may only be making a virtue of necessity since there has so far been no indication of Turkey's readiness to enter the fray. Nonetheless, there seems to be little doubt that the Greeks have so far managed to give a good account of themselves.

Aided by their mountains and by bad weather, which has kept many Italian planes grounded, they have prevented the Italians from making a rapid advance. Yet the fact that Athens admits fighting immediately north of Janina shows that the invaders have penetrated Greece to a distance of around 30 miles.

Considerable mystery still exists as to the nature and volume of that British assistance which the London government has promised to send to the aid of Greece. Unconfirmed reports from Salonika tell of the landing under the shelter of British naval units of an undisclosed number of British troops. At the same time it remains uncertain whether a British landing has occurred at Crete or other strategically important Greek islands.

It would seem, therefore, that the Battle of Greece has reached only its preliminary stages, with the real fighting still ahead. But this conclusion in itself gives a measure of validity to the rumors that Mussolini, never having expected the Greeks to resist at all, was caught unprepared when the Greeks stood their ground. And, however great the odds may be in his favor as against the hopelessly outnumbered and poorly equipped Greeks, the fact remains that the Duce is now fighting a war on two fronts.

This certainly is more than Mussolini bargained for when he joined Germany at what he deemed the fifty-ninth minute of the eleventh hour to share in the anticipated loot of victory.

Corfu Again

The reported occupation by British forces of the ancient Isle of Kerkyra, or Corfu, in the Ionian Sea may prove to be an event of great strategic importance. One has but to glance at the map to perceive that Corfu is the key to the Adriatic—just as Crete, also reported to be invested by the British, is the key to the Aegean.

From Corfu the British navy would be in position to strike directly at communications between Italy and Albania. Under certain favorable circumstances it might even be able to threaten the rear of the Italian army now advancing from Albania into the Grecian Peninsula; for Corfu is separated from the coast by a tiny strait which at its narrowest is only 2 miles wide.

Because of its enormous strategic importance and its position almost midway on the trade routes between Western Europe and Asia, Corfu, under one name or another, appears often in both ancient and modern world history. Indeed possession or control of this island has been found necessary by nearly every power which has sought to dominate the Mediterranean. Whether it was ever one of the outposts of the mysterious, prehistoric Mino, an empire of Crete, there is, of course, no way of knowing. But it seems probable enough, since the Cretan trading galleys are believed to have passed the Pillars of Hercules into the great Western Ocean and as far as the Isle of Britain.

The struggle between Corinth and Athens for control of Corfu was one of the immediate causes of the disastrous Peloponnesian War. Rescue of the island from the pirates who seized it after the decline of Macedonia, and the establishment there of a naval base, was essential to the extension of the Roman imperium into the Near East. Again Corfu was the base used by Octavian for the expedition which overwhelmed Anthony at Pharsala.

Appropriately enough, it was at Corfu in 1926 that Mussolini first made plain to all far-sighted men his ultimate ambition, regardless of treaties, to dominate the whole Mediterranean area. The assassination on Greek soil of three Italian members of a diplomatic mission, was used as the pretext for an abrupt and brutal bombardment and seizure of the island by Il Duce's warships. Several civilians, chiefly Greek and Armenian refugees from the Graeco-Turkish war, were slain.

It was on the occasion of this "Corfu incident" also that the Western powers revealed that fatal tendency toward appeasement which was afterward to prove their undoing. The Italians were persuaded to evacuate Corfu, but the Council of Ambassadors, overriding the League of Nations, insisted on the payment to Italy of an indemnity of 50,000,000 lire, though to this day no proof has been shown that the assassins were Greeks.

Distorted Farm Picture

In his Boston address President Roosevelt made masterly use of statistical half truths in contrasting present day agricultural conditions with those of the years following the World War. "Do I have to remind you of the plight of the farmer during the period between 1920 and 1933," he asked, "declining income, accumulating surpluses, rising farm debts, 10-cent corn, 20-cent wheat, 5-cent cotton, 3-cent hogs?"

Mr. Roosevelt certainly knows that these prices are not typical of the period. He has carefully quoted minimum prices received by farmers for brief periods during the early thirties, when the entire country and the world at large were in the throes of depression accompanied by catastrophic deflation.

If the President had wanted to present an unbiased picture of the present state of agriculture, he would have drawn upon the comparative data of the twenties. But in that event his vision of a rejuvenated agricultural industry would have lost its roseate hue.

The prices received by farmers for their wheat during the decade from 1920 to 1930 averaged better than 90 cents in every year, and well above $1 for most of the period. In 1928, farmers received about 18 cents per pound on the average for their cotton and nearly 17 cents in 1929. During the latter half of the twenties gross farm income exceeded $12,000,000,000 every year, contrasted with an estimated $9,800,000,000 for 1939. The total for 1940 is expected to be only slightly higher than that of last year. If products retained for home consumption and Government payments are disregarded, the income comparison is even more favorable to the twenties. Yearly cash income from marketings was close to or in excess of $10,000,000,000 in the period 1925-29 as contrasted with $7,700,000,000 in 1939.

To the unprejudiced mind these facts are much more revealing than President Roosevelt's comparison of current farm income with that of the worst depression year—1932. Measured by this abnormally low level, it is not at all surprising that farm income should have been doubled.

But that is not the worst distortion in the President's remarks to farmers. With courage worthy of a better cause, he tries to convey the impression that our unsalable agricultural surpluses are a blessing to a world involved in war. Apart from the fact that these surpluses were accumulated in the effort to bolster farm prices without thought of war needs, there is no evidence that the war has eased the problem of surplus disposal. On the contrary, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics states that export demand for United States farm products is likely to be even less in 1941 than in 1940. "The outlook for exports might be better," it adds, "if the war in Europe were terminated, although even in that event many conditions would remain unfavorable."

Thus we muddle along, shoring up our farm price structure with Government loans, while our chief agricultural exports, sadly shrunken, have to be moved with the aid of subsidies. And for our huge accumulated surpluses there are no adequate outlets present or prospective, either at home or abroad. Only an incorrigible optimist could observe this chaotic state of affairs and jump to the conclusion that our agriculture has become strong and vigorous under the guidance of Secretary Wallace.

Not Fair Judges

No reasonable person would suggest that judgment in a court should be rendered by the accused. But that apparently is the equivalent of what the District Commissioners proposed when they referred complaints against policemen, as to the handling of stolen goods, to the police themselves for investigation. The charges are of a really serious nature and either the police should be cleared of all suspicion or the guilty should be punished.

A reasonable request toward this end has been made for a complete audit of goods which have been removed from dealers "on suspicion" that they were stolen property and of the items turned into the property clerk. Charges were also made that police obtained "friendly gifts" and discounts about which no complaints could be registered because the police are said to have some influence in connection with the granting of dealers' licenses.

Among the letters to the editor The Post prints a letter from a dealer defending the police against Attorney Richard Harman's charges. There may be no evidence to substantiate those accusations. But in any event the problem involves sufficient public interest to demand a careful inquiry. An investigation by the police is no better and may be worse than none at all.

Missing The Point

President Roosevelt did a thorough job, in his address at Boston, of comparing our Navy of 1933 with the Navy of today. It must now be clear to everyone that we have more fighting ships on the seas and more men on those ships than we had seven years ago. But many citizens listening in must have yawned and asked: "So what?"

There seems to be an implication in this comparison that the President contemplates a fight between our Navy of 1933 with our Navy of 1940. If that is the case, it may be conceded that the 1940 Navy would win hands down. But what is gained by imagining battles between the fleet we had seven years ago and that we have now? Obviously such mental gymnastics have no relation to our national security in the world of today.

The United States does not maintain a Navy merely for the purpose of showing that, as a Nation, we are "bigger and better" than we were in the past. Although Mr. Roosevelt seems to have overlooked the point, our armed forces on sea and land must necessarily be adjusted to the conditions in which we find ourselves from year to year. During the Hoover Administration there was still talk and hope of world disarmament. Our naval needs in that period are utterly incomparable with those of today.

In 1933 there was no Axis. Hitler was just attaining a dominant position in Germany and that country had no navy or air force to give anyone concern. At the same time the American Navy was distinctly superior to that of Japan. Nowhere was the United States threatened. Yet enormous sums were spent in those years to develop and maintain the Navy for possible future need.

"Almost the very minute that this Administration came into office," the President said, "we began to build the Navy up, to build a bigger Navy." The fact is that appropriations for the Navy during the fiscal years 1930, 1931 and 1932 averaged more than the naval appropriations, plus public works funds allotted to the Navy, in the first Roosevelt budget of 1934.

A similar disposition to play politics with national defense may be noted in the President's announcement that he is helping Great Britain to obtain 12,000 additional fighting planes. The British need these planes and should have them as soon as they can be manufactured without jeopardizing our own defenses. But there was no occasion for the President to claim credit for British airplane orders in a political speech.

Americans should remember that the British are buying these planes from private manufacturers in this country. Our Government merely permits the purchase. And even the integration of these orders with the existing program is a question yet to be worked out by the Priorities Board.

These proposed new airplanes for the British are merely on order, like the vast majority of the 50,000 planes which the President believes the United States should have. Of course, most of them cannot be built until large orders already placed have been filled. In effect, the President sought to make political capital out of British purchases to become effective many months hence.

When Mr. Roosevelt asserted that the expanded plant capacity acquired by private companies to fill British orders for planes and munitions will be "available to serve the needs of the United States in any emergency" he created another unfortunate impression. Of course, the United States could take advantage of the expenditure of British defense funds in this country. But a great majority of the American people will probably feel that this is not the kind of situation to which the President can justifiably point with pride.

"A song to be popular must have an idea behind it," declares a song writer. How far?

Beware the enemy who cheerfully offers to bury the hatchet. He most likely has an ax to grind.

Uncertainty On The Gridiron

From the Detroit News

The day is decidedly past when 9 football results in 10 could be called with fair confidence by any one familiar with the college game. One of the older and more reputable judges of gridiron form, with every facility for knowing the material and current condition of the elevens in judgment, made 32 guesses on Saturday's leading contests. He missed 15 times.

So many new factors now bear on football fortunes that no team save the most obvious set-up can be counted out in the prophet's reckoning. The opening up of the game has lent it an element of chance by virtue of which teams that seem to show a considerable disparity on paper are now approximate equals on the field. The squads in practically all the large schools and in many of the smaller receive a thorough education in the game. Material counts for much over a season, but not for everything in any single contest. The spectator is no longer assured of any outcome before the kick-off. And this, we should say, is all for the best.

The Middle Class

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: So Bruce Barton, New York Republican candidate for Senator, actually came out in the open with the assertion that the "middle class" man has been overlooked, that he represents the neglected "third" in this dear land of ours, that he is the forgotten man.

Following the World War the acute tragedy of many European countries, and especially of Germany, was the reduction of its middle class, its gifted and thinking class, to the ranks of the very poor. For what is any country's middle class but the salt of their geographic patch of earth: the people who educate their children, inculcate in them the democratic traditions (if democratic), a knowledge of their history and a proper pride in their country.

It is the middle class who send their children to college and somehow manage to pay for their education, whether at the time or later. It is the middle class who keep themselves and their children off relief, no matter how terrific the ordeal may be. It is they who pay and pay again when ground between the upper and nether millstones of capital and labor, eternally fighting.

And it is they and they alone who do the thinking in any given generation and anywhere. (Who reads your Walter Lippmanns?) They are the elite, few in any generation, who do the thinking for the race. Their influence is potent and penetrating, as thinking follows its lawful course from the top down through the lower levels.

"They" are not organized," this being one of Mr. Barton's statements which your editorial did print and refute. It would appear, it is only to the organized that politicians care to address themselves. But here comes a man of more than the usual insight. Mr. Barton sees the tragedy of this condition and brings it to light. He knows human values. He knows there can be no greater calamity than for a country to fail to see the importance of its middle class.

Campaign Promises

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his reply to President Roosevelt's Philadelphia speech, Mr. Willkie implies that the President's solemn pledge not to send our boys to fight in foreign lands cannot be depended upon because Roosevelt's campaign pledges in 1932 to reduce taxes and to balance the Federal budget were not carried out. This implication is, I believe, quite unfair.

Consideration of the circumstances then and now leads to the more logical conclusion that Roosevelt's failure to keep these campaign pledges of 1932 casts doubt not so much on the 1940 promises as on those of Willkie. This follows directly if Willkie and Roosevelt are assumed to be equally honorable men.

How could Roosevelt have been sincere when he made those pledges?

The only explanation is that he had had no practical experience with Federal finances and knew little of the economic principles involved. When he came into office he soon found that to keep those pledges was utterly impractical.

Since then he has sought the advice of the ablest economists and businessmen, and while he agrees with Willkie as to the desirability of balancing the Federal budget, he now knows that this cannot be done in times of depression. Thus the knowledge which he has gained by actual experience during the last seven years prevents him from making promises such as those of 1932.

Willkie, on the other hand, is now in the same situation as Roosevelt was in 1932. His ignorance of economics and lack of practical experience in government permit him, in good faith, to make promises he cannot possibly keep.

Police And Secondhand Dealers

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I must take issue with your editorial, "Audit Imperative," in The Post of October 28 with reference to second-hand dealers, the police and the public.

And curiously, though I am a second-hand dealer, I find fault not with your treatment of me and my competitors—you are remarkably fair to us. Rather it is the implication of misconduct on the part of the police department to which I object.

I cannot imagine what dealers have complained that "the police can remove property 'on suspicion'" and even, through the licensing power, harass them into making "friendly donations." And I am astonished at the implication that the police may on occasion appropriate articles taken from dealers under the suspicion that they might be stolen. To refute these complaints and implications I want to say:

Neither I nor any dealer I know has any "friends" in the police department. The police are simply fair and decent with us as long as we abide by the law. I say this so that there may be no suspicion that I am impelled to write because of having "friends" in the department.

No article has ever been taken from this place which was not either returned to me or to the owner in my presence. Articles have in fact been returned to me long after I have forgotten that they were even taken.

The only "donations" that have ever been asked for by the police in this establishment have been the purchase of a ticket showing membership in the Boys Club and an advertisement once a year in the police magazine and which I believe has something to do with their pensions. These two matters come to about $3.50. They are usually asked for by the policeman on the beat who has no contact at all with us in our business of buying and of course has nothing to do with the issuance of licenses.

Never has there been anything remotely approaching coercion in these matters nor have we ever had our license held up in any way, nor has its issuance been in any way at all connected with "donations."

Despite the misconceptions of many clever people, I can say that the police department carries out all phases of its work that I know of with a rectitude as fine as any organization or department I have ever had contact with. They will grant "favors!" Yes, and I have received such "favors"—namely, if you have shown by years of honest dealing that you are on the level, that you do not want to buy stolen goods, they will pass over some minor infraction such as forgetting to report one of the numbers in a watch. When a detective does this I sometimes offer him a drink. This is the only misconduct and graft that I have ever been able to find in the police department.

Experience And The Presidency

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There are two things which are very difficult for voters who have no experience of foreign affairs to believe, but which are facts. There is no experience of this war and its new international problems which dates back more than a year.

Any experience of it is the experience of the past six months since its operations became visible. That is Hitler's "mysterious weapon." He had discarded experience. That is why England floundered, France broke, Holland, Belgium and others surrendered. That is why the French government is now trying the war cabinet on criminal charges. All were going on the experience of the World War and the past 20 years.

The other point that is difficult to believe concerns the "secret" information of any chief of state about world affairs. In the democracies, in ours in particular, there is no such thing. The information of a President comes to him by virtue of his office, from routine sources—State Department, Army and Navy Intelligence, F. B. I. In some cases, Treasury and other well defined official sources. That is only secret (and must be) as far as the general public is concerned, but it is completely available to any President's successor, from the same sources and in the same manner. Any intelligent man can get the essential outlines of it all in 48 hours of concentrated work.

The problem is not one of experience and special information. It is one of positive action, of positive decisions based on official information. It is the answer to the questions: Which of two candidates can best unify the Nation to meet defense? In what manner will either perform the positive acts in foreign relations which will strengthen our defense?

A Man Of Sincerity

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every young, underprivileged Negro is saying with reference to conscription, "Here is my chance to prove once and for all my loyalty to my country. Perhaps my Government will give me an opportunity to earn an appreciable livelihood rather than employ members of foreign or subversive organizations."

I would like to be as optimistic as my kindred, but unfortunately I must be practical. I must accept facts rather than perish with hopes, even though perishing with hopes may be less agony.

Some of our "supposed to be" leaders are responsible for the plight of our race. They spend a few years of their lives in college or elsewhere, during which time they acquire a few high sounding words and clutter their minds with a few facts about law, politics, etc., and begin influencing the following of illiterates through fraud and deceit, after which they apply for the positions created for puppets.

We, the Negroes of America, in order to secure unto ourselves equal education, economic security, a place in the national defense program, and full conveyance of the Bill of Rights in our behalf, must dispense with pseudo-leaders and dedicate ourselves to the task of selecting a man of sincerity. Unless this is done, we will be caught with "forks when the soup rains."

Charlie Chaplin Spoke

In "The Great Dictator" Charlie Chaplin speaks for the first time on the screen, but he has spoken on the stage. I heard him. When I say "stage" I do not mean that he was speaking the lines in a play before the footlights, but he was making a speech on the stage of the city auditorium in Raleigh, N. C., where a Liberty Bond campaign was being conducted.

It was in 1918, when I was attending a Baptist College in Raleigh, that the whole Nation was doing its bit to save the world for democracy. There was a religious revival being held in the auditorium and the students were always allowed to attend any meeting connected with the spread of the Gospel. The meeting had been in progress about a week and some of my musical friends had been singing in the evangelistic choir.

I could not carry a tune, but seeing that the choir sat on the stage I joined the celestial voices on the night that Charlie Chaplin was going to be the feature of the Liberty Bond meeting immediately after the religious services.

The auditorium was packed to the rafters and standing room was at a premium, but the choir girls held their places at the rear of the stage and thus I was within a few feet of the speakers' chairs. If you think that Chaplin was seated on the stage during the first speeches by the prominent local and State speakers you are greatly mistaken, for Charlie was being kept in hiding. After having sat through two hours of sermons, hymns and prayers we sat through another two hours of speeches, the only words of which we heard were "Charlie Chaplin will be here soon." Finally there was a lot of noise, and Chaplin made his grand entrance with a police escort which had rescued him from the Yarborough Hotel—where he was mobbed by an army of admiring small boys. He was taken down the freight elevator, across the alley and through the back door into the auditorium.

Charlie was dressed in a business suit, and not a derby hat and baggy trousers; his face was clean-shaven, with no chopped-off mustache; his hair at that time was black and wavy, and his feet were so very small that I wondered how he managed to walk in those big flapping shoes for which he was so famous.

Charlie rushed out on the stage, picked up the pitcher of ice water from the speakers' table, and with a great many gestures, drank a long cold drink of water right out of the pitcher. He stood in silence with a look of surprise and disdain until the applause subsided and then gave his oration urging everyone to buy Liberty Bonds. He asked the audience how they liked the preceding speeches, and then added "I'm glad you liked them because I wrote all of them."

The sale of bonds then started in earnest, with people on all sides buying. A man bought a bond and sent his 4-year-old daughter up on the stage to pay for it. Charlie picked up the little girl and kissed her. This started a stampede of buying because all the little girls wanted their papas to buy bonds so they could receive Chaplin's blessings. The little girls gradually grew taller and older until a beautiful 15-year-old sub-deb came up with her father's money to buy a bond. Charlie looked at her with his masterly pantomime which registered, "Wonder if I should." "How I would like to," "I guess I'd better not," and finally said, "I guess she is just an in-between—too old to pick up and kiss, but too young for me to ask her for her telephone number."

I have heard that there are more North Carolinians in Washington than there are Iowans in Long Beach, Calif. So there may be many people living in Washington today who were in the same audience the night that Charlie Chaplin did his part to help the United States of America defeat the Kaiser. There will be many more people who will see "The Great Dictator" in which Charlie, with the merciless weapon of ridicule, debunks dictators.

It is not surprising that the film has been delayed so long when you learn that Chaplin conceived the idea of the play, wrote, filmed and cut it, and even wrote the musical score although he can't read or write a note of music. (Charlie, no doubt, can explain how this was possible even though it sounds contradictory.) Credit also goes to Chaplin for designing the costumes and sets.

In looking forward to seeing, laughing and crying with Charlie in this latest masterpiece, I can not refrain from recalling some of the other pictures in which he starred. I was still paying half fare at the movie theater when I saw him for the first time, which was in the picture "Tillie's Punctured Romance," in which he co-starred with Marie Dressler. Of course there were "The Kid," "The Gold Rush," "The Circus" and "City Lights" which will never be forgotten and which prove that in the era of silent pictures the actors were more dependent upon acting than on snappy dialogue.

On The Record

To Those Who Still Have An Open Mind

THE TITLE OF this column is the title of an advertisement which appeared on Thursday in most of the important newspapers of the country and which, I understand, is to appear continuously until the elections. I call attention to it, because it seems to me to need analysis. For, with remarkable sophistry and in a very subtle way it contains a threat, while presenting an alibi.

The argument is that the undecided voter will determine the outcome of the election, and the appeal is addressed to him. It says, quite correctly, that we are not choosing between two individuals but are casting our votes for a definite pattern of events to come, a pattern, of course, that is not completely predictable. But the advertisers believe that there is one inescapable and disastrous result that will come to pass if the President is reelected: Congress will not follow his leadership under any consideration, he will be "the personal and violent storm center of conflict and division," there will be "discord and division" . . . our national affairs will be "all but paralyzed"—and this will be Mr. Roosevelt's fault, it will be only his person that comes in question, and the Government will be "paralyzed by bitter enmity between the executive and Congress" . . . a danger too great . . . the consequences too disastrous."

REWRITTEN IN STRAIGHT English and without slick subtlety, this means that if the President is reelected by the majority of the American people the Republicans and conservative Democrats are going to do a sit-down strike in Congress even if it ruins the country, and it will be the President's fault for having become a candidate.

The advertisers are not buying $100,000 worth of newspaper space—more or less—to warn the American people that there is such a plot contemplated. It is not taking the space to protest against this sit-down strike, which it seems to have foreknowledge is going to happen. On the contrary, it tells the voters they had better not vote for Roosevelt because this pattern of events is inescapable—note the word—and disastrous. It is on a par with John L. Lewis' threat to disrupt labor and his hardly veiled counsel of mutiny to the new army if Roosevelt is reelected. It is, however, more serious than that. It predicts a sit-down strike against the decision of the American people. It threatens by passive resistance to flout that will and "all but paralyze" the Nation in a moment of grave international crisis.

It is amazing to find an argument like this over the names of highly conservative people, such as the signers are. One wonders what the meaning of "conservatism" is in these days! On the one side we have the President, who met the crisis in the spring by every measure that he could take to effect reconciliation between all classes and parties and who has maintained his argument in this campaign on the platform of a recital of facts and a continual plea for unity.

BUT OUR CONSERVATIVE friends are already hinting that if they lose, they will not accept the judgment of the people. They do not say, "we shall not accept it." They say, "it will not be accepted." No, instead, the Nation is to be paralyzed and the President is to be made the "personal and violent storm center of conflict and division."

The story of the judgment of Solomon is the best comment. Two women contended before the king for the possession of a child. The king unable to decide the justice of either mother's claim, decreed: "Bring me a sword. Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one and half to the other." And one mother said, "let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it." But the other cried, "O my Lord, give her the living child and in no wise slay it." And Solomon judged: "You are the true mother."

Fair Enough

Communist Pattern

WHEN THE DEMOCRATIC National Committee tries to make it appear that President Roosevelt has been hostile to the Communists the record makes the committee look very foolish. The record shows that both the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and most of the Administration have been warmly sympathetic with the Communists for the last seven years, and there is much more factual information bearing on this subject than I had room for in yesterday's living human document on the subject.

The Labor Relations Board has been packed in favor of communism, and its rulings and the Wagner Act at the present time even conspire to prevent the dismissal of a Communist from an airplane or munitions plant on the ground that he is a Communist, although the WPA has finally come to the admission that Communists are incorrigible and insufferable wreckers and may not be hired or retained on its rolls.

AN EMPLOYER cannot discriminate against a Communist because he is a Communist. It was discovered also, in the course of the investigation conducted by the Dies Committee, which President Roosevelt tried to discredit and suppress, that the wife of an agent of the Russian G. P. U. was employed in a confidential position in the Department of Labor, but so many shocking discoveries have been made by Dies and his colleagues that the citizens are practically shockproof. Things like that go almost unnoticed nowadays.

But I do not dismiss the possibility that President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt are now turning against the Communists. It is not surprising that the national committee now wants to take credit for the conviction of Earl Browder on behalf of President Roosevelt. Nor is it surprising that Mrs. Roosevelt disputed the Communists who control the American Newspaper Guild. These developments are puzzling but not surprising. They indicate changes in the Roosevelt or National Socialist Party line.

IT MAY BE remembered, in this connection, that Benito Mussolini also was a Communist once and scratched his back on the same brick wall with the comrades in Switzerland. He played along with them until he was big enough to become his own dictator, and then turned violently against them and presented himself as the savior of Italy from the curse of communism.

Mr. Roosevelt's aims are more like those of Mussolini and Hitler than of Trotsky and Stalin. His method has been to create a great myth of personal benevolence to the masses by working to destroy the industries which provide jobs for the masses. With this loyalty highly developed the unemployed can be made to hate the operators of private industry more and more for failing to reemploy them and to adore the President more and more for bludgeoning business.

If and when private investment cannot be persuaded to maintain business any more the investors will put their money into Government securities only, and the Government will pass it on to the industries and become the boss of both employers and employes. That is substantially what Mussolini and Hitler did, and it is better than the Communist system, because it leaves the business executives still in nominal charge of their properties. It is a method which spares the lives and preserves the talents of men and women who cannot be easily replaced, but it achieves the same general result that communism strives for, namely government control of everything, including labor. It is less noisy and violent than the Communist type of revolution, and if the Communists don't happen to like it, that is their hard luck.

THE COMMUNISTS think they are very shrewd and cunning, but they have been played for dopes before—notably, as I have recalled, by Mussolini—and there is not a single country outside Russia in which they did the preliminary dirty work, as they have been doing all this time in Washington, where they won the Government in the end.

France was the latest example. They drove the French people crazy for years, and the result is national socialism under Petain and Hitler.

In this country they have followed the same course, have been used by the New Deal Administration for its own mysterious purposes, and now are beginning to lose favor as the Government turns toward an Americanized version of the very system which it professes to hate worst.

JOSEPH P. KENNEDY

His plea for President Roosevelt's reelection is regarded by Ernest Lindley as the most impressive to come from the conservative side of the Democratic Party

'Good Politics'

By Ernest K. Lindley

War And Indispensability

THE CLOSING DAYS of the campaign find the Republicans still hammering at "the doctrine of indispensability" and still trying to cultivate fear that Roosevelt, if reelected, will take us to war.

Both efforts are "good politics." Together they probably are chiefly responsible for the swelling of pro-Willkie sentiment during the last two or three weeks.

The doctrine of indispensability particularly as applied to Roosevelt—is, however, about 90 per cent a straw man of Republican creation. Roosevelt has made no claim to indispensability. He has attacked it in the past, and there is no reason to think that he has changed his mind.

There are some Roosevelt supporters who have declared that he is indispensable under present conditions. But this view cannot be held by most of the people who are going to vote for him. For the idea that any man is indispensable is essentially foreign to American ways of thinking. Roosevelt is not indispensable. Willkie is not indispensable. By native ability hundreds, perhaps thousands of American citizens are as well qualified as either Roosevelt or Willkie to be President, and by experience thousands are better qualified than Willkie.

Roosevelt was not nominated for a third term because he was indispensable or was considered so by a majority of the Democratic National Convention. He was nominated because a majority thought he was his party's strongest candidate.

THE QUESTION to be decided by the voters next Tuesday is not whether Roosevelt, or any other man, is indispensable. It is whether Roosevelt or Willkie would make the better President of the United States during the next four years.

Willkie seems to me to be better qualified by natural ability than the general run of Presidential candidates. Roosevelt certainly is. In addition, Roosevelt has had the experience—and this is peculiarly a time when experience is an important asset. Whichever is elected, I don't believe that disaster will follow. When the verdict has been given by the voters, all but the usual handful of die-hards will rally around the next President and hope for the best.

Willkie and Roosevelt do not see eye to eye on economic and social policy. The divergence between them is no greater, however, than between Roosevelt and some of the members of his own Cabinet. Both are committed to the democratic way of life.

To say that Willkie's election would not be a national disaster is not to say that Willkie would make a better President than Roosevelt.

FROM THE CONSERVATIVE side, the most impressive plea for Roosevelt's reelection was Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy's on Tuesday night. Kennedy had been honored by the President, but he has more than paid off any debt which he owed to the present Administration. He often has disagreed with the President on public policies. And he had been sniped at so mercilessly by persons close to the President that many people would not have been surprised if, on his return from Great Britain, he had come out for Willkie. Yet without uttering a single word of criticism of Willkie, Kennedy set forth his temperate but firm conclusion that the national interest would be served better by the reelection of Roosevelt.

Kennedy's views on Roosevelt's foreign policy also are worth the sober consideration of every voter. Kennedy has been and remains stalwartly opposed to our entry into the European war. His conviction on this question is so deep that I don't believe anything could prevent him from breaking away if he believed the President intended to take us into war across the Atlantic.

KENNEDY WAS CLEARCUT on three important points. Never has he given "to one single individual in the world any hope whatsoever that, at any stage or under any conditions could the United States be drawn into the war."

Secondly, there is no secret understanding of any kind with Great Britain which might lead to our entry into the war.

Thirdly, for reasons tersely set forth by Kennedy, aid to Britain by means short of war does not mean going to war. On the contrary, a declaration of war by us would impair our ability to aid Britain for some time to come. It would be against Britain's interests, at the present time, as well as our own.

Good arguments can be advanced in favor of Willkie, but the attack on an indispensable straw man and a politically-generated war scare are not among them.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Letter To Chaplin

DEAR CHARLIE: I guess maybe it is your own secret and you want to keep it to yourself, but why, oh, why did you ever let that last picture, "The Great Dictator," get out in the shape you did. You have been my favorite comedian for 25 years, boy and man. To me you were good for a giggle a minute, following the slogan "Always leave 'em laughing when you say good-bye!" And now you not only give the public a strained and labored film, but you leave 'em stunned and befuddled by trying to play Hamlet in a finish that surprises 'em as much as if Pinocchio delivered a fireside chat, or if Popeye the Sailor wound up a picture by reading the Monroe Doctrine.

You are the king of all movie comedians, Charlie, not a de luxe Patrick Henry. For a few minutes during that garrulous finale to your picture I thought you were doing a burlesque of the March of Time. You even sounded a little like the Voice of the Sewer Inspector at the Chicago convention. Now what you said was strictly okay, the solid truth and all that, but it just wasn't in the character of the lovable, knockabout tramp in the baggy pants and battered derby.

I couldn't have been more flabbergasted, Charlie, if Snow White had wound up the Seven Dwarfs picture with a broadcast denouncing the crime wave and coming out for a vegetarian diet, a new economic order and the Wagner Act.

And that ain't all, Charlie. While the new picture has many amusing moments, there are few of the belly-laughs with which the public expects Charlie Chaplin to fill a picture, especially when he has been working on it for from three to five years. If you worked on this one more than three weeks, Charlie, you must have slept week-ends.

It saddened me to see you in scene after scene that was strained and forced when it should have been smooth, spontaneous and uproarious. I think the audiences sit back expecting the best laughs of the evening after the point where you dream you have been mistaken for Hitler and are walking to the platform to address the mob, but it is then that the picture blows up in their faces with a finish that makes them wonder whether they are listening to Charlie Chaplin or the Herald Tribune Forum.

Please, Charlie, even if it means time and money, scuttle the finish of that picture and substitute an old-time Chaplain finish. This one is not going to do you any good. It is the first Chaplin movie in history that sends audiences out looking baffled and muttering, "We musta got in Dracula by mistake."

Please, Charlie. You got a reputation to maintain. Your devoted follower,

ELMER TWITCHELL.

For High Stakes

Implications Of The Greek War

THE GREEK-ITALIAN war is only a sideshow of the Anglo-Italian struggle for the control of the Mediterranean. That, in turn, is distinctly subsidiary in importance to the Battle of Britain. The stakes in the Greek-Italian conflict are nonetheless high.

These stakes are not only military and naval but also psychological. They involve not merely the future use of the Greek peninsula and the Greek islands either as a German-Italian base of operations against the Suez Canal and British naval power in the Mediterranean or as a British base of operations against Italy. They also involve the enormously important but intangible factor of prestige.

AFTER THE FALL of France it was said that Hitler was in a position to take the Balkans by telephone. The might of the Axis appeared too formidable to be resisted by any of the small nations of southeastern Europe. The only factor making possible their continued independence at that time was the uncertainty of Russia's position vis-a-vis Germany and Italy.

That uncertainty has partly, but only partly, been cleared up by subsequent devolopments. Russia moved into Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina but did not lift a finger when Germany proceeded to partition Rumania further by giving a slice of Transylvania to Hungary and later to occupy the hapless kingdom. And the Kremlin was similarly inactive when Italy invaded Greece.

Yet even today it is far from clear that Russia's negative position regarding recent Axis moves in the Balkans is simply the product of fear or the outgrowth of a positive understanding between Moscow, Berlin and Rome. The strong tone employed by the Turkish press in emphasizing Turkey's readiness to resist a German invasion of Anatolia suggests that Russia is keeping at least one card in reserve in the many-sided Balkan game being played by the powers.

SINCE THE FALL of France, the deep pessimism regarding Britain's chances of surviving a German blitzkrieg has steadily diminished. Great Britain is by no means out of danger. But she is also far from being defeated.

That fact is not being lost to sight either by the conquered peoples or by the still independent nations of Europe. It is coloring their moods and helping determine their attitude toward Europe's masters. In the meantime Italy's prestige has declined as a result of her unwillingness to risk her fleet in an encounter with the British and her failure to make any headway in the Egyptian campaign. And the more British prestige rises and Italian and German prestige declines, the greater the resistance the Axis is likely to encounter from nations earmarked as satellites.

The difficulty which Hitler appears to have had in winning over Gen. Franco to immediate military collaboration with the Axis perhaps is indicative of the respect shown British sea power by a nation fronting both the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. The refusal of Greece to accept the Italian ultimatum of last Sunday points more clearly to the same conclusion.

MUSSOLINI will not add much to Italy's military prestige if his forces are triumphant in Greece. The odds on Italy's side appear to be overwhelming. But the British are certain to lose most of the gains in prestige they secured from their remarkable fight against the German luftwaffe if they bungle in Greece.

In a way, Greece is Norway all over again, only this time with the Italians unable to occupy all of the key cities by a succession of lightning strokes and Great Britain in a much better position to seize strategic points first.

For the British as for the Italians, speed is of the essence. It will be no advantage to Mussolini to overrun most of the Greek peninsula if, in the meantime, the British entrench themselves at Salonika, Crete, Caphallonia, Corfu and other strategic points. On the other hand, the failure of Great Britain to take advantage of the opportunities presented by the Greek conflict will not only make easier the threatened German-Italian drive on Suez but will also weaken the inclination of such nations as Yugoslavia and Turkey to oppose the Axis.

By invading Greece, Mussolini gave hostages to fortune. It may be that he never expected the Greeks to offer more than a token resistance, if that, and was thus trapped into a war he did not want. It may be, on the other hand, that strategic necessities drove him to attack Greece regardless of all possible risks. In any event he has opened the way for the British to make a serious counterthrust at the weaker and very much more vulnerable of the Axis partners. It remains to be seen how well the British, hampered as they are, will make use of this opportunity.

Roosevelt Policy On Defense Lauded

Robert M. Patterson, Assistant Secretary of War, said last night that President Roosevelt, "far from playing politics with national defense, has sacrificed what might be deemed narrow political advantages, has subordinated any such personal advantage, to the broad national interest."

PATTERSON

He expressed his views in an address prepared for radio delivery under the auspices of the National Committee of Independent Voters for Roosevelt and Wallace. The committee said that "Mr. Patterson is a Republican."

Patterson said charges had been made that "the Administration in general and the President in particular have played politics with national defense," then asserted:

"But the facts, far from substantiating this charge, demonstrate to any man who knows them that the charge has no basis in truth. The President, on the eve of a Presidential election, urged the prompt passage of the selective service law and put the law into operation. He also urged the appropriation of billions of dollars for the Navy and the Army. It was the President who called on our people to make great personal and pecuniary sacrifices for national defense at a time when a purely political leader with purely political purposes would, instead, have fed them with rash and reckless promises."

Patterson said it also had been charged "that the present Administration cannot get the thorough and cordial cooperation of industry."

"Any such a charge," he asserted, "is a gross injustice to American industry, and it is squarely contradicted by what industry has already done and is going forward to do in furtherance of the defense program."

"Another charge, equally reckless and even more damaging to the national interest, is the charge that the President wishes to take us into war. Wars are not brought about by the strengthening of defenses but by the weakening of defenses."

Willkie Is Labor's Enemy, Mead Says

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—James M. Mead, Democratic candidate for reelection as United States Senator, tonight urged an American labor party rally to support President Roosevelt and Democratic candidates as the means of preserving New Deal "social gains."

MEAD

He spoke from the same platform with Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Henry A. Wallace.

"Let us look at Wendell Willkie, the utility president of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, the billion-dollar holding company, which Mr. Willkie headed until the inner voices whispered to him that he was a statesman," Mead said.

"In the files of the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee and the National Labor Relations board you will find the whole, grim story—a story of hired labor spies, tear gas, company unions, coercion and intimidation of union workers, bitter strife, strikes and flagrant violations of the rights guaranteed to workers under the law of the land."

Richmond B. Keech Takes Oath Today As D. C. Counsel

Richmond B. Keech today at 10 a. m. will be sworn into office as Corporation Counsel for the District.

Ceremonies will be held in the office of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, with Board Secretary Geoffrey M. Thornett officiating. Keech succeeds Elwood H. Seal, who left the District service for private practice.

The new corporation counsel served as an assistant corporation counsel 15 years ago. Following this first post with the District he was appointed people's counsel and then member of the Public Utilities Commission, which post he now relinquishes. He is 45 years old, a bachelor, native of the District and graduate of Georgetown University Law School.

Johnson Accuses Roosevelt of Guile

New York, Oct. 31 (U.P.)—Gen. Hugh Johnson, in a radio address tonight urging the election of Wendell Willkie, accused President Roosevelt of a policy of "hypocrisy and deceit" and described Ambassador Joseph Kennedy as a "warmonger."

The general said Kennedy was misleading the American people when he told them that Britain does not want American manpower—only airplanes and other military supplies.

The argument that no American soldiers were wanted was used when Britain was engaged in the World War, Johnson said, yet a few months later man power was demanded and soon 2,000,000 American soldiers were in Europe.

Johnson professed to see "a great popular upsurge" against the Administration's policy of "deceit and guile" and saw a "veritable landslide" of pro-Willkie sentiment.

Why, he asked, does the Administration profess horror at the dictatorship in Germany and, at the same time, seek to cultivate the friendship of an equally bloody dictatorship in Soviet Russia?

U. S. Airacobra Flies Faster Than a Bullet

San Diego, Calif., Oct. 31 (AP).—Jack Knight, veteran United Air Lines official, said today the Bell Airacobra, one of the Army's new fighting planes, attained a speed of 520 miles an hour during a recent test flight.

Knight said he was informed of the accomplishment by the test pilot and added that the plane could outdistance a bullet, the muzzle velocity of a .38-caliber bullet being about 400 miles an hour.

Relating other advances in aircraft in his address to a club luncheon, Knight said Lockheed's new Intercepter in a recent test flight climbed 6,000 feet straight up in one minute.

'Goldfish Bowl' Today Goes Back To Philadelphia

Its historic function performed, the "goldfish bowl" from which 9,000 numbers were drawn Tuesday will be taken back to its Philadelphia resting place today.

At 11 a. m. C. A. Dykstra, director of Selective Service, will entrust the bowl in its journey to the care of Capt. H. O. Richardson, of the United States Special Police, and a committee of four representatives of the American Legion including Ernest Kinnard, captain of the Legion Guard of Honor at the lottery; Harry C. Bell, Legion Honor Guard member whose 21-year-old son, Harry S. Bell, holds No. 158, first drawn in the lottery; Heywood Saunders, former vice commander of the District Department of the Legion, and Ted Luther, vice commander of the Navy Department Post of the Legion.

Details of United States Park Police, Maryland and Pennsylvania State Police will join in relay escorts that will lead the committee and the famous bowl to Independence Hall. It will be delivered in person to Mayor R. E. Lamberton, of Philadelphia, who arranged to send it to Washington for the lottery.

D. S. M. Awarded To Army Chief Of Recruit Drive

By the Associated Press

Award of the Distinguished Service Medal to Lieut. Col. Howard N. Gilbert, in charge of the Army's largest peacetime recruiting campaign, was disclosed yesterday by War Department officials.

Secretary Stimson is to present the medal today at the War Department after the citation for "unusual foresight, excellent judgment and resourcefulness" has been read by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

Col. Gilbert already possesses the Distinguished Service Cross for heroism in the World War and the Purple Heart, awarded for wounds received in action. A native of Halifax, Pa., he entered the Army in 1917 after studying at Pennsylvania State College and Bucknell University. He is the only native Pennsylvanian to receive the three honors.

More than 395,000 men have been enlisted in the regular Army since 1938, to meet various increases and for replacements. The regular Army's actual strength has been raised from 165,000 to nearly 375,000 men, officials said.

Italian War Veterans Rally For Roosevelt

Mobilized at a Roosevelt-Radcliffe rally last night, several hundred Italian war veterans last night heard speakers indorse the President for a third term and reiterate the patriotism of the organization's membership in East Riverdale (Md.) auditorium.

Charles J. Cardosi, an official of the veteran's unit, declared "there are 13,000 Italian war veterans here . . . and they think this is the best country in the world." The society is "99.94 per cent" in favor of the Chief Executive's reelection, he added.

Other speakers included Charles J. Bell, Arthur Granholm, John White, and Henry O'Neil.

Text of Roosevelt Speech in Bethesda

President Extends Olive Branch to Organized Medicine in Dedicating Health Institute; Reassures Physicians Against Socialization

Following is the text of President Roosevelt's address dedicating the National Institute of Health at Bethesda, Md., yesterday afternoon:

Nowhere in the world except in the Americas is it possible for any nation to devote a great sector of its effort to life conservation rather than to life destruction.

All of us are grateful that we in the United States can still turn our thoughts and our attention to those institutions of our country which symbolize peace — institutions whose purpose it is to save life and not to destroy it. It is for the dedication of these noble buildings to the service of man that we are assembled here today.

The national institute of health speaks the universal language of humanitarianism. It has been devoted throughout its long and distinguished history to furthering the health of all mankind, in which service it has recognized no limitations imposed by international boundaries; has recognized no distinctions of race, of creed, or of color.

The total defense that we have heard so much about of late, which this Nation seeks involves a great deal more than building airplanes, ships, guns and bombs.

We cannot be a strong Nation unless we are a healthy Nation. And so we must recruit not only men and materials but also knowledge and science in the service of national strength. That is what we are doing here.

We have recognized the strategic importance of health by the creation of a health and medical committee in the Council of National Defense whose job it is to coordinate the health and medical aspects of national preparedness. This commite is assisting the Government in the mobilization of the medical and health resources of the country to serve the best interests both of the military and the civilian elements of the Nation.

To do this will require the best energies of the professional and technical leadership of our country.

To do this will require the fullest cooperation between the Government and the hospitals, the medical, dental, nursing and other professions. We seek the same partnership that we seek for industrial production in the Advisory Commission.

Neither the American people nor their Government intend to socialize medical practice any more than they plan to socialize industry. In American life the family doctor, the general practitioner, performs a service which we rely upon and trust, as a Nation.

No one has a greater appreciation than I of the skill and self-sacrifice of the medical profession. And there can be no substitute for the personal relationship between doctor and patient which is a characteristic and a source of strength of medical practice in our land.

Although we have still much to do, the Nation today is better prepared to meet the public health program of our emergency that at any previous time in the history of the country.

Since the passage of the famous Social Security Act, with its health provisions in 1935, Federal, State and local health and medicine are cooperating more broadly than ever before.

Our people are better informed on health matters than ever before.

Scientific knowledge of the causes of disease and also the conditions for health has exceeded any previous limits.

Facilities for health and medical service are more numerous and better.

The Public Health Service is an old institution and has done magnificent work, but it is only recently in the past few years that the Federal Government has indicated that it can do infinitely more — that disease disregards state lines as well as national — that among the States there is inequality of opportunity for health—and that in such cases the Public Health Service is helpind, and must cnotinue to hepl man greatly.

That partnership, and I lemphasize that word in regard to health throughout the land, is making definite progress against many diseases.

Among the buildings of the National Institute of Health to be dedicated here today stands the National Cancer Institute, created through provisions of the Act which I signed August 5, 1937.

The work of this new institute is well under way. It is promoting and stimulating cancer research throughout the Nation; it is bringing to the people of the Nation a message of hope because many forms of the disease are not only curable but even preventable. Beyond this, it is doing research here and in many universities to unravel the mysteries of cancer. We can have faith in the ultimate results of these efforts.

These buildings, which we dedicate, represent new and improved housing for an institution which has a long and distinguished background of accomplishment in this task of research.

The original demonstration of the cause and method of prevention of pellagra has been followed by other important contributions. Great work has been done in the control of tularemia, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, typhus fever, malaria and psittacosis.

Now that we are less than a day by plane from the jungle-type yellow fever of South America, less than two days from the sleeping sickness of equatorial Africa, less than three days from cholera and bubonic plague, the ramparts we watch must be civilian in addition to military.

For the spacious grounds on which these buildings stand we are indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Luke I. Wilson, who wrote me in 1933 asking if part of their estate at Bethesda, Md., could be used to the benefit of the people of this Nation.

I would tell her now as she sits beside me that in their compassion for suffering, their hope for human action to alleviate it, she and her husband symbolize the aspirations of millions of Americans for a cause such as this.

Today the need for the conservation of health and physical fitness is greater than at any time in the Nation's history. In dedicating this institute, I dedicate it to the underlying philosophy of public health; to the conservation of life, to the wise use of the vital resources of our Nation.

I voice for America, and for the stricken world, our hopes, our prayers, our faith, in the power of man's humanity to man.

Many Dentists Would Enlist, Survey Shows

Corps Needed for Duty Can Be Made Up From Volunteers

A corps of 3,000 dentists needed for duty with the armed services under national defense program expansions can be made up entirely of volunteers, it was indicated yesterday by the dental preparedness committee of the American Dental Association.

The committee conferred at the Army and Navy Club with Brig. Gen. Leigh C. Fairbank of the Army Dental Corps and officials of the Navy Dental Corps. Trends shown by questionnaires sent to 72,000 practicing dentists throughout the Nation, which are now being tabulated at A. D. A. headquarters in Chicago, were reported on.

Many Would Volunteer

Dr. C. Willard Camalier, of Washington, chairman of the committee, declared: "A preliminary checkup of replies in several States shows that 7 per cent of the dentists answered 'yes' when asked if they would volunteer for immediate active service, and they are all between the ages of 21 and 36. This percentage should far outstrip the number of 3,000 dentists estimated necessary for service in the present expansion program."

Gen. Fairbank declared that a survey of new recruits entering the Army shows a widespread need for dental care.

Every dentist in the United States is to receive the A. D. A.'s questionnaire, which contains 80 queries and is calculated to obtain for the first time a complete tabulation of this country's dental resources. The information will help prevent stripping of civilian populations of dentists in time of emergency, Dr. Camalier explained.

Dr. Oliver Attends

Dr. Oren A. Oliver, of Nashville, Tenn., president-elect of the A. D. A., attended the meeting. Dr. LeRoy M. S. Miner, dean of the Harvard University Dental School, represented the American Association of Dental Schools. National Selective Service Headquarters was represented by Col. Charles Spruit, of the Army Medical Corps.

Other members of the preparedness committee besides Dr. Camalier are Dr. G. D. Timmons, secretary of the Dental Association, Chicago; Dr. C. G. Brooks, New London, Conn.; Dr. Edward H. Bruening, Omaha, Nebr.; Dr. H. O. Lineberger, Raleigh, N. C.; Dr. J. Ben Robinson, Baltimore; Dr. J. T. O'Rourke, Louisville, and Dr. L. M. Waugh, New York City.

The services will be held at 11:30 a.m. today in the Hines funeral home, Fourteenth and Harvard Streets Northwest. Burial will be in Memphis, Tenn., Mr. Kent's boyhood home.

Ugh! Squaw She Wear Pants Now

The Indian squaw is no longer a "yes woman" to her brave, doing all the work and having no say in tribal or family affairs, according to the Office of Indian Affairs.

On the contrary, the bureau reported yesterday, the women are taking over increasing responsibility in matters of self-government, holding more elective offices than the men in some communities. In Nome, Alaska, where Indian men predominate, four of the five positions on the council of the Nome Eskimo community went to women.

Contract Bridge

No tournament director will complain if a player holds up a round a few moments while finding the solution of a difficult hand such as today's. Miss Florence Stratford, of Cleveland, handled it neatly during the masters' pairs competition to develop a trump coup which forced the defender to sacrifice his winning king of trumps in order to prevent her from making a grand slam.

L. H. Fremont, also of Cleveland, was Miss Stratford's partner.

East opened the queen of diamonds, which was taken by declarer's king. The king of hearts was cashed, and then the ace; Miss Stratford next led the spade queen; West ducked. East discarded, and the spade ten followed; again West ducked, and the queen held; declarer knew she had a losing trump trick as well as a club loser. In order to prepare for a coup and also to establish a club discard, Miss Stratford led a low heart and trumped. To develop a coup, it is always necessary to reduce the declarer's trumps to the exact number held by the defender with the nonfinessable honor.

She entered dummy with the club king and ruffed another heart, establishing dummy's last heart and cutting her trumps to two. A club was played to the ace and the long heart led. If West ducked this trick, attempting to save the king of spades, declarer would discard her club loser and catch the king on the next lead from dummy.

West was not so foolish; she promptly ruffed the good heart; declarer over-ruffed, drew the last trump and conceded a club to East.

Declarer made six spades, losing but one club trick.

Recipes For Cooking HolidayFowl

Markets Already Show Poultry Season In Full Swing

By Martha Ellyn
The Post Food Editor.

One doesn't need to look at the calendar or wait for a proclamation to know that it is getting close to Thanksgiving. All that is needed is to take a trip to market to know that the poultry season is here. That means thick-breasted ducklings and geese, fat hens, plump capons and his majesty the turkey. These birds bring all kinds of good things to mind.

Martha Ellyn

Of course, the time-honored way to judge the age of a fowl is by the breastbone. If you don't trust yourself to select one by the wiggling of the bone, it is best to buy the bird from a reliable market that will guarantee the poultry or "your money back."

When you get the bird home from market, singe it by holding it over a flame, turning it so all parts are exposed. If all the long hairs and down do not disappear with this procedure, take a pair of tweezers and pull out the stray pinfeathers. Next scrub the bird thoroughly, inside and out, and then run water through the inside to make sure it is absolutely clean. Then dry the bird and prepare it for cooking it in your favorite way.

If a bird is taken directly from the refrigerator, the cooking period should be increased by 30 minutes. The following is the roasting time for stuffed chickens, ducklings and capons.

Roasting Time Table

Chickens—Four pounds, stuffed weight, 2½ hours or 35 minutes per pound.

Ducklings—Five pounds, stuffed weight, 2½ hours or 30 minutes per pound.

Capons—Eight pounds, stuffed weight, 2½ hours or 18 minutes per pound. Twelve pounds, stuffed weight, 3 hours or 15 minutes per pound. Fourteen pounds, stuffed weight, 3¼ hours or 14 minutes per pound.

Here are some recipes for various kinds of stuffing that have come from the kitchens of Martha Logan, well-known home economist for Swift & Co.

Rice Stuffing—Fry 3 tablespoons minced onion in 2 tablespoons fat until tender. Add 6 fresh, broken mushrooms and 1½ cups rice. Simmer until rice is golden in tint, then add 4 cups soup stock, water or tomato juice, 2 teaspoons salt and 1 tablespoon poultry seasoning. Cover and steam 20 minutes. Remove from fire, add 1 beaten egg and mix well. Add any additional seasoning to suit individual taste. Cool before stuffing fowl. Yield, 3 cups stuffing.

Bread Stuffing—Mix together thoroughly, 4 cups toasted bread crumbs, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon poultry seasoning, 2 tablespoons melted butter or chicken fat, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 egg slightly beaten, ¼ teaspoon minced onion and 1-3 cup boiling water. If a dry crumbly dressing is preferred, the water may be omitted.

Orange Stuffing—Mix together thoroughly, 3 cups dry bread crumbs, 1 cup diced apples, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 2-3 cup orange juice, ½ cup seedless raisins 4 tablespoons sugar and salt and pepper. If more moisture is needed, add a little hot water.

Variety of Ways To Cook Pork Is Described

By The Post Food Editor

"TO MARKET, to market, to buy a fat pig!" That's an expression we all heard in nursery days. And we all know that we have to go "home again" and make the happy choice into the pivot dish of the meal. But often it is a matter of concern as how to cook the meat. There's many a pork entree to be fashioned so that the cook will not have to wish there were more kinds of steaks, chops and ribs to be cooked.

The contest winners this week have given suggestions for pork dishes that will please the family and also keep the food budget within the bounds at the same time. Here are the dishes that carried off the ribbons:

Crown Roast of Pork Savory Stuffing

$3 Prize
Mrs. B. C. Philips,
631 Allison Street Northwest

RECIPE: Have a five-pound roast prepared at market with trimmings ground. Mix the ground meat with 2 cups soft bread crumbs, ½ cup chopped celery, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 1 bay leaf, ¼ teaspoon sage, ⅛ teaspoon thyme, 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Pack the center with the dressing. Pack in center of roast. Top each rib with cube of bread to prevent charring. Roast uncovered in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 3¼ hours. Takes about 35 to 40 minutes per pound. Serve with spiced apples.

Spiced apples—Core 8 small red apples. Pare one-third of the way down from top. Stud with whole cloves and broken stick cinnamon. Add water to cover bottom of pan. Cover; bake at 350 degrees until tender, about 25 to 30 minutes. Remove apples to shallow pan. Add ½ cup sugar to juice in baking pan; cook to sirup. Baste apples with sirup; sprinkle each with 1 teaspoon sugar. Glaze under broiler flame.

Pork Pot Pie

$2 Prize
Mrs. Donald Cantwell
Sandy Springs, Md.

RECIPE: Simmer 2 pounds fresh, diced pork about 40 minutes in salted water to cover. Let it cool in the liquid. Place it in deep baking dish, cover with 4 hard-cooked, sliced eggs. Strain the liquid, add 2 small onions, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Thicken with small amount of flour made into a paste with water—1 tablespoon flour to 1-3 cup liquid—and pour it into the pie over the meat and eggs. Cover with plain pie crust rolled ¼ inch thick. Crimp edges, cut gashes in top to permit escape of steam. Bake about 20 minutes in hot oven, 425 degrees, until browned. Serves six.

Stuffed Pork Chops

$1 Prize
Mrs. W. J. Stannard,
4309 Twelfth Street Northeast

RECIPE: Split 4 thick pork chops to the sprone. Spread the inside surface with prepared mustard and fill with raisin dressing. Brown lightly in hot fat in a baking pan. On each chop place ½ an apple that has been cored but not peeled. Bake in a slow oven, 300 degrees, about 2 hours, or until the pork and apples are tender.

Stuffing—Mince 1 onion and and cook in 2 tablespoons butter until a delicate brown. Combine with 2 cups soft bread crumbs, ¼ cup chopped seedless raisins, ½ teaspoon sweet marjoram or poultry seasoning; ½ teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons water. Mix well and stuff chops. serve with pan gravy. Serves four.

Tenderloins With Sweet Potatoes

$1 Prize
Mrs. Harvey P. Baxter,
2928 Ellicott Street

RECIPE: Cut 6 pork tenderloins lengthwise but do not separate. Open and spread with a good poultry dressing seasoned highly. Put the tenderloins together and rub with melted butter and dredge lightly with flour. Place in a baking dish and surround with 6 medium sized sweet potatoes, previously parboiled, and peeled and cut in halves. Quarter, but do not peel, 3 red apples and place around the tenderloins. Dot the sweet potatoes and apples with butter and sprinkle with 3 tablespoons brown sugar. Bake at 375 degrees for about 2 hours. Serve with meat in center of platter, with the apples and potatoes placed about it alternately.

Stuffed Spareribs

$1 Prize
Mrs. Charles W. Wheeler,
1646 Thirty-Third Street Northwest

RECIPE: Remove excess fat from 1 strip spareribs, cracked in center. Dredge with flour and salt and pepper. Combine 2 cups hot mashed potatoes, 1½ cups soft, stale bread crumbs, 1-3 cup melted butter, 1 egg, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon sage, ¼ cup fine-chopped salt pork and 1 onion, chopped fine. Spread this mixture over inside (bony side) of spareribs. Fold on broken line; place the meat in a dripping pan with the heavier meaty side on top. Season again. Bake until meat is tender in moderate oven, 350 degrees. Make a thickened gravy. Serves four to six.

Wine Adds Gay 90's Touch to Oyster Stew For Buffet Supper

Oyster stew, guaranteed to be the hit of any buffet party, is easy to make, using either white wine or Sherry as the final touch of flavor goodness. The stew may be served either in a chafing dish, after the elegant fashion of the early 1900's or in a large soup tureen. Make it this way:

Oyster Stew With Wine

Melt 2 tablespoons butter. Add 1 pint oysters and cook until edges begin to curl. Season with salt and pepper. Scald 1 pint milk and the oyster liquid. Add to the oysters. Heat to boiling point. Remove from heat and add 1 cup sauterne, or any dry white wine. Then add 1 cup cream. Serve very hot with crisp crackers and some cucumber pickles.

MEAT

at noon for the girl who works

The girl who works often unthinkingly neglects a real responsibility to herself and to her job.

The quick, inadequate lunch at noon often makes for quick fatigue in the afternoon and hastens the tired, drawn lines which girls dread.

Many girls are waking up to the fact that a piece of meat at noon has what it takes, and that it gives them many of the important food requirements they need to go through the rest of the business day.

POUNDING a typewriter, powdering your nose, and everything else you do—even breathing—are part of the living process that uses up your proteins.

Proteins must be replaced and replenished regularly, for the body does not store them up.

Meat is a major source, not only of proteins, but of "complete" proteins, containing the 10 essential amino acids (ask your physician how important they are).

Not only does meat—morning, noon or night—furnish complete proteins; but it also is a natural source of certain important minerals, as well as vitamins, which you know you need.

We suggest that the girl who works let meat work for her at her noonday meal . . . AMERICAN MEAT INSTITUTE, Chicago.

Corned Beef Takes On New Honors

That old favorite, corned beef hash takes a bow in a new act. It is the breading that gives a tip-top new flavor interest that will be good for several return engagements. Don't pass this dish up.

Breaded Corn Beef

Chill a pan of corned beef in refrigerator. Remove both ends of the can, push out the meat, cut in thin slices and spread with mustard, if liked. Dip each slice in evaporated milk or thick cream and then in crumbs made by rubbing bread over a grater. Pantry in enough fat to prevent sticking until brown on both sides and serve at once. Garnish with parsley.

Stain Removal Is Not Difficult

Iron rust has a way of getting on various household articles. There are several ways of removing it. Spread stained place over a vessel of actively boiling water and then squeeze lemon juice on stain. After a few minutes rinse fabric and repeat process. Another method is to sprinkle the stain with salt, moisten with lemon juice and place in the sun, add more lemon if necessary.

Mildew too comes into the best regulated households. Such stains should be taken care of immediately. Very fresh stains may be washed with soap and water and then dried in the sun. Soaking in sour milk and then placing in the sun without rinsing is also effective.

Civil Service Maps Job Rule For Draftees

Whether 'New Veterans' To Get Preference To Be Decided Soon

By Edward Ryan

Legal experts at the Civil Service Commission yesterday were probing the question of whether veteran preference benefits will be given to those who complete a year of military training under the Selective Service Act.

The commission, officials said, will probably issue a ruling on the question in two or three days. Their decision will affect the future Federal job chances of employes now in the Government service, and the new draft veterans who may later compete for civilian Government jobs.

Veterans' preferences have been a part of Government employment policies since shortly after the Civil War. The general rule now in force, written by Congress in 1919 and administered by the Civil Service Commission requires that preference in making Government job appointments be given to honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, their widows, and to the wives of injured veterans.

Covers Many Jobs

In practice, this general rule, as a result of Presidential orders and court decisions, has been spread out to include West Point, Annapolis and Coast Guard Academy cadets, World War contract surgeons, Philippine Scouts, some Spanish-American war nurses, and others.

The actual benefits in Government job competition include extra points for veterans on civil service examinations, exemption from the rules apportioning Federal jobs in the District among the States on a population quota system, and frequently exemption from age requirements.

Preference works, too, for veterans already in Government jobs. A veteran cannot be discharged or reduced in salary if his efficiency rating is equal to that of any employe in competition with him who is kept in the service—a rule that gives the employed veteran an inside track during a general reduction in personnel of his agency.

Formal Ruling Asked

Officials at the Civil Service Commission said that they had received several inquiries about preference for those who finish Selective Service training, and the veterans' preference section has asked the commission for a formal ruling on the question.

Their study will go into both the veterans' preference rules and the language of the Selective Service Act, officials said.

New homes for 150 Army and Navy families will be opened today at the first two defense housing projects of the United States Housing Authority, the agency reported yesterday. The new dwellings were designed as low-rent homes for enlisted men and their families. Seventy-four of the homes are at Montgomery, Ala., first of a 424-dwelling project; the other 76 are for Navy personnel at Pensacola, Fla., first of 200 being built there.

Commerce Department officials yesterday called on their 35,000 employes to answer, under oath, this question: "Are you a member of any party or organization which advocates overthrow of the constitutional form of Government of the United States?"

Malcolm Kerlin, administrative assistant to the Secretary, said that the questionnaire was sent out as a routine office action under the Hatch Act clause forbidding payment of Federal salaries to members of organizations advocating overthrow of American constitutional government.

Employes admitting membership in the Communist Party or German Bund will be discharged, Kerlin said that none is suspected. Similar questionnaires have been circulated in other agencies at intervals since early summer.

Combined statistics of the Civil Service Commission and the Selective Service headquarters give these estimates of the number of Government employes likely to be called for military service during the first year:

In the District, about 1,300 employes in the entire service between 14,000 and 15,000.

The national estimated total would be less than 1½ per cent of all Government employes in the executive agencies. Officials pointed out that the average yearly employment turnover throughout the Government is about 17 per cent.

Jobs: Civil Service exams have been started for these jobs at the Norfolk Navy Yard and Naval Air Station: Puncher and shearer, $5.18 to $6.14 a day; boilermaker helper, $4.41 to $5.37 a day; aviation metalsmith, $7.96 to $8.92 a day.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Frustrated Gourmand

How very nice it would be,
To go to a breakfast or lunch,
Where no one would expect any bright remarks,
But would leave me alone to crunch!

How very restful I'd find it,
To be a guest at an eight-course dinner,
And not entertain the man on my left.
Just feed the man who was "inner!"

Today's Social Notes

(From The Truthtown Torch)

Truthtown socialites, already worked to a frazzle by the war and election activities, are nevertheless bravely carrying on with plans for their annual flower show next week at Mausoleum Hall.

Mrs. Wimplegate Wadd, chairman of the event, has rushed back from Long Island to supervise the affair, the details of which are being handled by the executive secretary of the show, Oscar J. Grubb.

Mrs. Arbuthnot Abercrombie has returned from her fall vacation at Ritz Springs to direct her gardeners in arranging her chrysanthemum displays. Mrs. Broadloom Perch will bring down a specialist from New York to plan her shadow box exhibits of asters. Mrs. Parmalee Pigeon has consented to exhibit "Sally Rand," the new chrysanthemum bred by her horticulturist, which is causing so much talk in flower circles.

Despite the fact that she only returned from her summer home at Clamport a few weeks ago, Mrs. Josiah Plush will show many interesting dahlias from her country estate. She is said to have kept in close touch with her gardener all summer by letter and telegram.

Debs' Derby

Betting is even today in hotel lobbies, men's clubs and cocktail lounges on the two leading contenders for title of Glamour Deb No. 1 of the current season. The contenders are Miss Eloise (Snooksy) Gilderlyly, daughter of the Lucius Gilderlylys, and Miss Daphne (Ducky) Dither, daughter of the Doolittle Dithers.

Snooksy and Ducky both attended Miss Smirk's Academy and are now in their junior year at Miss Snoot's Finishing School. Both play tennis and swim at the Boxwood Country Club, ride at Jodhpur's Academy, cocktail at the Hotel Swank, dance at the Spanish Loft. Both are partial to tweeds, necklaces, silver fox chubbies, Hedy Lamarr bobs surmounted by pompadours, husky voices and fire-engine red lips.

More on Mrs. Beetle

Mrs. Bartholomew Beetle, Truthtown's eccentric dowager, upset things generally at the top-fighters' Halloween party Wednesday night at the Plush Sofa Club by coming in the costume of a scrub woman. Guests were supposed to appear in rustic attire and virtually all of them were dressed as picturesque milkmaids, farmhands and cowboys.

Mrs. Beetle not only came as a city scrub woman, but further complicated matters by announcing she was on relief and by wearing a large Roosevelt button. Mrs. Ethelbert Vanderpuffer, who was in charge of the event, protested strenuously Mrs. Beetle's attire, pointing out that the guests were supposed to represent "pleasant rural characters." Mrs. Beetle, however, stood her ground, and is said to have received the greater share of attention from the elderly goateed "farmhands."

Asked for a statement on the incident, Mrs. Beetle said yesterday: "I have been a musical comedy milkmaid at those parties for 30 years and I thought it high time I appeared as something more currently American."

Conservative Riding Clothes Best Form; Swaggering Poses, 'Show-off' Stunts Decried

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

WASHINGTON'S ratio of hard-riding working girls is higher than that in most cities—especially now that both the scenery and the crisp tang in the air have equestriennes dashing from desk to saddle along come Saturday afternoon.

MARSHALL ADAMS

In this town, where the working girl takes every sport or extra-curricular study seriously, the problem of correct dress takes quite a beating upon occasion, and never more than in the name of horseback riding. This is the impression of numerous experts, but one especially qualified to carry the torch for proper dress and etiquette in the saddle is lively Anne Hagner, socialite daughter of Robert D. Hagner and owner of the handsome five-year-old chestnut "Showgirl."

As to Good Manners

Ann tackles the matter of manners first and gives the following rules for avoiding some the horrors of the bridle paths:

Don't mount a horse with the combined aid of stable boy, riding master and escort. Always mount alone, from the left side. Dismount from the right. If you're a novice, get first-aid lessons from a competant instructor before you accept an invitation to a canter in the park.

Don't be a bridle path show-off. If you must do heroics, save them for a private exhibition on a lonely road, not on a busy path where other riders merely want to enjoy some pleasant "posting." Don't be guilty of tricks such as holding hands with an escort or striking a spread-eagle pose with a fellow rider's arm while galloping along. Bad form, as well as dangerous.

Don't crack whips or click crops against boots in an affected Hollywood idea of good horsemanship to attract attention.

Don't smoke while riding and don't flirt or moon over "him" when you think you have the bridle path to yourself.

Don't wear heavy make-up—it's stagy and might run when horse and you get steamed up. ("Showgirl," like many mares, doesn't like the scent of perfume, either).

Don't wear elaborate coiffures. Remember the simplest hair-comb and habit is the best. Hair nets are a boon to naturally blowsy coiffures. Stick to a soft roller for informal canters, to the formal derby (the cork top-unbreakable Stetsons are safest choice) for "showing" or gentleman riding. And please wear something substantial under a sweater, if you must wear a sweater.

Expert Hagner cites the following wardrobe as a perfect one for the girl who takes her riding seriously and not as a cute gesture:

Stick to Browns and Tans

For the fall season, stick to chocolate browns and tans. Choose whipcord breeches and get them made to order, if at all possible—they wear much better if fitted properly from the start (black or green breeches or jodphurs are the bete noire of good equestriennes, according to Anne). High boots, also of the best obtainable quality, should show only three buttons of the breeches while, if jodphurs are chosen, the legs should be rigid, not sloppily loose, so that straps need not be worn to hold jodphur cuffs in place.

The riding coat might be of brown, heather grey or tan tweed, with an open-necked sport shirt for casual wear, a man-tailored shirt with square knot tie or stock for formal use.

Accessories are at a minimum with well-groomed riders. Only a crop tie-pin and string or pigskin gloves are needed. The dangling leather jewelry, peruke hair-bow, snood, tip-tilted fedora, or elaborate Western stud belt are worn only by Bette Davis and the like, in the movies. The real clue to smart equestrian style is neatness, simplicity, plenty of soap and water beauty treatment for the face, and saddle soap for the boots.

New Corsetry Design Attains 'True Balance'

Exercise Necessary To Make Benefits Permanent, However

By Ida Jean Kain

SCORE ONE for the corset industry! The latest innovation is a masterpiece of ingenuity and engineering which slims you down by the simple expedient of straightening you out! Clever construction supplies you with a sense of "true balance" so that you hold the hips down and under, which makes the hipline slimmer; and you hold the tummy up and in, which makes it flat.

This amazing advance in the field of design was explained to me by Miss Marjorie Ronne, buyer for the corset department of a Fifth Avenue store, whose appraisal is based on the deeply rooted conviction that whenever Mrs. Shopper has anything seriously wrong with her figure, her posture is at fault, and also that "every woman considered beautiful does not have perfect features, but she does have a perfect posture!"

Instead of merely compressing the figure to smaller dimensions, the new design provides reinforcement for the proper muscles, so that you find it easier and more natural to stand straight and slim.

To Achieve Same Effect

"Women tell us," says Miss Ronne, "that these girdles make them feel as if the derriere were slapped down in back, the tummy lifted from the pelvis in front."

You could achieve the same effect by standing with the hips tucked under, the lower abdominal wall pulled up. And if your girdle is to do all you expect, it may be necessary for you to take a few posture exercises!

"The idea is not that the girdle will do everything—which is silly—but that the girdle will help the women and the woman must help the girdle," declares Miss Ronne. The expert fitter will not come right out and suggest exercise for you—that is not good psychology—but she will do everything she can to help you visualize the idea of a straight line running from the top of the head down through the center of the body and on down to bisect the ankles. Once you appreciate the importance of this line of true balance, you will be asking for exercises that help you maintain it!

May Suggest Exercises

And, surprisingly enough, your corsetiere may be able to suggest a few of the fundamental rules—stretching of any kind makes you feel like standing tall. Lying on the back on the floor with spine straight gives you the feel of good posture. If you are in an experimental mood, you can find out a great deal for yourself. Stand before a mirror and study your figure in silhouette. The posture in which you look your slimmest is likely to be the correct one.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 23, Has Loved Married Man for Four Years; Now He Talks of Getting Divorce to Wed Her; Is It Wrong, She Asks, to Encourage That Step?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl of 23, and I am in love with a married man ten years my senior. I am the eldest of a family of seven children and their responsibility has been on my shoulders since my father died and my mother got married again, to a lazy drunkard who never worked. Later, mother died; but my stepfather has never done anything to help us children.

When I was 19, I got an office job. But instead of my earnings going for personal needs, I had to turn the money over to my stepfather who squandered it on drink. Since I was not yet 21, I couldn't do anything about it. However, that's rather beside the point. When I got this job, I met the man I speak of. It was love at first sight.

Since he was married, I tried to fight my love for him. But my happiest moments are when we are together. For the last four years I have seen him only a few times, thinking I might forget him. But it's no use. I am more in love with him today than ever. He has asked me to marry him and I have told him I would think it over. Also, he admits he doesn't love his wife and wants a divorce.

Recently I went to see his wife, thinking perhaps we could straighten things out. But as soon as I broached the subject she became hysterical, saying that she "knew what was going on between us." After hearing her accuse me of "breaking up her happy home," I left.

Here is my problem: Would I be wrong in encouraging his divorce from a woman he doesn't love? Or should I sacrifice my future happiness for her? I would appreciate any advice you can give me, and I shall be watching your column daily for an answer.

BEWILDERED.

Man Appears to Be Poor Life Investment

DEAR BEWILDERED: I believe you would be making an investment in "future happiness," rather than "sacrificing" the same, if you were to wash your hands of this man's out-of-order proposal and leave him to his hysterical wife. If, after four years' alleged true love of you, the best he can do by way of proving his devotion is continue to talk about it—then I think you can write him off as a false alarm.

The kind of man who can go on living with one woman, year after year, moodily talking about not loving her and wanting a divorce, while keeping a possessive eye in another woman's direction and assuring her that he does love her and would marry her IF he were free,—well, that kind of man doesn't know what he's going to do, now or later. The chances, I should say, are about 90 to 10 that he'll never do anything forthright or clean-cut to change his situation.

One of the inexplicably cruel aspects of life is that once it gets the upperhand of a given individual, it seems terribly reluctant to let go. It seems to like to keep a strangle hold on said person. As, for instance, with you! You got off to a wretched start, because of family reverses in your adolescence. Then, just over the threshold into young womanhood, you blunder accidentally into that nasty situation of "loving a married man"—as your "first love." It's a tough break, my dear. But don't let it throw you. Pull yourself out of the mess and stay out of it.

Inexorably demand of life—by uncompromisingly clean, courageous conduct, and by high expectations—the best it has to offer, and which it yields eventually to those who stubbornly refuse to be content with a second best, and who are willing to fight their own hunger, at times, in order to win through to their chosen place in the social scheme. Life, as I say, is confronting you with handicaps of an unfair sort;—but if you take them in your stride, refusing to be daunted or derailed by them, you will develop in process a strength of character, a range of understanding, a poise and positive power of personality, that in time will attract to you a due reward,—including companionship of equal merit.

It has been written that you "can't touch pitch without being defiled." And I say you have "touched pitch," in a sense, in your pathetic emotional involvement with this married man. Defilement ensued when you artlessly sought out his wife to reach a meeting of minds on what was best to do. She hysterically lashed out at you with ugly and technically unwarranted accusations, creating a scene that must have been, for you, a shameful experience.

Love should not and does not inveigle the human being into such sordid situations. Any emotion which does isn't worthy to be called love. It is a gaudy counterfeit, which would reveal its meretricious quality if ever put to the every day tests which genuine love passes with flying colors.

So my advice to you is NOT to encourage this man to divorce his wife. Indeed, don't encourage him to believe that you would marry him even if he were divorced. Your stand should be that he is married and therefore lost to you; and you should believe that this barrier to the fulfillment of your current desire is perhaps a blessing in disguise. For my own intuition assures me that it is. I have a deep conviction that much better things are in store for you, if you will wait for them, and work for them, keeping their outlines ever before your eyes.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Women's Page.

PROPER training for the first grade can be as important to a child's future as his preparation for college. And here's why, according to Vesta P. Lynn, kindergarten teacher at the Henry D. Cooke School. "Before a child can learn to read, he must be able to listen attentively with a group, for his first grade teacher will have no time for individual instruction. He must know left from right, and have a sense of sequence. His memory must be trained so that he can remember the difference between similar letters." She explains that "reading readiness" is the principal emphasis in the modern kindergarten, which does much to prevent little Mary from becoming a problem child later on.

VESTA LYNN

For the benefit of parents who want to start their youngsters on the path to reading readiness, Rule 1 is "Avoid forcing them to read prematurely." Parents don't mean to be cruel, Mrs. Lynn realizes, but by pushing a child they cause him to associate reading with unpleasantness and thus delay his progress. Where they can help is in reading aloud, telling stories and patiently answering his questions. They can also train his memory by asking him details about the pictures in his books, and encouraging him to learn Mother Goose rhymes.

A girl visiting friends in New York happened to be alone in their apartment when the telephone company, through a Mr. Slattery, called to check on the listing for its new directory. The two had a friendly chat, in the course of which she gave him the information he needed. Ten minutes later the telephone rang once more. "This is Mr. Slattery again," her new friend said. "Sorry to bother you, but I'm curious about something. As you hung up just now, did I understand you to say, 'Goodby, Butch'?"

TODAY'S CAB DRIVER, noting that his passenger carried a large portfolio, asked her if by any chance she was an artist. The girl said yes, she was. "Then perhaps you can give me some advice about my little girl," he said. "Every once in a while she lies on the floor and refuses to get up. My wife claims it's just temper, but she's so good at drawing that I think maybe it's artistic temperament." The passenger assured him that art school would do the child no harm, but suggested a preliminary course in hairbrush discipline.

Ghosts Walked Early At Mayflower Lounge

Halloween Decorations Up at Lunch Time; Mrs. Bruce Smith, George Abell Among Those Entertaining for Guests

By Hope Ridings Miller.

WITH PUMPKIN FACES grinning from every corner, the Mayflower lounge took on a Halloween atmosphere several hours before the time when ghosts walk and witches ride. Stopping in there for luncheon yesterday, I wondered whether I had lost my way and drifted into parts unknown.

Hope Ridings Miller

"I like soft lights as well as the next person," somebody said out in the darkness, "but this thing of needing a Seeing Eye dog to guide you around at noontime is something else again."

Well, I did manage to find Mrs. Bruce Smith's table because I knew exactly where it would be. Mrs. Smith lives at the Mayflower and entertains in the lounge so frequently a choice spot usually reserved for her has come to be known to her friends as "Florence's corner." Yesterday, she was hostess there at a small luncheon.

Across the room in another luncheon group were George Abell and his guest, Sir Anthony Jenkinson, who recently arrived in Washington. As you probably know, he is coauthor with Leicester Hemingway of a fascinating account, "Caribbean Snoop Cruise," which appears in the current issue of Readers Digest.

Several months ago, Jenkinson and Hemingway—who, incidentally, is the brother of Ernest Hemingway—set sail in a small schooner, the Blue Stream, for a trip through the Caribbean. Their report of Nazi intrigue "in America's front yard" is something you shouldn't miss.

Coming here for a short stay, Sir Anthony is being widely entertained. He has a host of Washington friends, and I won't be surprised if he lingers on here longer than he has planned.

DEBUTANTE DATA: Mr. and Mrs. George A. Garrett have cards out for the dance at the Sulgrave Club, November 30, in honor of the latter's daughter, Elaine Darlington . . . Cynthia Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, who made her formal bow to society at a tea early in the summer, is now majoring in English and dramatics at Bennington College in Vermont. Come Christmas, however, she will rejoin the debutante whirl here and will be feted at a party given by her parents sometime during the holidays . . . Georgiana Flather, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Flather, will be guest of honor at a dance given by her parents on January 2 at Grasslands. She will also make her bow at the Baltimore Bachelors' Cotillion on December 2 . . . And that reminds me of two other current debs whose names are on the Cotillion list—Lucy Claggett and Elizabeth Moncure Lyon . . . Now busy at her studies at the Finch school in New York, pretty Jean Waggaman will be home to enjoy the round of festivities during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. Tentative plans are under way for her debut late in December.

WASHINGTON FRIENDS of Mr. and Mrs. William Phelps Eno will be delighted to know that they are planning to return to Washington the latter part of this month to reopen their home at 1717 N Street. Meanwhile, they are lingering on a few more weeks at Judah Rock, their magnificent estate at Saugatuck, Conn.

Mrs. Eno is working hours on end for Willkie these days, but by her own admission, politics is not her chief interest. An accomplished artist, she recently accepted the invitation of the Studio Guild to send her exhibition of tropical bird paintings on a tour of the United States. They will be shown this month in Amherst, Mass., at the Jones Library, and at the Massachusetts State College; and in December, they will be taken South, as far as New Orleans, which is Alberta Eno's birthplace.

Lavish praise from art critics was heaped on Mrs. Eno after her first solo exhibition of bird paintings at the Studio Guild galleries in New Yord last spring. The show was then sent to Redding, Conn., for the opening of the Country Art Center of the Studio Guild, of which Mrs. Eno was a founder.

Retiring Chilean Ambassador Entertains at Dinner Party

The retiring Ambassador of Chile and Senora de Cabero, who are being widely feted at farewell parties, turned the tables last evening and entertained at a dinner party at the embassy. They plan to sail on November 16 for their homeland.

Among those at the dinner last night were the Minister of Development for Chile and Senora de Schnake, Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army and Mrs. George Marshall, the commander in chief of the Chilean army, Gen. Oscar Escudero, who with several of his countrymen has been here on a tour of American defenses; Vice Admiral and Mrs. Juan T. Gerken, chief of the Chilean Naval Commission to this country; Brig. Gen. and Mrs. J. A. Crane, Col. Enrique Blanlot, Capt. and Mrs. Carlos Cortes, the Air Attache of the Embassy and Senora de Saenz, Col. and Mrs. E. E. MacMorland, Col. and Mrs. Claude M. Adams and Maj. and Mrs. Guerillmo Marin.

Among the many parties being given for the popular Ambassador and Senora de Cabero is the cocktail party at which Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Cajigas will be hosts on November 8.

Espils to Honor Senora Guerrero

The Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Espil will entertain at a dinner tonight in honor of Senora Ana Rosa de Martinez Guerrero, of Buenos Aires.

Chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, Senora de Guerrero will arrive in Washington today in preparation for the conference of the commission here in mid-November. She has been in New York since her arrival in this country. In Manhattan she was met by Miss Mary Winslow, of Washington.

Mexican Embassy Issues Bids for Ball

Invitations have been issued to the Pink and Black ball at the Mexican Embassy on November 15. With an eye toward the picturesque the young hostess, Senorita Erma Castillo Najera, has decreed that her feminine guests wear either pink or black frocks.

Senorita Najera, daughter of the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera, always gives unusual parties, whether they are costume balls or dramatic affairs.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

Glass, aluminum, stainless steel—practically everything except wood—are going into the construction of the building which will grace the new airport at Gravelly Point. At the big Junior League luncheon the other day Mrs. Pilson Warren was describing her adventures in decorating the center, which should be one of the most outstanding in the country.

DUDLEY HARMON

The diningroom, which she is "doing," is, like the building, to be completely modern (NOT modernistic—decorators hate that word). A staircase with a crystal balustrade will lead to the restaurant, which will seat 300. Three walls are to be made entirely of glass so that patrons will have an unobstructed view of the planes arriving and taking off. Outside is to be a terrace with room for 350.

MRS. WARREN is designing everything for the restaurant, even down to the knives and forks, the china is to harmonize with the general decor, and will be gray on white, with a Federal pattern of stars. The cutlery will be finished in stainless steel. Chairs and tables are to be either wood or aluminum, which depending somewhat on the price.

MRS. WARREN calls herself an "interior designer." "The word decorator got to mean just any woman with time on her hands who went around to friends' houses draping chintz" says she. Mrs. Warren spent several years of hard work preparing for her profession, taking courses in architecture as well as design. She spent a year and a half in Williamsburg studying the famous old buildings. She has just finished "doing" the new home on Kalorama Circle of Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery Blair.

SWEDEN'S biggest banker is in Washington and is staying at the legation. He is Marcus Wanenburg, who is also a leading tennis player and a favorite partner of spry King Gustav.

The most practical way of getting to Swede. these days is via Lisbon. Travelers from America go there first and then take a plane for Stockholm.

SPEAKING of things Swedish, do you remember the huge, 700 ton wooden horse which stood outside the Swedish pavilion at the World's Fair? During the fair's closing days, when pavilion managements were eager to sell whatever could be carted away, a Texas rancher fell in love with the horse and bought it to decorate his home in the West.

ODDS AND ENDS: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bruce will be among those entertaining at radio parties on election night . . . James Acheson is planning a trip to Jamaica to recuperate from an illness . . . When Paderewski arrives in New York next week, he will be met at the dock by Polish Ambassador Count Potocki. The famous pianist sailed from Lisbon a few days ago He is expected to make his headquarters in New York this winter.

Jessie Kauffmann To Make Bow at Tea November 30

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hay Kauffmann have issued invitations to the tea at which their daughter, Jessie, will make her bow to society. The party will take place at the Kauffmann home, 2442 Belmont Road, from 5 to 7 o'clock, November 30.

Miss Kauffmann, who was graduated from the Westover School last year, is now a freshman at Bryn Mawr College. During the Christmas holidays—on December 28, to be exact—she will be feted at a dance given by her parents.

Wileys Honored At Cocktails

Dr. Eugene de Savitsch entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon in honor of the United States Minister to Latvia and Mrs. John Wiley, who are in town for several weeks. The Wileys will be off to New York for a brief whirl soon.

The late hour, from 6 until 8 o'clock, allowed a number of gentlemen to attend the party. Among the guests were Senator Joseph Guffey, Jacques Truelle, of the French Embassy; the First Secretary of the British Embassy, J. G. Foster; George Grant Mason, jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Boncesco, Mr. and Mrs. Eugen Teodorescu, Mrs. Eugene Skinner, Prof. and Mrs. James A. Cahill, Prof. and Mrs. Wallace M. Yater, Dr. Linn Fenimore Cooper, Dr. H. H. Schoenfeld, Dr. John Trenis, Mr. and Mrs. W. Newbold Walmsley, Mr. and Mrs. Loy Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Wailes, Dr. and Mrs. Leo Pasvolsky, and Carmel Offie.

Miss Wallington Sets November 6 As Nuptials Date

Miss Marjorie Wallington, daughter of Lieut. Col. Edward C. Wallington, has selected Wednesday, November 6, as the date for her marriage to Lieut. Howard Wilson Penney, of Fort Belvoir, Va., son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Penney, of Big Beaver, Mich.

The wedding will take place at 3 o'cloc': in the afternoon at Walter Reed Memorial Chapel. Mrs. A. D. Starbird will be matron of honor and only attendant for her sister.

Jean de Sibours Entertain at Tea

Gathering in members of the family and a few intimate friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jean de Sibour entertained at tea following the christening of their young son, Jay Raymond Louis.

The christening took place in St. Matthew's Cathedral with the Rev. William Stricker officiating.

Miss Griffis Wed To John Latouche

Of interest to Madeira School classmates of the former Miss Theodora Griffis was the news of her marriage in New York on Wednesday to John Treville Latouche, American writer and composer of "Ballad for Americans." The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothea N. Griffis and of Stanton Griffis.

The ceremony took place in the chapel of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Ralph Nesbit officiated. Miss Joan Slutzker, of South Orange, N. J., was her only attendant, and Paul Frederick Bowles, of Boston, was best man. Mr. Latouche, who is a son of Mrs. E. E. Tupper Latouche and the late Burford Latouche, attended Columbia Uuniversity. His bride studied at Cornell University of which her father is a trustee.

Pioneer Girl Scout Tells of First Troop

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

The founding of the Girl Scouts of America by Juliette Lowe in Savannah, Ga., in 1912, was described by a member of the original troop, Mrs. Carl Ingman Aslakson yesterday in a radio broadcast in observance of the founder's anniversary. Later Troop 75 of Bethesda, of which Mrs. Aslakson is leader, gave a tea at the District headquarters in observance of the occasion, with Mrs. C. Leslie Glenn, third national vice president, as guest of honor.

Mrs. Aslakson who, as Marian Corbin, was a member of Mrs. Lowe's first troop 28 years ago, recalled that it held its meetings in a carriage house in the rear of Mrs. Lowe's home. This was furnished with a little wooden table and kitchen chairs and there on a one-burner gas plate, the girls did their first cooking, making miht candies.

Soon they had their own camp on property owned by Mrs. Lowe, a few miles out of Savannah, near a salt water creek. There they had day hikes, cooked over a campfire and learned woods lore from an old naturalist who was overseer.

"Compare tihs," said Mrs. Aslakson, "with the work my troop recently completed for their cooking and food badges. A qualified home economist was furnished by a local dairy to explain nutrition, the buying of foods, and planning and preparing meals. A bus was furnished for a trip to a modern dairy and other trips were taken to markets and stores. The Department of Agriculture furnished information on pure food laws.

"For overnight camping trips we use Rockwood, an old estate on Conduit Road, which is owned by the Girl Scout organization. There the girls have campfires and do real out-of-doors cooking."

"Little or nothing was done in the early days about arts and crafts. Taking pictures with a box camera constituted our art work."

"Today my troop has for their arts and crafts project the making of marionettes. One of the foremost manufacturers of these little puppets made a special trip to Washington to demonstrate the making of marionettes. The girls will write and stage their own plays."

Mrs. Aslakson said that in the beginning the organization was "run on a shoestring." Any money that was necessary was furnished by Mrs. Lowe. The girls contributed little because allowances were small in those days and girls were not supposed to earn money. She recalled that at one time Mrs. Lowe sold a string of pearls to pay some urgent debts. She financed the entire organization from 1912 to 1916.

"She was very deaf and when she approached friends to whom she had assigned tasks, she let this affliction stand her in good stead. While they were protesting they could not possibly do the job, she would turn to them and say, 'Fine, then I will count on you.' From a membership of 11 in Mrs. Lowe's first Girl Guide Troop, the organization has grown to its present membership of 630,000."

One of the guests at the tea yesterday was Countess de Castelane, sister of Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, who has recently arrived from Europe, and who had been keeping the organization together in France until war conditions made it impossible.

Women's Groups To Map Christmas Seal Campaign

Representatives of the various organizations of women volunteering to conduct sales booths for the coming annual Christmas Seal campaign of the D. C. Tuberculosis Association will hold their first business meeting at 10 a. m., Monday, in the board room of the association, 1022 Eleventh Street. The work and methods of the campaign will be explained by Mrs. Lee Joachim, who is again in charge of the booth teams for the association.

Among the organizations which will help in the Christmas Seals campaign this year by operating booths in the larger stores, bank lobbies, theaters and other public places, are:

American Legion Auxiliary, Chevy Chase Women's Club, Chi Omega Sorority, Disciples of Christ Church, Eight and Forty, Emergency Hospital Nurses, Housekeeper's Alliance, Junior Alliance, Junior Group of D. A. R., Kappa Kappa Gamma Alumnae, Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority, Ladies' Auxiliary of Jewish War Veterans, Omega Phi Delta Sorority, Petworth Women's Club, Pi Beta Phi Sorority, Senior Hadassah, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Starmont Aid Society, Sweet Briar College Alumnae Club, Twenty-Five Club, Women's City Club.

Assistance also will be given by the District Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Citizens Club Flag Dedicated Tonight

The flag presented to the Golden Jubilee Junior American Citizens Club of the Children's Emergency Home will be dedicated tonight at 7:30 at 624 Indiana Avenue Northwest.

The flag was the gift of Mrs. Ford Young, jr., regent of Livingston Manor Chapter of the D. A. R. Mrs. T. J. Gattis, vice regent of the chapter, will make the presentation in the absence of Mrs. Young from the city.

Mrs. Thomson to Speak

Mrs. Charles Thomson, a member of the board of the National Institute of Immigrant Welfare, will speak today at the Woman's National Democratic Club, discussing her work with the foreign-born in New York City and on Ellis Island.

Mrs. Hoes To Entertain

Mrs. Gouverneur Hoes will entertain at a luncheon tomorrow at Loungeriviera at Hotel 2400 in the second of a recently inaugurated series of weekly events.

Others entertaining at the Lounge Riviera that day will be Mrs. T. D. Webb, Mrs. H. P. Huse, Mrs. George Langdon Whitford, Miss Louise Campbell, Mrs. Elizabeth Pratt, Mrs. Frank Barker, Mrs. Yarnell and Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner.

Gutridge-Purdum Nuptials Are Held In Grace Church

The marriage of Miss Eloise S. Gutridge and E. Ralph Purdum took place at 4 o'clock yesterday in New Market, Md., at the Grace Episcopal Church, with the Rev. William Vauthier officiating.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gutridge, wore a wine velvet gown and matching accessories. Mr. Purdum is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Purdum, of Mount Airy, Md. Upon their return the couple will make their home at Mount Airy.

District Chapter D.F.P.A. To Hold Luncheon

The District Chapter, Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America, will hold a patriots' luncheon at the Highlands today. Mrs. C. A. Swann Sinclair, State regent of the Virginia D. A. R. and past national president of the C. A. R., will be guest of honor and will speak on "Gadsby's Tavern."

Mrs. William Bonar Bell, president D. C. D. F. P. A., will preside at the business meeting following the luncheon. Mrs. Sol Lansburgh, corresponding secretary of the chapter is chairman of arrangements.

Black and White Ball to Introduce A New Waltz

"A Black and White Waltz" will be introduced for the first time in this country on November 18, at the Black and White ball at the Mayflower Hotel.

At the supper hour two professional dancers, Dorothy Pond and Dennis Scudder, of New York, will perform the new dance, Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, jr., has announced.

Entertaining at a dinner party preceding the ball will be Maj. and Mrs. Gist Blair, who will fete their debutante daughter, Miss Laura Blair.

J. D. Halls Visit Here

Mr. and Mrs. James Donald Hall, who were married in Cleveland on October 19, visited here for several days en route to Miami, Fla.

Mrs. Hall, the former Miss Carolyn Griese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Griese, of Lakewood, Ohio, is the cousin of Mrs. John Joslin, of this city. The couple spent a week in the Berkshires before continuing South. They plan to fly to Nassau before returning to their home in Ohio.

Madame Chairman

By SUZANNNE

A LETTER from Elizabeth Hawes, liaison officer between the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs and the British Federation of Coroptimist Clubs, which was read by Mary Bourke, president of the local club, at this week's meeting, gave an inspiring picture of the attitude of the British.

Expressing great appreciation to the American Soroptimists who have homes and welcomes ready for all the children of their British club members who may be sent over, she urged them to be patient and to understand the problems which have delayed the children's coming. She said every day brought changes in circumstances which compelled altered decisions.

The American Soroptimists would be glad and proud, she continued, to see how those "over there" arrived at work in the mornings, "spick and span after 12 hours in an air raid shelter." The chief problem, she said, was getting to work as nearly on time as possible in spite of difficulties. Everyone, she added, was keeping a cheerful, confident spirit and stanch morale.

WHEEL OF PROGRESS—The Wheel of Progress, a women's patriotic organization, has reelected Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell as its president general.

Other officers are: Mrs. Lucia Ramsey Maxwell, first vice president; Mrs. Amos A. Fries, second vice president; Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, third vice president; Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, fourth vice president; Mrs. Virginia White Speel, fifth vice president; Miss Florence Adams, secretary-treasurer; Miss Marion Smith, assistant secretary; Dr. E. Elizabeth Bateman, chaplain; Mrs. Clara M. Feister, registrar; Mrs. Alice M. Burke, historian; Mrs. Alfred Anthony, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Jessie W. Nicholson, regent for the District.

The society passed a resolution urging the substitution of the McGuffey Readers for all readers now used in the public schools and another, asking the Senate to pass the Allen bill, calling for the deportation of Harry Bridges, and protesting against the amendment which the Senate attached to it.

RECEPTION TOMORROW—Louisa Adams Chapter, of the D. A. R., will honor Mrs. Harry C. berholser, State regent; Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, vice president general; Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, honorary vice president general, and the State officers of the District at a reception to be held at the Chapter House, 1732 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, tomorrow, from 8:30 to 10 p. m.

Mrs. Frank E. Hickey is regent of the chapter. The committee on arrangements consists of Miss Margaret Smith, chairman; Miss Edith Aldridge and Mrs. Brinkley E. Callicott.

OPENING DINNER—Beta Chapter, Phi Delta Delta women's legal fraternity, will open its social activities for this season with a forum dinner to be held tomorrow evening, at 6 o'clock, at the American Association of University Women's clubhouse, 1634 I Street Northwest.

The speakers will be Masinia Rulien, who will discuss "Fifth Column Activities in the United States," and Margaret Heimiller, who will speak on "The Danger in ur Gold." Both are members of Beta Chapter.

Those on the committee in charge of arrangements are Cornelia Hamilton, Sylvia Hukriede, Berniece Jane Hicks, Nora Rentz, Catherine M. Shelton and Pearl E Phillips, chairman.

Strange Life Found in Va. Caverns

D. C. Explorers Discover Blind Shrimp, Unknown Flora in Depts

New Market, Va., Oct. 31.—Penetrating Virginia's Endless Caverns to a point never before reached, a Washington party of seven members of the Explorers Club of America tonight reported discovery of various specimens of unknown flora and a species of shrimp whose eyesight has been lost after thousands of years of imprisonment in a subterranean pool.

Three members of the party, led by Capt. H. T. Cowling, photographer and employe of the Labor Department in Washington, emerged from the cave at 3 p. m. today to report their discovery after crawling and wriggling to a point 500 feet below the surface and 5 miles into the side of Massanutten Mountain.

Four members of the group which pushed deeper into the tortuous limestone fissures and calcium formations placed in the second geologic era some 390,000,000 years ago were still groping their way slowly through hazardous chasms late tonight, Capt. Cowling reported to The Post by phone.

"This quartet must have gone 7 or 8 miles," Capt. Cowling said.

The veteran explorer said that at noon the party found a marker noting the hitherto farthest point reached by another Explorers Club group led by Merle Lavoy, of New York City, in 1925.

After several more hours of progress, Capt. Cowling, Seward Cramer, of New York, editor of the Explorers' Club Journal, and J. S. Vay, representative of the United States Geological Survey on the expedition, decided to return to the surface with some of their discoveries.

Continuing were Richard O. Marsh, of the Smithsonian Institution; Lieut. Wallace B. Barlow, United States Army; Leland S. Ried, Labor Department, and Gordon Brown, a co-owner of the caverns.

The blind shrimp, Capt. Cowling said, were found in a dark pool, remnant of an underground river which had changed its course and millions of years ago left the pool to be fed by water dripping from stalagmites and stalactites. Soluble dyes were used to trace the course of the river for a distance of more than a mile, Capt. Cowling said.

Yesterday the party made a preliminary descent in preparation for today's venture which proved so fruitful. Capt. Cowling said that another journey into the cave will be made tomorrow. The party expects to return to Washington Friday night.

District Youth Concert Series Begin January

The most extensive series of concerts for Washington school children in the orchestra's history will be presented January through March, officials of the National Symphony Orchestra announced yesterday.

While the number of concerts has not yet been decided, the series will include more than the 11 presented last year, it has been decided.

The first group of concerts will be given in late January while the latter half of the series will be presented in March. The majority of the programs will be played in junior and senior high schools throughout the city, and several, it is expected, in Constitution Hall.

The orchestra held its first rehearsal yesterday morning in that auditorium, whose use has been donated to the orchestra for a nominal sum by the Daughters of the American Revolution. Beginning today rehearsals will be held daily until the opening of the regular concert season of which the students' concerts are a part.

First concert will be presented Wednesday at 8:45 p. m. at Constitution Hall. Sergei Rachmaninoff, noted pianist-composer, will be soloist.

Burglar Loots Laundry; Note Says He's Sniper

A burglar ransacked a Palace Laundry branch at 1608 U Street Northwest early yesterday, stole a new outfit of clothes and left a note signed "The Sniper."

Miss Ruth Shugrue, 1825 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest, manager of the store, found the note when she opened the place. It said: "Dear Madam: You see I need clothes. Thanks for them. The Sniper." A postscript said: "I wouldn't tell the police—I know you."

The note was turned over to police and was compared with two previous messages similarly signed. The handwriting differed, it was said.

The clothing stolen from the store included a tan suit, a topcoat and five white shirts, valued at $20.

Woman Beaten, Youth Arrested

Mrs. Margaret Decker, 61, of 932 G Street Northwest, was beaten over the head with a blackjack last night by a colored youth employed by her. When he attempted to steal her purse, Mrs. Decker told police, she resisted and he ran from the house.

Police later arrested, on suspicion, an 18-year-old colored boy who was carrying a blackjack. Mrs. Decker was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated for lacerations to the scalp and a bruised left hand.

There Was a Hot Time in the Ol' Town Last Night

IT WAS EVERYBODY'S NIGHT—Left—Drum majorettes strutting along Georgia Avenue in Northwest Halloween parade. Bethesda, Md., too, celebrated. Mary Elizabeth Lewis, 8, of 6915 Arlington Road, wore a costume judged the best in that community and received a cup from Camille Burrows, 10, of 3610 Stanford Street Northwest, daughter of Gordon Burrows, donor of the cup. Judges said 5-year-old Runeette Marie Parkhouse (in photo second from right), of 4824 Chevy Chase Boulevard, had the prettiest costume in her age group. Youngsters in Southwest Washington were not to be outdone and staged a party in the Thomson School, Twelfth and L Street Northwest. George Elliott and Anita Netherwood (at extreme right) contended for prizes in the apple-bobbing contest there

Two Elderly Persons Hurt In Traffic

Two elderly pedestrians were injured seriously in Washington traffic last night.

John Marshall, 68, of 1629 L Street Northeast, was struck by an automobile while crossing in the 1000 block of Bladensburg Road Northeast. At Casualty Hospital he was found to have suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, head injuries and possible internal injuries. Police said the automobile was operated by Charles G. Demond, 31, of 1629 California Street Northwest.

Emma Spaulding, 70, of 502 B Street Southeast, suffered lacerations of the scalp and a contused shoulder when she was struck by a truck at Thirteenth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Southeast. The truck, police reported, was driven by Everett J. Wilson, colored, 22, of 1913 L Street Northwest.

A girl who was not immediately identified received minor injuries in a three-car collision at New Hampshire Avenue and Hamilton Street Northwest. Police said an automobile operated by George W. Page, 19, of 1342 Columbia Road Northwest, collided with another driven by Wade W. Moses, 49, of 151 U Street Northwest, ramming it into a parked machine. Page was charged at Sixth Precinct Station with reckless driving.

Capital News In Brief

How to Regain Favor After Meeting a Skunk

How may one resume one's place in polite society after making accidental contact with an injuriated skunk?

Ernest P. Walker, president of the Biological Society of Washington, will give the answer to that question tomorrow night at an open meeting of the society, it was announced yesterday.

He will demonstrate what is said to be a practical deodorization method far less drastic than burning one's clothes or bathing in grain alcohol. The program will be held at the Cosmos Club, beginning at 8 p. m.

Rat-Killing Drive Proves Success

"Best luck ever," is the way Mrs. Albert A. Fenderson, director of Temple Center, described the organization's latest rat-killing campaign yesterday. She estimated that hundreds of rodents have succumbed to the poisoned hamburger patties distributed last week by members of the center's Mother's Club.

Temple Center is at Tenth and N Streets Northwest. The rat poison was set out in houses, yards and alleys within a three-block radius.

Mrs. Fenderson said another death-dealing batch will be prepared next Tuesday at the center by the boys and girls of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, who also will distribute the patties.

Navy Yard Intruder Taken to Gallinger

Police locked up last night a 32-year-old white man who was found wandering around the Washington Navy Yard, then removed him to Gallinger for observation.

The man, who police believe entered by climbing the Sixth Street gate, could not account for his presence in the yard.

Ruth Chatterton To Be Honored

Ruth Chatterton, who is playing at the National Theater this week, will be guest of honor today at 4:30 p. m. at Hotel 2400 Sixteenth Street for benefit of Opportunity House. Mme. Orlica Dreszer will sing.

Halloween Revelers Tie Up D. C. Traffic

—It must be reported—stench bomb.

It wasn't a big parade, but the 500 marchers made up the lack of manpower with vociferous bursts of enthusiasm all the way from Georgia Avenue and Quincy Street to the Macfarland Junior High School at Webster Street and Iowa Avenue.

Thousands of spectators lined the parade route to cheer for the "Queen of Halloween," 17-year-old pretty and brunette Nancy Shenk, and her court; a clown band and roller-skating troupe and scores of youngsters dressed in anything that suited their imaginations.

The youthful marchers became so intent in entertaining the crowd, that at Webster Street and Iowa Avenue, the parade broke into two sections, one vigorously marching north, the other marching south. Police managed to rejoin the paraders and guide them toward the reviewing stand in front of the school, but so great was the press of the crowd eager to get a close view of the queen, that the marchers were enveloped by the spectators.

The queen and her court had taken places of honor on the school steps but they too quickly merged with the throng and disappeared when someone dropped the fume bomb. Everybody then headed for Roosevelt High School for dancing and costume contests.

Police, whose normal force was trebled to 1,400 by midnight, kept within sight of most show windows, but house panes and street lights underwent a general assault by small throw-and-run blitz forces.

An egg was also smashed. It was a rotten egg, and it splattered all over a woman's face, she reported indignantly to police headquarters. The victim was a passenger on a trolley, and the egg flew in at Fifth and G Streets Northwest.

In the vicinity of Eighteenth and Summit Streets Northwest, a band of youths "borrowed" a wrench from a fire station and started on a round of fire-plug opening. Street car tracks were greased to bedevil motorists; and parked automobiles were liberally soaped with Halloween symbols.

Traffic suffered paralysis in several sections of the city, particularly in the vicinity of Thirteenth and F Northwest, and Twelfth and H Northeast. Police were unable to explain the rush of traffic, except spontaneous desire to participate in the merriment.

It was no holiday for the firemen, either. False alarms started tumbling in at 10 p. m. and until past midnight the engines screamed in one section of the town or another looking for fires that weren't there. At the same time other practical jokers kept police racing to imaginary holdups.

But there were few arrests. And at an early hour this morning Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, assistant superintendent of police, tersely described the situation as "comparatively quiet."

Streets were showered by confetti as the celebrators insisted on demonstrating their high spirits. On downtown F Street grotesquely dressed adults competed for laughs with colorfully costumed youngsters. Detectives also mingled with the spectators, keeping on the alert for pickpockets, who were not likely to be in costume.

More than a score of organized programs, sponsored by civic and youth organizations, were held over the city. The celebration at the Takoma Recreation Center, Fifth and Whittier Streets Northwest, was punctuated with a demonstration by National Guardsmen, who turned on two machine guns and two anti-aircraft guns in an imaginary skirmish.

In Arlington County the streets were as quiet as if the Pied Piper of Hamelin had just passed through. The authorities had tried a new trick, and it worked.

More than 2,500 county children were picked up in trucks, given a hayride, and then brought to Ballston Stadium for tug-of-war, apple bobbing, catching the greased pig, and the other traditional games.

Lone casualty reported at the stadium was 15-year-old Virginia Duck, whose right leg was broken when she fell and was stepped on. She was taken to Georgetown Hospital.

More than 500 youngsters from the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area frolicked at a party given by the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Lion's Club at the Bethesda Parking Center.

Metropolis View Citizens Build Enviable Record in 3 Years

This is the thirty-third article in a series about citizens' associations in the District of Columbia and their efforts to make the community a better place in which to live.

Though only 3 years old, the Metropolis View Citizens Association, has built a record of accomplishments which is the envy of many of the District's older associations.

Since its organization in August, 1937, in the home of its current president, Vincent P. Boudren, of 310 Bryant Street Northeast, it has been responsible for:

Paving of Seventh Street Northeast, between Franklin Street and Michigan Avenue;

Erection of the Franklin Street Bridge;

Paving of Lincoln Road from Franklin Street to Rhode Island Avenue;

Obtaining lights for alleys in the Metropolis area;

Paving Douglas Street Northeast;

Erection of numerous "Stop" signs at street intersections;

And cooperation in obtaining the addition to Crosby Noyes School.

The Edgewood Playground, recreational center for the area, was promoted by the late William R. Clements, a disabled war veteran, before the association was formed. Through the efforts of the Metropolis View organization since then, it is now nearly complete, except for a shelter house which it is trying to obtain this year.

First on the association's program for the coming year is a school for the sector. The proposed site is a plot owned by the District at Third and Evarts Streets Northeast.

Requests also are being made for improved bus service, utilizing latest type facilities of the Capital Transit Co.

Twenty years ago a band of gypsies camped in the area now served by the association, according to President Boudren. Less than 10 houses were located then in the now densely populated area between Rhode Island Avenue and Catholic University, he added.

Rapid growth since has been paralleled by an increase in utilities and services, so that now the only major need for the sector is for a new elementary school, the president reported.

Monthly meetings of the association are held on the first Mondays in the Crosby Noyes School. Officers include Vincent P. Boudren, president; Barton Margerum, vice president; Mrs. Marie Higdon, secretary, and Mrs. Joseph Montgomery, treasurer.

Hi-Yo, Silver! Police Catch Runaway Horse

Without benefit of lariat or ten-gallon hats, two policemen corraled a runaway horse in a shopping center in the 2500 block Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast yesterday.

The animal, dragging a cart, had bolted in the 3100 block Pennsylvania Avenue, throwing his driver, an unidentified colored man to the street. The horse was believed frightened by the backfire of a truck.

Policemen K. T. Stein and F. D. Smith headed off the horse in a squad car.

War Dept. Fire Blamed On Cigarette

Carelessness, Not Sabotage Cause, Probers Agree; Damage Light

Two agencies investigating the War Department fire early Wednesday agreed last night that "an act of carelessness" was responsible.

Both groups—the District Fire Department and Public Building Administration—dismissed rumors of sabotage as "unfounded." Robert Trussell, fire marshal of the PBA, said he was inclined to believe a carelessly dropped cigarette started the spectacular blaze which destroyed the top floor of a Munitions Building wing.

District Fire Marshal Calvin Lauber closed his investigation yesterday, saying a dozen things could have caused the fire, but there was "nothing to indicate it was set deliberately."

"I don't expect," he added, "we'll ever find out just what caused it. But it definitely was an act of carelessness, rather than incendiarism."

Trussell said he would wind up his probe today and would complete a report some time tomorrow.

Meanwhile, a military board of inquiry, headed by Col. Oswald Saunders, commander of the Twelfth Infantry, Arlington Cantonment, continued its investigation. The War Department said last night the board would probably file a report the first of next week.

The blaze, discovered by building guards shortly after 4 a. m., quickly spread through a new "penthouse" addition to the building recently completed as part of expanding defense activities. Damage was estimated at $150,000—although the military inquiry board is expected to boost this estimate because of water damage to rooms beneath the extra floor.

Advance Gifts Unit of Chest Redoubles Efforts

J. Clifford Folger, chairman of the advace gifts unit of the Community Chest, called for redoubled efforts in the face of the "major distraction" of the political campaign in a letter to the 129 persons working in the unit.

Returns from "big gifts" solicitors this year have resulted in a net increase of 1.24 per cent over last year, he said.

Because of the death of several contributors of large amounts since last year's campaign "we started $20,000 behind last year," he declared. The Chest campaign will officially get under way November 13.

'Third Finger, Left Hand' Is Love in a Muddle!

Myrna Loy and Melvyn Douglas Costarred In Amusing Marital Comedy at Capitol; Sibyl Bowan a Smash Hit in Stage Revue

MYRNA LOY FINDS NO OPPORTUNITY to pester a "thin man" in "Third Finger, Left Hand." The tables are completely turned against her. A robust and determined young artist pesters her to the point where there hardly could have been any other title for the new film comedy that opened yesterday on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater.

BELL

Miss Loy is a metropolitan career woman who has pretended to be married as "job insurance" and to shoo away persistent suitors. In attempting to meet an old girl friend, returning from abroad, she stumbles into the stateroom of the painter, on the last of his uppers, and swishes away the great art patron who is about to purchase his canvases. In atonement, she drives a harder bargain with the connoisseur than her victim possibly could have managed and so lets herself in for a lot of trouble and that romantic business about the third finger. Running down the matter of her marriage, her protege discovers it to be a colossal fake and himself blithely moves into her swank Westchester home in the guise of the long-missing groom, "divorced" practically on the day of a wedding that never came off.

There, I submit, is a nice mess for any girl. Especially since there is a handsome young lawyer fellow who also loves her with a forlorn and honest passion. So there seems to be no way out except for Margot Sherwood "Merrick" and Jeff Thompson to be married—for the sake of her reputation in the eyes of her gossipy friends—and immediately divorced in order that she may marry Phil Booth. That doesn't work out so well, either—for Phil.

The yarn, of course, is wholly preposterous, but it is played so deftly and lightly that one doesn't mind its more fantastic moments. It is always genial and mildly amusing and, at times, sets off comedy rockets that soar to explosive heights of hilarity. Among these may be included the bogus bridegroom's invasion of the ancestral manse, Margot's assumption of a tough shopgirl's Brooklynese, to shock Thompson's Ohio friends as breathlessly as he had startled some of hers, and Ernest Whitman's transformation from a Pullman porter into a learned legalite to gum up a "final" property settlement.

The major burden of the charade rests solidly on the shoulders of Miss Loy and Melvyn Douglas, the Jeff Thompson of the frivolous goings-on. Both are quite in their element in this sort of thing. The rest of the cast are a cut or two above the material allotted them and the meager demands made upon their proved capabilities. Raymond Walburn and Bonita Granville, as Margot's father and sister, do the simple scenes assigned them in fine fettle, but Donald Meek is cast in no more than a "bit" part and Felix Bressart finds his talents only a little more employed. Lee Bowman, in the role of Phillip Booth, doesn't get going until comparatively late in the action, but makes up for lost time in a bibulous incident with Mr. Douglas and in the legal wrangle that proved so futile. The dark-skinned Ernest Whitman steps up into the front-running as the porter-attorney, who turns the tide toward the chubby little kid with the bow and arrow. Sidney Blackmer and others of note share Mr. Meek's obscurity.

Sibyl Bowan, one of the foremost of the contemporary stage's character impressionists, stands out head and shoulders above the remainder of the new week's "Fantastics" stage revue. Returning to the Capital after an absence of almost two years, Miss Bowan at yesterday's first performance bowled the capacity audience over with her keenly humorous studies of Beatrice Lillie, singing "I've Been to a Marvelous Party;" Carmen Miranda, in "The South American Way;" Gloria Swanson and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Miss Bowan's friendly caricature of the First Lady is keenly satirical without being in any sense disrespectful. As it long has been, this pungent item was the piece de resistance of her act yesterday. In the Gloria Swanson number, it was demonstrated again that this dynamic artiste—meaning Miss Bowan and not Miss Swanson—is an acrobatic dancer of the first rank, in addition to being a great thespic cartoonist. Applause was so great that other character studies were added to the offering after the first performance.

Next in point of effectiveness was Helene Denizon, gifted danseuse, in her spectacular "Firebird" creation. The Gaudsmiths open the bill in a knockabout gymnastic act, in which top honors go to their three perfectly trained French poodles, better comedians than their masters. The Rhythm Rockets are in and out, as usual, this week in routines which yesterday seemed to be something less than inspired.

The Fox Movietone News is the only screen auxiliary, but enjoyable entertainment does not end with that. Sam Jack Kaufman's "Musical Contrasts" overture is one of the best of the season, featuring Max Zinder and the string section in an Hungarian czardas; Toby Tyler and his trombone in "I Surrender, Dear," and Jack Schaeffer—if that is how he spells it—singing and trumpeting "Sweet Sue." Art Brown, leading the community songfest at the organ, completes a bill quite in the Halloween spirit.

Costars of New Capitol Comedy

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Oct. 31.

APPEAL: Clifford Odets and Luther Adler, both now in Hollywood, went to see "City for Conquest" . . . "I thought Ann Sheridan did a good job," Adler later told the playwright . . . "I liked the whole picture," Odets stated, "but I think Ann Sheridan is very plain-looking" . . . "Sheridan plain-looking? You don't know what you're talking about," said Luther . . . "She doesn't look like an actress," Odets insisted. "She looks like a piano teacher" . . . "You're blind," said Adler. "With her looks and sex appeal she should be a piano teacher?" . . . "Yes, just that," said Odets, "—and then she could come up to my house and give me lessons."

LYONS

CHALLENGE: Constance Bennett was introduced for the first time to Orson Welles. She stared at him appraisingly and then said: "So you're Mr. Welles—the Mr. Welles who didn't think I could act well enough to broadcast on your program of radio plays?" . . . Welles laughed, bowed deeply and replied: "Miss Bennett, that was told to you either by my best friend or my worst enemy."

ESCAPE: Quentin Reynolds, who did the commentary for "London Can Take It," was one of the last persons to remain in Paris before the Nazi occupation. Reynolds, who played football at Brown, where he was one of the famed Iron Men, is over six feet tall and weighs 240 pounds. He was accompanied by Cooper of the London Times, who also is a 6-footer and weighs more than 200 . . . They walked down the Champs Elysees, wondering how to get out of Paris, when a lady asked them: "Do you want to buy a car?" . . . The reporters almost smothered her with delight. "The price is 25,000 francs," she stated . . . They bought the car, sight unseen . . . The lady pocketed the money and then brought the two giants to her garage, opened the door and gave them the key to the car—a baby Austin.

HOPE: Max Baer, who is rehearsing with Sid Silvers for their roles in the forthcoming musical, "H'ya Gentlemen," read his lines for the first time, and Silvers complimented him . . . "I've been in the theater more than 15 years," said the short, pudgy Silvers, "and I'm going to teach you everything I know. You're going to be a great comedian. I'm going to make you the biggest star on Broadway" . . . "Yeah," Baer returned, patting the diminutive Silvers, "and I'm going to make you the world's heavyweight champion."

CHATTER: Norman Bel Geddes has flown to Florida to prepare for a new job. He's going to streamline the Ringling Brothers circus . . . James Joyce, author of "Ulysses," has been requested to leave occupied France by the Vichy government. He's going to Switzerland . . . Arch Oboler, who was to fly to N. Y. for the premiere of his "Escape" and the Joan Crawford broadcast which he wrote, canceled his trip. Just as he boarded the plane he was notified that the broadcast was canceled, because the time was needed for political speeches . . . Huntington Hartford, the PM reporter and A. & P. heir, became a theatrical producer this week, opening offices in the Sardi Building.

PARTY: Edward Robinson tendered a party in honor of United States Senator Pepper, of Florida, at his home last week. The invitation read: "From 5 to 8 P. M." . . . Dore Schary, the Academy Award winner, was invited. He was scheduled to broadcast at 6:30, and so he arrived at the party early, at 5 p. m. He found that none of his friends had arrived—not even the host. Two men were in the living room, and Schary introduced himself to them. He discussed the political situation, Hollywood, art—and then decided to see Robinson's collection of paintings. The men nodded and followed him—while he viewed the $250,000 collection. They followed him until he left . . . The next day Schary learned their identity—detectives hired to guard the paintings.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

"Blossoms in the Dust," Greer Garson's next picture, is such a human story, based on a living character. It came to light when Ralph Wheelwright, Metro writer, went to Texas to adopt a baby. The story is this. Sam and Edna Gladney were wealthy, loved children, had none. When they moved to Sherman, Tex., they decided to build a nursery school and keep it filled with children for adoption. But before the home was completed, they lost everything.

HOPPER

They moved on to Fort Worth. By that time, story of their kindness of heart had preceded them, and the Texas people helped them found the Texas Children's Home, from which more than two thousand orphans have been placed in fine homes throughout the country. They did more than any single person to abolish illegitimacy in America. As Mrs. Gladney says, children aren't illegitimate—only their parents are.

She makes it a privilege for you to have her select the child you adopt. Her home is filled with rocking chairs. When your baby, which she selects, is brought in, it's put in your arms, you rock it. She watches you. She says it takes a mighty lot of rocking to make a child forget it hasn't a mother.

Jean Rogers has a kitten, given her by Carole Lombard. Carole wanted Jean to call it "Clark, Junior," but Jean settled for "Junior." But kitty doesn't come unless called "Stinky."

Poor Miriam Hopkins, with two beautiful homes and no place to lay her head! She left Sunday for rehearsals of her new play, "Battle of the Angels," but her Sutton Place home in New York is rented for a year. Her hilltop manse here is about to be. Katie Hepburn had it all summer, while Miriam lived at the beach. I asked her why she didn't stay on till after the preview of "Lady With Red Hair." She said, "If it's good, I'll hear about it quick enough. If it's bad, that news will reach me faster."

They do think of the darnedest names for characters these days. In "The Saint in Palm Springs," a character named Pearley Gates spends all his time in pictures telling people his name is Clarence. . . . The "Bajun"—new dance introduced at the Pirates' Den the other night—is sweeping the town. Henry Wilcoxon wrote the music, and the Shadrack Boys and two native girls swing it.

Before Roz Russell takes that much needed rest, after five straight pictures, she'll stop off at Kansas City on her way East to do a benefit for a children's hospital.

Lon Chaney, jr., and Noah Beery, jr., whose fathers were great friends, are also buddies and share a dressing room while making "Riders of Death Valley."

Part of Annapolis freshman Dick Slaymaker's (what a name! we could use him here—or was I thinking of "Haymaker") hazing is writing love letters to Deanna Durbin, whether he likes it or not. And in return he hopes for a picture. He'll probably get a letter or protest from Vaughn Paul, wot?

In 'Escape'

Bonita Granville, young starlet, plays Ursula in Ethel Vances' "Escape," in which Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor costar.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

New York, Oct. 31 (INS). You have to hand it to M.-G.-M. for potent costarring teams at the box office. Walter Pidgeon and Greer Garson are the latest duet—and they should be perfect in "Blossoms In The Dust," the heart-tug story about a famous Texas orphanage. Walter has just the right amount of ingratiating dignity to compliment Miss Garson. I can't think of a femme star whose personality is so radically different off and on the screen.

PARSONS

German and Italian diplomats are doing their best to ban "The Great Dictator," Charlie Chaplin's picture, in Latin America. A letter from South America was received yesterday stating that the Axis powers are already conducting informal negotiations with all the South American governments with a view to banning Charlie's picture. The Axis actually succeeded in having such a ban placed on "Confessions of a Nazi Spy." Let's hope that United Artists will be able to act in time to save "The Great Dictator," for with the European market shut down South America is highly important to Charlie.

Alexander Korda has signed Lawrence Stallings to write the screen play of Sabu's next—Rudyard Kipling's immortal "Jungle Book." He couldn't have made a wiser selection. Stallings has lived years at a time in India and knows the country like a book. The same can be said for Zoltan Korda, who will direct. It was Zoltan, you know, who originally discovered Sabu for "Elephant Boy" when he was on a talent hunting expedition four years ago in India. In the meantime, Sabu is the pet of our troupe.

Are Helen Vincent and Fred Perry patching things up? They've been seen together several times. Meantime, Helen has been added to the cast of "Bowery Boy," at Republic. This picture also brings back to the screen Louise Campbell who created quite a stir at Paramount a year or so ago when she did "The Star Maker." Republic must be going to town on this film because they've lined up an excellent cast. Dennis O'Keefe gets the male lead and little Jimmy Lydon has been borrowed from R. K. O. for the title part.

Snapshots of Hollywood and New York collected at random: The Johnny Downs-June Draper engagement will be officially announced Saturday at a tea at the bride-to-be's home. June is a nonprofessional and no relation to Natalie Draper. Our best wishes to the youngsters; the Countess of Jersey (Virginia Cherrill) leaves for New York in two weeks on her way back to London to join her husband. Sally and Harry Joe Brown entertained in her honor last night; Carole Landis can't make up her mind between Franchot Tone and Cedric Gibbons.

Sonja Henie and her mother planed out for New York on a hurried business trip; the good-looking man at the Brown Derby with Dorothy Lamour was her father—nothing for Greg Bautzer to get excited about; Nedda Harrigan looks like a glamour girl around New York these days—and she couldn't be happier over the hit she has in "Charley's Aunt;" rumor is that Jock Whitney backed the show; Ted Collins came back stage. He was on his way to Cincinnati with Kate Smith for the Tyrone Power broadcast.

Gene Autry made a great hit with our audience at Loew's State when, after my introduction, he sang "Melody Lane" for them. The rafters rang! Cecil B. DeMille sends me a telegram saying he hopes he and I will go on another 27 years in the movies. I hope so too, C. B.; Budd Schulberg, son of Ben Schulberg, is in town, so pleased because his story, "Weekend For Three" may be a Cary Grant-Irene Dunne starring vehicle; Harry M. Warner's secretary, Sylvia Lille, and Harry Stern, advertising man, will be married December 24; Philip Trent is back in Hollywood after a season in summer stock with some good picture deals lined up; all too short has been our New York visit and now we are off for Philadelphia.

That's all fo rtoday. See you tomorrow!

Fifteen 'Staticless' Stations Licensed

FCC Grants Permits To Widely Scattered Broadcasting Centers

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday started a new industry in the radio broadcasting field with the granting of 15 licenses to operate frequency modulation stations on a commercial basis.

These permits were the first to be granted since the FCC provided 35 channels between 43,000 and 50,000 kilocycles for FM service and adopted rules to govern the operation of the staticless stations.

Frequency modulation, dubbed FM in the trade, by making use of bands in the extreme high range of frequencies, performs with "bell-like clarity," its sponsors claim. It is said to be entirely free from static, to offer a much wider tone range than standard broadcasting and to permit more stations on the same channels without interference.

Its chief drawback, as brought out at FCC hearings, is that its short radius of 50 miles restricts its use, at least for the present, to urban areas, listeners in rural sections out of range of the broadcasting stations being forced to rely on standard broadcasts.

FM will require new receiving sets and special broadcasting equipment, all of which, the FCC feels, will contribute to employment and to trade. Another advantage in FM is that it will open up a new field to relieve standard broadcasting bands, now "bogged down" by conflicting stations.

"The granting of these licenses by the commission," said Chairman James L. Fly, "marks an important milestone in the continued advance of the radio industry."

The new stations are widely scattered geographically and are designed to service millions of listeners with the new type of radio transmission. Three are in New York City. Thirty-six more applications are pending and others are expected to pour in shortly.

The pioneer FM commercial licensees and location of the authorized stations are:

Detroit, Evening News Association; Los Angeles, Don Lee Broadcasting Co.; Baton Rouge, Baton Rouge Broadcasting Co.; Salt Lake City, Radio Service Corporation of Utah; Chicago, Zenith Radio Corporation; Mount Washington, N. H., Yankee Network; Milwaukee, the Journal Co.; New York City National Broadcasting Co., William G. H. Finch and Marcus Loew Booking Agency; Evansville, Ind., Evansville on hte Air, Inc.; Binghampton, N. Y., Howit-Wood Radio Co., Inc.; Brooklyn, N. Y., Frequency Broadcasting Corporation; Columbus, Ohio, WBNS, Inc.; Schenectady, N. Y., Capitol Broadcasting Co., Inc.

Two experimental stations are in operation in this area, one at Bethesda, Md., the other on the outskirts of Washington.

The FCC hailed the business debut of FM as inviting public demand for service and sets, which will have a stimulating effect on programming as well as on the purchase and maintenance of new equipment.

At the same time, FCC officials pointed out that there is no likelihood that FM broadcastnig will develop so rapidly that present-day standard receivers will become obsolete.

Last Rites Today For A. F. Gorsuch, D. C. Pharmacist

Funeral services for Albert F. Gorsuch, 48, pharmacist and lifelong resident of Washington, will be held at the Taltavull funeral home, Fourteenth Street and Spring Road Northwest, today at 2:30 p. m., with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery. He died Tuesday at his home, 1724 Douglas street northeast, after a long illness.

For many years Mr. Gorsuch conducted a pharmacy at Seventh and H Streets Northeast. In recent years he was associated with Parke, Davis & Co., pharmaceutical manufacturers.

Mr. Gorsuch received his pharmacy degree at Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. Upon graduation he was appointed instructor in materia medica at George Washington University school of pharmacy, where he served for several years. He was a past secretary of the District Pharmaceutical Association and a member of the American Pharmaceutical Association.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mamie Gorsuch; a daughter, Nellie; a son, Albert, jr., and his mother, all residents of Washington.

Mrs. Isabella Piez Is Dead at 75

Mrs. Isabella Silvey Piez, 75, for many years a Washington resident, died October 28 in an Oswego, N. Y., hospital after a short illness, it was learned yesterday.

Daughter of the late Col. and Mrs. William Silvey, she was the wife of Dr. Richard Piez, of Oswego, and a sister of Mrs. Frederick Deschler, of Washington.

Besides her husband and sister, Mrs. Deschler, she leaves two nieces and a nephew, Mrs. Isabella Deschler and William Deschler, of Washington, and Miss Melville Silvey, of Duluth, Minn.

3 Society Women Here Get Divorces

Mrs. Lloyd Moore, Mrs. Morris, Jr., Get Reno Decrees

Mrs. Eppes Hawes Moore, daughter of former Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri, and well-known to Washington society, obtained a Reno divorce yesterday from Lloyd Moore on grounds of cruelty.

They were married December 7, 1935, in New York. Moore's last address was Paris.

Two other Washington social leaders, Mrs. Betty Boschen Morris and Mrs. Catherine Rouse Conner, were granted divorces.

On grounds of cruelty, Mrs. Morris, daughter of Maj. Gen. Boschen, won a decree in Reno from Edgar L. Morris, jr., Columbia, S. C., law student, whom she married at Frederick, Md., on December 30, 1938, and again at Fort Myer, Va., on June 28, 1939. The divorcee is en route back to Washington.

Mrs. Conner was granted an absolute divorce at Bardstown, Ky., from Samuel L. Conner. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment. Conner did not contest the action.

Formerly of the Shoreham Hotel, Mrs. Conner now resides at the Ritz-Carlton in New York.

Stores Prepare—Mr. Claus Is Just Around Corner

That Chirtsmas is approaching was indicated yesterday, when the representatives of retail stores and the Washington postoffice met at the Merchants and Manufacturers Association and made plans for this year's early Christmas promotion campaign.

The shop early mail early committee set Saturday, November 9 as the date of the opening of the toy departments of the stores, and November 18 as the date of inaugurating the store interior Christmas decorations, and Thanksgiving Day as the date of the opening of toy windows, Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, announced.

The members of the shop early mail early committee are Messrs. Vincent C. Burke, postmaster; C. W. Turner, James Rotto, W. R. Harvey, J. W. Hardy, E. E. Snyder, B. M. Bulkley, Henry Voss, O. F. Ballou, F. Reid Wallace, Harvey J. Cheston, Dr. George E. McCann, A. H. Breweed, Jerome Saks, Sidney Selinger, and Arthur J. Sundlun.

Debauch Ruled No Defense In Death Trial

Case Against Driver Accused in Killing Of Two Nears Jury

Justice James W. Morris yesterday ruled that "drunkenness is no defense" for Richard S. Nestlerode, 27, who is on trial in the District Court on two murder charges filed after his speeding car killed two pedestrians last June 22.

The case probably will be given to the jury today. Nestlerode's attorneys ended their evidence late yesterday with testimony of Dr. Elmer Klein, a psychiatrist formerly of the staff of St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Defense Attorneys J. Benjamin Simmons and Levi H. David asked Dr. Klein a long hypothetical question, which stated that Nestlerode drank about a quart of liquor before the wild ride—of which he claimed to remember nothing. In the course of the ride his car injured fatally Mrs. Edna Mitchell, 34, colored, and Joseph Nappo, 57. Justice Morris then sustained the objection of Assistant District Attorney Arthur B. Caldwell to a question whether a man in such circumstances would be "normal" or "abnormal."

Attorney Benjamin then asked whether Dr. Klein considered Nestlerode "insane" under the circumstances. Justice Morris sent out the jury and said:

"It is my understanding of the law that drunkenness is no defense, except as regards the mental faculties. The law in this jurisdiction is that voluntary drunkenness will not reduce the degree of crime from second-degree murder (for which Nestlerode could get life) to manslaughter (for which the penalty might be any period less than 15 years)."

"Insanity," the court added, "to be a defense must be a fixed mental condition, as distinguished from the result of single debauch."

Justice Morris allowed Dr. Klein to testify that Nestlerode's "insane" condition might have prevented him realizing what he was doing when he gave his story of the tragedies to the police the next afternoon.

April in November To Mark Plant Bureau's Exhibit

It'll be April in November in theory next Monday when the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture opens an outdoor exhibit in the patio of the department's Administration Building.

Easter lilies in bloom, four-leaf clovers, 15-foot sugar cane stalks, and cotton stalks with open bolls will be displayed in portrayal of the bureau's work.

A series of soil samples 6 feet in depth has been arranged to show eight of the principal soil groups of the country, and tobacco plant water cultures will demonstrate plant reaction to mineral deficiencies in certain of these areas. The exhibit will remain open until December 1.

Drinking Blamed For 15 Pedestrian Traffic Deaths

Demon rum has taken a heavy toll in Washington's pedestrain traffic since January 1, 1939, traffic department records revealed yesterday.

Of 33 pedestrians killed by autos up to October 29, this year, 15 were found to have been drinking, it was reported.

It takes only .15 per cent of alcohol in the blood to produce a state of intoxication, medical authorities say, but the majority of pedestrian traffic victims on which autopsies were performed showed a percentage in excess of that figure, records revealed.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, after studying the records, suggested the slogan "If you drink, don't drive," might well apply to walking on the city's crowded streets.

Willkie Visit Clinched Md., Claims G.O.P.

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Oct. 31.—Republican leaders tossed aside former conservatism today to claim Wendell L. Willkie's one-day tour through Maryland yesterday had clinched the State for the G. O. P.

Former Gov. Harry W. Nice, Republican Senatorial nominee, flatly predicted that, in Baltimore alone, 100,000 Democrats would vote for the Republican Presidential nominee.

The Willkie rally here last night, Nice said, probably was the largest and most enthusiastic political meeting in State history.

"This can mean only that the ground swell to Willkie is blowing up into a tidal wave," he asserted. "I just feel that we are going to carry Maryland next Tuesday."

W. Devid Tilghman, jr., Republican State chairman, said he had not expected so large a crowd or such a "tremendous response" last night. He asserted the enthusiasm shown exceeded that of other Willkie rallies he had attended.

"I believe that Maryland is going for Willkie," he added.

Similar comment came from Republican chieftains all down the line and State and city party headquarters offered a picture of party workers congratulating each other on what they described as a "sure thing" November 5.

2 D. C. Boys Receive Fellowships at Brown

Two Washington boys have been awarded fellowships to Brown University, Providence, R. I., it was announced yesterday.

Attache Tells Bar of Cuba Constitution

Far More Extensive Than U. S. Charter, Luncheon Hears

Provisions of Cuba's new constitution were discussed before the Federal Bar Association yesterday by Dr. Raoul Herrera-Arango, second secretary of the Cuban Embassy.

The 125-page document, covering 255 articles, became effective October 10 with advent of the new administration in Cuba, Dr. Herrera-Arango told the luncheon meeting in Schneider's Restaurant. Far more extensive in scope than the Constitution of the United States, it covers many subjects formerly left to legislative acts, he added.

"The organization of the State is maintained as of republican, unitarian and democratic form, for the pursuit of political freedom, social justice and the individual and collective welfare," said Dr. Herrera-Arango.

He pointed out that the title on individual guarantees incorporates not only the fundamental rights assured by the previous constitution of 1901—based on the American Bill of Rights—but also detailed provisions which protect the individual "most fully and completely against encroachment of the state and the excesses of its agents, exemplifying the individualistic and antitotalitarian spirit which animates the whole constitution."

Freedom of thought, expression and religion are protected to the fullest extent. Dr. Herrera-Arango declared. Voting, he added, is made compulsory and is stressed not only as a right but a duty.

Dr. Herrera-Arango also described Havana's beauty and cultural advantages. He extended a welcome to the Inter-American Bar Association, of which the Federal group is a part, on its forthcoming meeting in Havana, March 20.

Congress Library Gets Wilstach Manuscripts

The Library of Congress yesterday announced that it has received from Paul Wilstach, as a gift, the original manscripts of his best known books. They include "Potomac Landings," "Mount Vernon," "Hudson River Landings," "Tidewater Maryland," and "Islands of the Mediterranean."

Archibal MacLeish, Librarian of Congress, said the Wilstach collection will be preserved in the rare book room.

The contribution was held particularly valuable by library officials because each volume is carefully documented in the author's hand, authorities have been supplied and notes have been added.

Harman Irked By Handling Of His Charge

Protests Police Probe Of Accusation Against That Bureau

The good faith of the District Commissioners in having the Police Department investigate his charges against that department was questioned yesterday by Attorney Richard A. Harman in a second letter to the Commissioners.

Harman charged in a letter October 16 that policemen used their badges to obtain "friendly gifts" and unethical discounts from secondhand dealers here. The police have an advisory voice in granting the dealers licenses. Because dealers fear retaliation, said Harman, they do not complain.

Dealers Questioned

The Commissioners referred the charges to the Police Department and scores of secondhand dealers have been called to headquarters in the last two days.

Harman wrote the Commissioners yesterday that he did not feel that the police investigation was "an effort to actually get to the bottom of such matters." Harman said that his letter had been shown a secondhand dealer with the remark that it had caused a review of a transaction of the dealers.

Harman said also that the dealers were questioned in the presence of policemen who were parties to the transactions "allegedly under investigation."

Police Sincerity Questioned

"My letter was written," he commented, "with the hope that it would be of constructive effect by enabling you to bring to light the true facts . . . In my opinion the present investigation by the Police Department is not going to adduce the true situation . . . Of course, the average secondhand dealer knows . . . if the Police Department wins out, his 'goose will be cooked.'

"Isn't it nonsensical to believe the Police Department would really desire the dealers to 'talk?'"

Yolanda Gives Up Dancing, At $10,000 a Week, for Child

"$10,000 BABY"—Veloz and Yolanda with their son, Frank Nichols, jr.

Partner of Veliz Feels Motherhood's Routine Is Enough, Despite Offer, Best the Team Has Ever Had

By the Associated Press

Hollywood, Oct. 31.—Frank Nichols, jr., not yet 4 months old, is costing his parents $10,000 a week. But . . .

"Believe me," says his father, "he's worth every dime of it."

In public life Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nichols, sr., are Veloz and Yolanda—who never took a lesson in their lives but became the Nation's highest paid ballroom dance team.

They retired temporarily last January in anticipation of Frank, jr.'s arrival, which took place July 18. Today Veloz made it permanent.

"We'll never dance professionally again," he said.

On his desk lay an offer for a "farewell appearance" at a Chicago theater at $10,000 a week.

"Sure," he smiled, "the money would be nice. It's the highest offer ever made us—$1,500 more than we've ever been paid, in fact. But we've found something more important."

He's settling down in Hollywood, busy perfecting a new routine he calls "the Chaco" for a South American musical firm. He's a dance director, with ambitions for a career as a full-fledged director.

As for Yolanda, she's "immensely happy" being a mother. It would require a year, she said, to polish up their routines, and "that's a long time."

"Besides," and she gave Frank, jr., a loving look, "I'm going to be very busy."

Army Officers Board Clipper For Europe

Lieut. Col. Fiske Going To Rome as Attache; Other Missions Secret

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Two lieutenant colonels of the U. S. Army left on the Atlantic Clipper for Europe today.

FISKE

Lieut. Col. Norman Fiske, attached to the War Department General Staff in Washington for the last two years, was bound for Rome as military attache of the American Embassy.

Lieut. Col. Russell A. Osmlin, 53, of Narbeth, Pa., was on a confidential mission to an undisclosed destination, as were several other high-ranking Army men who recently left by clipper.

Also aboard was Ben "Sell 'Em" Smith, Wall Street financier and backer of airplane corporations, who said he was going to France on personal business which would take less than a month.

Crooked Creek Dam Completed

Pittsburgh, Oct. 31 (AP).—Completion of the $4,600,000 Crooked Creek Dam was announced today by Army engineers, and flood control authorities immediately hailed the accomplishment as a "timely" protection to the Pittsburgh industrial area, busily turning out steel and other items for national defense.

The dam is part of a multi-million dollar system of reservoirs being constructed to reduce floods in the Ohio River basin.

Crooked Creek is one of the larger tributaries of the Allegheny River, entering the river at Ford City, Pa., 43 miles above Pittsburgh. During the peak of the March, 1936 flood, it discharged about 9,450,000 gallons of water per minute into the Allegheny.

Alabama Board Bars 'Costumers'

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 31 (AP). When a local draft board finds out what a "costumer" is it may change its mind.

Adjut. Gen. Ben Smith wrote the board he was sending some chairs, tables and other furniture, including a "costumer."

"We don't think we'll need all that furniture," the board chairman wrote back.

"Now that costumer, I don't know what that is but I looked it up in the dictionary and that says it is a man who designs dresses, and we don't want him down here."

'Veteran of Future Wars Is in the Army Now

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 31 (AP).—Lewis A. Gorin, jr., who in 1936 headed a group of college students in demanding a "bonus" as "Veterans of Future Wars," is in the Army Reserve and "ready to go at any time."

The 26-year-old bachelor-attorney disclosed today that he was commissioned last June as a second lieutenant in the Field Artillery Reserve Corps and did not "wait" to register this month for possible military service.

He said in an interview that he thinks "the draft is a good thing and necessary."

Fort Myer Rites To Be Held Today For H. H. Godfrey

Funeral services for Henry Herman Godfrey, 50, traffic auditor in the Marine Corps, will be held at 3 p. m. today at Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be at Arlington National Cemetery.

GODFREY

Mr. Godfrey, known as the "Singing Marine," had been identified with the entertainment business in Washington for many years. He died Tuesday at Sibley Hospital.

Born in Alexandria, Va., June 27, 1890, he began his career as a clerk with the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad at Alexandria. At the outbreak of the World War he enlisted in the Marine Corps and spent the next 20 years developing a freight transportation section in Washington. His home was at 904 South Glebe Road, Arlington, Va.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ethel V. Godfrey; a sister, Mrs. M. C. Dorsey; a daughter, Miss Ethel La Verne Godfrey, all of Arlington, and a son, Richard C. Godfrey, of Los Angeles, Calif.

DEFYING DEATH AT CASINO ROYAL. Ringsiders at Casino Royal hold their breath, expect to get a lapful of roller skaters any minute. For the Two Kays offer the most dangerous skating turn ever. They work blindfolded on top of a small table and with lightning speed. A slip of an inch or so and they'd be skating on their ears on the C. R. dance floor . . . It's appropriate that after this daredeviling the Lindsay Girls romp out as nurses and take the customers' temperatures . . . Exciting, too, are dancers Bernath and Rich in a waltz that should be named "Grapes of Wrath."

The Neptune Room has concluded arrangements with C. B. S. for speed flashes of election results next Tuesday eve. The service will begin directly after the afternoon cocktail hour, continue all evening . . . A special wire service in the Metronome Rome and cocktail lounge will bring voting bulletins to Wardman patrons at the same time they arrive in radio stations. This means that the news will come in even faster than you'd get it over your home radio.

ASTOUNDING MOMENTS. "Mousey" Garner's entrance into Mayfair last night clad in a suit of armor. He sounded like a bull in a tin shop. DEAR NOEL: Burrus Williams, maestro of La Salle Versailles, sadly tells about the time he and Jack Minovich decided to play some of Noel Coward's rarer music for that gentleman, who was supposedly listening to them. They finished with a flourish, waited with bright expectant eyes. Bue Le Noel brushed by them without giving a sign he'd heard a note. They felt very badly about it for a week, until Movie Star Cary Grant arrived and practically lived on the bandstand.

Take a look at those elegant new carnations that are blossoming on musicians' lapels all over town. They're crocheted! By clever Mrs. Guy Richardson, wife of the Rainbow Room's handwriting analyst.

INHERITED TALENT. This Morning

With Shirley Povich

"Dear Sir," writes Mr. Alfred D. Warner, of Bethesda, Md., "I am slightly sickened by the glorification of the pass-throwers in both college and professional football at the expense of the fellows who catch the passes. The trend toward making a hero out of the pass-thrower in recent years baffles me.

POVICH

"When I played football, the fellow who received most of the credit was the man who caught the pass. But nowadays, to read the press accounts, you'd think that those passes catch themselves. The passer is a hero when his pass clicks, and the pass-catcher is a bum if he drops it. I do not think I am overdrawing it, when I say that. How about a better break for the pass catcher?"

Well, we decided to let Ray Flaherty, coach of the Redskins, answer that one. What did Mr. Flaherty think of our subscriber's complaint? Take it away, coach, for several hundred words:

"I dare say what Mr. Warner contends is true to a great extent, and I agree with him that the pass-thrower has overshadowed the pass-catcher in recent years, at least as far as the press stories of the games are concerned. I, like him, remember when the lad who caught the pass was the big hero and the throwing of it merely incidental. Most anybody could throw a pass—the trick was to catch it.

"The newspapers and, indirectly, the public have helped to make heroes out of the pass-throwers. Football writers are always trying to hang their story on one man and a good passer with any luck gets his name in the papers more than anybody else on the team. Perhaps that is because he is handling the ball more than anybody else on the field.

"The passer is one man the public can always see, incidentally. They like to follow the ball and they don't have much trouble following it on a pass play. It's tough for the fans to follow the ball on running plays, but on a pass they know what is happening for most of the play. That puts the passer in the spotlight.

"What the public doesn't see, usually, is what is happening down field. They don't see the ends or the wing-back feinting and pulling all sorts of tricks to outwit the defense to get in the clear. The fans don't notice them much until, all of a sudden, an end or a wing back jumps up and snares a pass. That part of it looks perfectly simple and that is probably why the fans expect the ends to catch passes. I can understand why the fans might think a fellow who dropped a pass is a bum. It doesn't look hard.

"But the coach on the bench appreciates a pass-catcher when he makes a good catch or even one that looks simple. He has done a lot of things before he has made that catch. He has been pretty smart, in the first place, to get into the clear. He had to do a lot of feinting and decoying to shake his man off. In football today, we have ends who run farther and do more things merely as a decoy than the ends of 15 or 20 years ago used to do when they were supposed to catch a pass.

"Pass-throwing has improved, I'd say, 100 per cent and I'm not taking it away from the fellows who have learned how to throw that ball. They have great timing and all of that, but pass-catching has improved, too, and just as much. It has had to improve, because pass-defense is so much better than it used to be. To complete a pass these days against any sort of good opposition you've got to have both a guy who can throw that ball and some clever ones out there to catch it.

"We have an end on the Redskins who is the most artistic loafer I ever saw, and I don't mean that in any derogative sense. I mean that he loafs beautifully. Just about the time when the secondary defense is believing that he is having nothing to do with the play, he gets into action and spears a pass. You can't take it away from a fellow like that and the coach knows it better than anybody else. The fans are the only ones who miss the finesse of a pass-catcher's work. The men in the press box usually miss it, too.

"But I'm trying to be fair about this forward pass business and I don't want to take away any credit to the passers—I mean the good ones. I don't want anything to do with the poor passers, if I can help it. But the star passer is quite a man. He has developed something to a pretty fine point. Just as in baseball there are pitchers and mere throwers—the same prevails among football passers.

"Because they have stepped up the pass defense to meet all situations, the passer has had to step up his own proficiency. It's quite a feat to complete a pass these days, but they still do it. The passer doesn't get any more protection than the coach can spare and he's under a lot of pressure when he's looking for a receiver. Accuracy isn't enough. He's got to have timing and a cool head out there.

"The good passer is the one who can keep his head about him the longest in the excitement. There's a strong temptation to get rid of the ball when you see a 200-pounder coming at you. But the good passer exhausts every last second before he throws and any time his pass is caught, the passer has done a good job of it. Shucks, I'm afraid I'm not much help in this argument of the pass catcher vs. the passer. On a completed pass, they've both done a job."

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Oct. 31.—Judge Landis, the fuehrer of baseball, whose ruling hatred in life is horse-racing and gambling, has quietly enforced an unprecedented case of dry rot on the Boston Bees. It is in the old gent's power to dissolve the Bees completely. But of course he isn't cracky enough to do that. So very systematically he is taking away the Bees' honey, or dough, with a view to creating the need of a new ownership.

CONSIDINE

He has forbidden Charles F. Adams, the owner, to put any more money into the team—which now needs only a few replacements to make it one of the strongest clubs in the National League. Adams owns the Suffolk Downs race track. He also owns the Boston Bruins and is a reputable grocer. But the judge dismisses all that. Adams owns Suffolk Downs. Therefore he must be drummed out of baseball.

The judge knows that if he simply grabbed Adams by the vest and threw him out a lot of hard-headed fans, who do not know the extent of Landis' power, might say, "Hey, you can't do that. That man put his dough into the Bees. He owns them." So he is given him the old ease.

The easing process has been going on for some time. Landis knew that Adams in time would be forced to sell, which is just what the judge wanted and wants. That the City of Boston has been yelling for a better Bees team for several years, and studiously avoiding Bees home games when the yells went unanswered, doesn't matter to Landis. The old judge, in his infinite wisdom, has decided that what he is doing is in the best interest of the fans.

It was Landis who refused to let Bing Crosby and Elmer Ward buy the team late last week. Crosby has the controlling interest in the Del Mar track. That is all the judge wanted to know. That he is a truly outstanding young sportsman, whose money could have resuscitated a great (if dormant) baseball property, and whose imaginative interest in the game would have been a shot in the arm for Boston baseball, didn't amount to a row of parsnips in the judge's book. Crosby owns a race track and, more hideously, has been known to bet as much as a sawbuck on a horse.

Elmer Ward, who would have been Crosby's partner under what, to this corner looks like an ideal setup, is a former New England caddy who grew up to become New England amateur golf champion and, by Horatio Alger enterprise, the head man in the vast Palm Beach suit industry. He runs the annual Goodall round robin tournament in golf, and is a first class sportsman.

The Bees probably will be sold in a couple of weeks. They are in such a deplorable state, by reason of the crusading old judge's embargo on Adams' fresh money, that Crosby and Ward could have gained control of the team for $400,000, which is about what their hoped-for rival for Boston's baseball business, Tom Yawkey, paid for Foxx and Grove. Just who the buyer will be remains to be seen.

Crosby was keenly disappointed over his failure to get the Bees team. He made a special trip to Boston, ostensibly to see Tommy Harmon play against Harvard, but really to confer with Adams and with Ward.

"I can understand the judge's reasoning," he wrote a friend. "If Adams' race-track connections are bad for the Bees, mine are too. I'll have to look around for something else I like, in which to lose my dough."

G. W. Faces Test in Wake Forest Tonight

Season's Top Crowd Here Is Expected

The District's biggest college football crowd of the season is expected at Griffith Stadium tonight when George Washington University's once-beaten eleven meets a powerful Southern Conference invader in Wake Forest. Game time is 8:15.

On past performances, Wake Forest looks to be by far the best college club that will invade the District this fall. The game is a big one for the Colonials, for if they get by the Deacons their path will be fairly smooth until the Georgetown game late this month.

G. W. fans will see a new attack tonight as injuries to ace Backs Sam Babich and Ken Batson, which will keep them from the starting line-up, will force concentration on passing.

The invaders will have ample backfield power, however, in Tony Gallovich, one of the Nation's best, and Joltin' John Polanski, plus Red Mayberry, J. V. Pruitt, Jimmy Ringgold and Marshall Edwards. The edge in running backs accounts for the Deacons being slight favorites.

Coach Reluctant

Coach Bill Reinhart has watched the Colonials play a different type of ball game every week-end thus far and so he was reluctant to predict tonight's outcome. The Colonials played a fair game in beating Mount St. Mary's, came back with a great performance to top Manhattan, let down and barely beat Washington and Lee, looked very bad in losing to Kentucky and then came right back with an excellent performance against West Virginia in scoring a 19-0 victory last week.

Wake Forest warmed up with a rout of William Jewell and then accomplished the season's main objective, a victory over North Carolina. The Deacons have since scored over Marshall and Furman, but lost to Duke and Clemson.

Reinhart scouted the Wake Forest College team in the loss to the Blue Devils last week but unseasonal heat slowed both squads and he didn't get a clear line on the team.

The first of a two-game series with the colored interhigh football championship of Washington at stake will be played today at Griffith Stadium at 2:30. Cardozo High meeting Armstrong High.

On November 11 Armstrong will face Dunbar High, and if a third game is necessary the date will be decided later. At least 2,000 students from each school is expected to be on hand for today's game, with the military bands of the institutions furnishing entertainment during intermissions.

Middies Tune Offense for Penn Game

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 31.—Tapering off in their preparations for the tangle with the University of Pennsylvania on Franklin Field Saturday, in what is recognized as the season's supreme test thus far, Navy gridders confined their field activities today entirely to a dummy scrimmage in offensive tactics.

During the workout every play likely to be used against the Quakers was rehearsed again and again, and likewise while on the defensive, every Penn formation, gleaned from the activities of team scouts, also was employed against the regulars by the shock troops of the junior varsity. Minnesota Primes Defense for Wildcats

By the Associated Press

Minneapolis, Oct. 31.—A steady rain forced Minnesota's football squad indoors today for its final strenuous drill for Saturday's Northwestern game. Most of the practice was given over to defense.

De Correvont Limping

Northwestern, which looked bad in defeating Indiana last Saturday, will be outclassed 25 pounds per man in the line and may not have the full time services of Bill De Correvont, a truly fine back, in the first three Wildcat games. De Correvont, who hurt an ankle in the Wisconsin game, has been passing and kicking this week but still has a very noticeable limp.

Behind that ponderous Minnesota line will be operating two of the best backs in the Midwest, George Franck and Bruce Smith. The latter is a fine runner and passer. Franck, who can run 100 yards in 9.7 seconds, runs, passes, punts and calls the signals—doing an excellent

Overlin Fights Belloise in N.Y. Garden Tonight

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 31.—Steve Belloise, a local boy with a knockout punch but very little polish, will attempted to blast Ken Overlin loose from that portion of the middleweight title which the Washington star holds in a 15-rounder tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden.

Overlin has been recognized as 160-pound champ by the New York State Athletic Commission since he slapped and smarted his way to a surprise victory over Ceferino Garcia last summer. Belloise since then also has given the veteran Filipino a bad beating, and that mainly is how he qualified for this shot at what some call the "muddleweight" crown.

Overlin quite properly is the fa-

Clifford Paces Mexican Golf

Mexico City, Oct. 31 (AP).—Percy J. Clifford, of Mexico City, shot a two under par 69 today to lead the qualifiers in the Mexican Amateur Golf Championship.

Clifford went out in 34 and came home in 35 for a four-stroke lead over John Barnum, defending champion from Edinburg, Tex. Ellsworth Vines, pro tennis player now devoting most of his time to golf, and Manuel Rivera, local player, trailed by another stroke with 74s.

Chick Evans, former U. S. amateur titleholder from Chicago, and Bobby Riggel, of Houston, Tex., followed by another stroke with 73s.

Pimlico Race To Attract 25,000 Fans

Brann Colt May Be First to Repeat in Special; Endurance Race Also Listed

By Walter Haight

Pimlico, Md., Oct. 31.—Halloween goblins are riding the ghosts of ancient Preakness winners around the Maryland Jockey Club's century-old racing plant tonight, but downtown Baltimore is up late trying to decide if it is best to put $10 on Challedon at 1-to-4 or $2 on Can't Wait at 5-to-2. For tomorrow's Pimlico Special, simmered down to a match race, pits the champion Challedon against the ambitious Can't Wait in an East vs. West battle.

While it takes time and patience to find a turf fan who believes Can't Wait will whip the pride of W. L. Brann, there are those who will back the underdog if for no other reason than they are mindful of the crushing defeat Seabiscuit, the longshot, hung on War Admiral, the big shot, in the 1938 running of the Special.

The battle of W. L. Brann's great horse and the hope of Myron Selznich is not a race of a century but it is a truly sporting proposition and that's what Alfred G. Vanderbilt, president of the Maryland Jockey Club, set out to make the event. Pimlico is putting up the $10,000 prize and it's a winner-take-all race. In addition, the Jockey Club is donating the profits of the race to the British Relief Fund.

There will be only straight betting.

In case of a dead heat, which of course is hardly a probability, Chester F. Hockley, chairman of the Maryland State racing commission, has announced all bets will be refunded.

Eight Were Invited

Vanderbilt originally invited seven horses to the Special. Later Can't Wait, which has been gaining momentum in stake circles, was put on the list. The field narrowed to four with C. S. Howard's Mioland and the Greentree Stable's Hash expected to compete. Hash moved out of the picture and finally Howard turned down Mioland's bid.

The absence of Mioland is a keen disappointment to fans and officials. The up-and-coming colt would have put the punch needed into a race like the Special but the Howard forces, believed to have their eyes on future stake weights, decided again the race.

Upwards of 25,000 are expected to see the program. Despite rain earlier in the week, the track will be fast, barring another downpour. The Pimlico oval is one of the fastest-drying tracks in the country. The condition of the course should mean little as both Challedon and Can't Wait are at home in the off-going.

Brann Seeks Another

W. L. Brann may become the first owner to win two Specials. Now it is one up for all concerned in the Pimlico Special. That is so far as sectional rivalry goes, and there's as much of it this year as in past renewals of the Maryland Jockey Club's autumn feature.

Going back a few years, it all began when War Admiral, Sam Riddle's great racer, chalked up the initial score in the inaugural running of the Special in 1937. That made it one up for the commonwealth of Kentucky, breeding center par excellence, where the Rid-

Army Rallies For Irish Game

By the Associated Press

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The 1,850 cadets of the Military Academy rallied on the streets of West Point tonight as an Army squad of 40 football players left to do battle against Notre Dame.

The squad departed by bus from the Knollwood Country Club in White Plains a few hours after completing a final strenous workout for Saturday's classic in Yankee Stadium. A secret workout probably will be staged tomorrow on the Country Club grounds.

The Corps of Cadets will leave West Point by special train early Saturday morning and will parade into Yankee Stadium at 12:40 p. m. Kickoff is scheduled at 1:30.

Largest G. U. Squad in History Off to Syracuse

By Jack Munhall

Post Staff Writer

En Route to Syracuse, Oct. 31.—The largest Georgetown University football squad ever to hit the gridiron trail embarked from Washington at 5 p. m. today for Saturday's crucial game with Syracuse's unpredictable Orange eleven.

Thirty-six husky protectors of the Hoyas' 2½-year undefeated record followed Head Coach Jack Hagerty onto the Pullman, which will carry them into what critics hail as the first real test for Georgetown.

In fine physical condition and fortunately not in an overconfident frame of mind, the Georgetown gridmen are dead intent upon making Saturday's game their finest performance of the season. Not only do they realize that a decisive victory over the Orange, who dealt Columbia its first defeat, would greatly enhance their national reputation, but they are motivated by a desire to prove that last year's 13-13 tie with Syracuse was a fluke.

The 1939 Orange-Hoya battle, played in the querest weather that ever marked a football game, nearly interrupted the Georgetown streak, the Hoyas having to rally in the last few minutes of play to gain a deadlock on Lou Ghecas' 76-yard touchdown run and Joe McFadden's placement for the extra point.

On that day the players were handicapped by just about every trick of the weather imaginable. First it would rain. Then the sun would shine. Then it would hail and sleet and again Old Sol would smile through the leaden skies. Always there was a high wind that wrought havoc with punts and passes, and finally as soon as the final gun had sounded the skies opened to release a torrential rain.

The only Georgetown player not expected to see action Saturday is sophomore halfback Al Kull, who turned up with a bad ankle following last week's rout of New York University. However, Bill McLaugh-

Coast Game Looms for Hoyas

There is a strong possibility that Georgetown University will meet St. Mary's Gaels in football at San Francisco late next month, H. Gabe Murphy, G. U. graduate manager, announced yesterday.

The game, if scheduled, would be played in San Francisco some time after November 23, when Georgetown will have finished its original schedule.

Chances for a Georgetown-St. Mary's game this season may depend largely on whether the Hoyas get by Boston College November 16 and whether the Galloping Gaels are able to defeat Santa Clara.

Should both the Hoyas and the Gaels win those games a meeting between them could well be advertised as the "national Catholic college football championship." St. Mary's defeated Fordham recently.

Murphy said a definite decision on the game is expected from St. Mary's in about two weeks. He added that a 1940 game with St. Mary's would not mean that G. U. would turn down a major bowl invitation.

Harvard-Princeton Clash Tops 'Ivy League' Tomorrow

Tiger Guard Hurt, May Be Out of Game

Columbia Primed for Cornell's Unbeaten Team; Yale Facing Test With Brown

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 31.—The Harvard-Princeton clash at Cambridge tops Saturday's "Ivy League" games in the East with the Tigers rated a slight favorite to defeat the Crimson.

George Kinniry, regular left guard for Princeton, injured a leg in blocking practice today and Coach Tad Wieman said it would not be known until tomorrow whether he would be able to play. The squad, including Kinniry, will leave tomorrow for Cambridge, where it will hold a light workout in the afternoon. Dave Headley and Bill Pettit will share Kinniry's duties if he is unable to play.

Coach Dick Harlow announced two changes in the Harvard line-up today as the Crimson labored through a long drill. He said Burgy Ayers would get the call at center and Chuck Spreyer would be at left half.

PENN

Philadelphia—Halfback Frank Regan and Guard Irving Mendelson, Penn's two injured stars, worked out with the Quakers today but Coach George Munger said he would not decide until just before the game with Navy Saturday whether he would start them. The pair was hurt in last week's Michigan game.

DARTMOUTH

Hanover, N. H.—The Dartmouth Indians were hustled through their fourth consecutive scrimmage of the week today, but Coach Earl Blaik put the brunt of the work on the reserves as the regulars polished off their plays for Saturday's game with Sewanee.

COLUMBIA

New York—Columbia University's Lions snapped through a rigorous drill at Baker Field today and then entrained for Watkins Glen to await Saturday's struggle with undefeated Cornell at Ithaca, N. Y. A squad of 30 players, in generally good physical condition, made the trip and Coach Lou Little said he would rely on the same line-up that started last Saturday's game against Syracuse. This included nine players who started against the Big Reds last year.

New Haven, Conn.—Coach Ducky Pond inserted Jim Potts, sophomore blocking halfback, into the Yale backfield today and said he "most likely" would get a starting assignment against Brown Saturday. The Elis scrimmaged on the defense against Bear formations.

Marquette Entrains For Pittsburgh Game

Milwaukee, Oct. 31 (AP).—Thirty-two Marquette University footballers entrained tonight for Pittsburgh, where they will meet Duquesne University Saturday afternoon.

Coach Paddy Driscoll sent his charges through a long dummy defensive scrimmage before train time.

The Hilltoppers have looked bad on defense this year. No opponent so far has scored less than three touchdowns.

Crowley Concentrates On Running Attack

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Fordham Coach Jimmy Crowley concentrated on his squad's running attack today in preparation for Saturday's game with North Carolina.

Fordham, forced indoors by rain yesterday, played the subs who went through the North Carolina plays. Although Saturday's game may develop into an aerial battle between Steve Filipowicz, of Fordham, and Jim Lalanne, opinion was divided here as to whether or not Crowley would attempt to shake loose his two flashy runners, Len Eshmont and Jim Blumenstock, with a ground attack.

vorite, his backers laying odds of 8 to 5 against Belloise getting the verdict. However, the latter's supporters think their man has a good chance of tagging Overlin with one of his triphammer rights, and they are laying 1 against 3 that the champ isn't around at the finish.

Belloise is far outclassed in experience. He is eight years younger than Overlin and has had only 33 fights against Ken's 181 in the last dozen years. However—and this is the point—Belloise has knocked out 16 of his rivals, whereas Overlin probably wouldn't bet he could stop a dollar watch if he used both hands and a hammer.

Action Promised

It all depends upon whether Belloise can keep from being smothered by the leather Overlin will pour into him from all angles and altitudes and manage to sneak across a few of his own lethal jolts. As usual, Overlin has trained very lightheartedly, and sooner or later some youngster like Belloise is going to catch up with him.

At least, Promoter Mike Jacobs thinks so strongly enough that he has taken the precaution of signing Belloise to fight for him exclusively in case he wins tomorrow night. Overlin incidentally, has fought only over-the-weight matches since he beat Garcia last May, and in one of these he dropped a decision to Billy Soose.

Belloise, meantime, was flattening the rugged Victor Dellicurti, beating Sammy Luftspring, knocking out Wicky Harkins twice, and licking the tar out of Garcia in his big test.

Minnesota wants this victory badly. The Gophers haven't forgotten 1936, when Northwestern's upset win snapped a 21-game Minnesota winning streak. Victory that day gave Northwestern the conference crown over the Gophers.

Notre Dame Leaves For Army Clash

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 31 (AP).—Thirty-six Notre Dame football players left by train late today for New York City, where they will seek their fifth straight victory of the season over Army Saturday.

Before their departure they held a light workout on both offense and defense.

Gordon O'Reilly will start at center in place of Bob Osterman, out with a bruised knee.

36 Players Make Ohio State Trip

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 31 (AP).—The Indiana University football squad left today for Columbus and a Saturday game with Ohio State, defending champion of the Western Conference. Thirty-six players made the trip.

Coach A. N. (Bo) McMillin indicated that Harry (Tuffy) Brooks, right halfback, injured twice in drills, was ready to start for the first time this season.

Buckeyes in Last Hard Grid Drill

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 31 (AP).—Ohio State's Buckeyes ran through their last hard drill today in preparation for Saturday's game with Bo McMillin's "pore li'l boys" from Indiana.

A frosh team with a Hoosier offensive provided the opposition. Tomorrow there will be only the customary light workout.

The Indiana contingent arrives tomorrow morning with McMillin's victory hopes—"Hurlin' Hal" Hursh, who has completed 28 of 63 passes this year, and "Rabbit Red" Zimmer and Dale Swihart, whose running game has added materially to the high yardage gained by the Hoosiers this season.

Missouri Eleven Works in Rain

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 31 (AP).—Missouri's football team was troubled with fumbles today in a wet workout.

It was the Tigers first experience with rain this season and they showed it with their inability to handle the ball. The squad, preparing for the New York University game Saturday, worked on both offense and defense and finished the session with placekicking and kicking off.

Bob Steuber, end, Fullback Myron Counsil and Halfback Jimmy Starmer worked out lightly, but Coach Don Faurot said the injured trio would see little service, if any, against the New Yorkers.

Oklahoma Chant 'We Want Nebraska'

Norman, Okla., Oct. 31.—Oklahoma's Sooners chanted "We want Nebraska" as they drilled for Saturday's big six football contest here with the powerful Cornhuskers.

Passes hit the spot, punts sailed high and far, placekicks were perfect and the Sooner spirits ran high. A light signal drill tomorrow will complete preparations.

Boston Clothier May Yet Buy Bees

Elmer Ward 'Still Interested' Despite Landis' Frown on Bing Crosby as Partner Due to Race Track Tie-Up

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 31.—The New York Sun said today that it had learned negotiations for the purchase of the Boston Bees by Elmer Ward, clothing manufacturer and sportsman, still were in progress.

Ward entered into a deal for the Bees in conjunction with Bing Crosby, movie and radio star, the paper said, but because of Crosby's interest in horse racing, Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis refused to sanction such a sale.

"Naturally I am not as interested in the purchase of the Bees now as I was a few days ago," Ward told the Sun, "but I have not entirely dropped out of the picture.

Sponsors Golf Tourney

Ward, a native of Boston, is president of the Goodall Co., manufacturers, and sponsor of the annual Goodall round-robin golf tournament.

The paper said that if Ward didn't elect to continue the deal alone, he probably would join in a partnership with a business associate who is well known politically in Boston.

Ward said that it would be impossible for the Bees to move into the Red Sox' Fenway Park because of a lease on National League Field which has five years to run and intimated that if he obtained control of the club he would install lights.

The Boston franchise now is owned by C. F. Adams, president of the Suffolk Downs Race Track, who took control to protect investments he had made in the club when it was headed by Emil Fuchs.

Price Put at $750,000

In baseball circles it is understood Landis delivered an ultimatum to Adams to liquidate his interest in the club or else give up horse racing and that this deadline already has passed.

The Sun said it understood the price asked for the franchise, including control of four minor league teams operated by the Bees, was $750,000.

MacPhail Denies Boston Bee Deal

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Larry MacPhail, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, today denied reports that he was interested in purchasing the Boston National League Club.

"Any conversations I have had about Boston with anyone have been in the interest of Bob Quinn (Boston president) and with his knowledge and approval," said MacPhail.

MacPhail pointed out he always has had a three-year contract with the Brooklyn club and this contract was extended again some time ago.

Held Gets Pro Golf Job

service in Saturday's engagement was given a chance in the drill.

Regardless of the fact that Penn will be installed as a favorite, based upon a slightly better record against one or two stronger foes, the Navy contingent is not conceding anything to their foes. The Middies will be out to win, and throughout this week's practice there has been steadily growing confidence that they are capable of turning the trick. The same feeling pervades the staff of coaches and others connected with the squad, although there has been no inclination to boasting.

According to a final checkup of the lineup announced tonight by the line-up announced tonight by head coach, the Tars will be without the services of one, and perhaps two, of their star linemen, and two outstanding blocking backs. Larson said he expected to start Capt. Dick Foster and Lars Wanggaard on the flanks, Joe Donohoe and Bill Chewning tackles; Vito Vitucci and Joe Sliwka or Hill, guards; Ed Sims, center; Bill Chip, quarterback; Bill Busik, left halfback; Cliff Lenz, right halfback; Al Cameron, fullback. Donshoe would be in place of Steen, outstanding tackle; Wanggaard in place of Willis Maxson, and Chip for both Johnny Harrell and Phil Hart. Those mentioned are listed among the slightly injured, but Larson admitted that one or more might be ready.

and Eddie Wilamoski will dominate the G. W. attack, aided by Tom Grady and Walter Welc.

Johnny Picco, whose great performance against the Mountaineers last week is still the talk of football men who saw the game, will be back at his end post with Frank August on the other side of the line.

The centers will handle the kickoffs, Mike Monchlovich in his usual role for the Colonials, while John Pendergast also kicks off for Wake Forest and attempts the placements.

The visitors are scheduled to arrive this morning and will be quartered at the Hamilton Hotel. The school's 50-piece band will share the field before game time and at the half with the Colonial band.

Ray Flaherty Warns 'Skins Of Steelers

Coach Fears Team Is Overconfident About Sunday Game

Warning his Redskins that the Pittsburgh Steelers were not to be taken lightly despite their failure to win more than one of their eight games thus far, Coach Ray Flaherty drove the Washington team through a long workout yesterday.

Flaherty is fighting against overconfidence on the part of the Redskins who swamped the Steelers, 40-10, earlier in the season.

In virtually every phase of play except fumbles and field goals, the Redskins can show a better record than the Pittsburgh club.

Despite reports that he will use his rookies for the bulk of the game, Flaherty yesterday declared that he would start the same Washington team which has answered the opening whistle for all of their six straight victories this year.

"Our first team will be in there at the start and will stay in there just as long as we need touchdowns," said Flaherty. "This is no time for us to underestimate anybody. Any team in this league is apt to beat any other team and I won't be satisfied until we have a lead that can't be topped."

The Redskins' workout yesterday was directed chiefly against the passing attack the Steelers are expected to launch with Billy Patterson on the throwing end.

'Season Tickets' Offered Dodger Fans by McPhail

By International News Service

New York, Oct. 31.—"Group buying" of tickets for the Brooklyn Dodgers baseball home games next season tonight was the latest innovation offered to the fans by Larry McPhail, president of the club.

Setting a precedent, McPhail, who introduced night baseball in the major leagues, announced that beginning tomorrow seats for feature attractions such as opening day, holiday dates and night and Sunday games will be sold to the customers in blocks. The system will continue until February 1 and will assure the fans of the same location at these events.

A small deposit will hold the reservations until February 1, after which the group selling plan will be discontinued and single-game seats will be offered.

Crucial 140-Pound Game Carded Sunday

Highlighting four games in the National City 140-Pound Football League this Sunday will be a clash between Georgetown Boys' Club and Police Boys' Club, No. 5, at Fairlawn Field, No. 3.

The latter holds a slight lead in the standings at present, with Georgetown in second place. Each club has only one other game after Sunday's, so the outcome might well decide the league title.

Engel's Club Seen Reverting to Nats

By the Associated Press

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 31.—Joseph William Engel was anything but the familiar "Joshing Joe" today as financial troubles threatened the end of his fan-owned Chattanooga baseball club.

Wisecracks gave way to straight facts, with the "King of Jokers" admitting 1,700 stockholders overbid their hand in establishing a home-owned Southern Association Club.

"All of us believed when we bought the club in 1938 that fan-ownership would answer the attendance problem," Engel said.

"We thought 1,700 stockholders would mean 1,700 loyal fans assuring an attendance to meet operating expenses. Just about the opposite has been true.

Only 63,000 Attended

"We had but 63,000 paid adult admissions last season and that was little more than half of the number in 1939 when we were still short of meeting expenses at the gate. Too, last season we had a deficit on every road trip with the exception of a series in Atlanta."

For want of about $20,000 to start the 1941 season, the club probably will go back to Washington, which holds a $40,000 mortgage the only unpaid item in the $125,000 fan-ownership venture.

Looking back over his fan-owned scheme Engel believes lack of a larger operating surplus caused the trouble.

"We just did not have the money to go out and invest in ball players and wait for the opportune time to sell," he explained.

Took Small Profits

"Instead we had to make small investments and take small profits when possibly we could have waited a little longer and obtained larger amounts."

Engel combined baseball knowledge with showmanship to keep the club going the last three years. He staged wild elephant hunts and other stunts to attract fans. The club won the pennant in 1939.

Of his own $53,000 investment, Engel said, "I have no personal regrets."

Hecht Bowlers Pace Dept. League

Lou Murray's 150 game led the Hecht Co. bowlers in the Department Store Bowling League last night at New Recreation as the Hechtmen whitewashed Lansburgh's. Despite Stanley Beall's 400, the pace-setting Guy, Curran outfit dropped one game to Garfinckel's.

In other matches, Tom Scrivener's 375 featured Woodward & Lothrop's sweep over the Credit Bureau, and Jelleff's continued its winning ways by taking the odd skirmish from Goldenberg's. The new season records were chalked up, the Hecht Co., with 620 game and Guy, Curran a 1,687 set.

Oklahoma Polo Team 8-7 Victor

Norman, Okla., Oct. 31 (AP).—Oklahoma University's polo team roared from behind, then fought off a late rally today, finally defeating Iowa State, 8 to 7, in a Big Six contest. The teams meet again Saturday.

Score by chukkers:

Oklahoma	1	1	3	1	2	0—8
Iowa State	3	0	0	1	1	2—7

Oklahoma scoring—Scott (3), McCampbell (3), Haney, Hetherington; Iowa State scoring—Carey (3), Miller (2), Boney (2).

C. U. Entrains For 1st Game With Saints

Catholic University's touring eleven, which already has played in Detroit, Boston and Miami, will leave tonight for a week-end trip into the mountains of Pennsylvania for Sunday's game with St. Vincent's College.

Coach Dutch Bergman and 29 players will leave Union Station at 11:40 p. m., and will arrive in Latrobe, Pa., tomorrow morning at 8:30. The team will work out tomorrow afternoon and attend a blackboard drill at night.

The game, first between the rival Catholic schools, will start at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Pete Sachon, the outstanding back of the Redbirds, has been resting his injured ankle and is expected to be in top shape for the fourth road test of the season.

George Vik, C. U. scout, watched St. Vincent's beat Canisius last week and he was impressed by the Pennsylvania eleven.

National Field Club Trials Will Start Today

Many of the finest bird dogs in several States have been collected to compete in the National Capital Field Trial Club's twenty-eighth fall trials, starting today on the Mount Pleasant Farm between Rockville and Potomac, Md.

Three stakes will be run today and tomorrow; a derby, all-age stake and shooting dog stake. Running will begin promptly at 8 a. m. both days.

Grid Giants Recall Hinkle From Jersey

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—The New York Giants of the National Pro Football League recalled Jack Hinkle, former Syracuse backfield ace, from the Jersey City farm club today in an effort to bolster their team for Sunday's game with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The return of the 190-pound ball carrier boosted the Giants' roster to 34 men, one over the limit, and waivers were asked on Al Owen, who will be sent to Jersey City unless he is claimed by some other National League club.

Eastern-Anacostia, Western-Tech Games Top School Card

W.-L. Eleven And Central Renew 'Feud'

Total of 7 Games On List; 4 Raider Stars Are Injured, Giving Tech Edge

Every one of the seven public high school grid squads of Washington go into action today, but the twin highlights will be games involving Eastern and Anacostia, and Tech and Western. Each begins at 3:30 on the field of the last mentioned.

Second only to interhigh clashes will be Washington-Lee High's invasion of Central Stadium for its annual meeting with the Vikings. The game has become the city's outstanding "family feud," the teams being coached by brothers-in-law, Johnny Baker and Hardy Pierce.

Woodrow Wilson's eleven moves out to Garrett Park to face Georgetown Prep and the last interhigh club, Roosevelt, takes its search for a third straight victory to Fredericksburg and the gridiron of James Monroe High.

Tech Is Favorite

With at least four stars almost certain of sitting the game out on account of injuries, Western appears likely to lose its first series outing this year to Tech. Jake Hilleary, triple-threat back, is the Raiders' main casualty, while Bob Mathews, George Gray and Harold Mitchell may be missing from the line.

Tech, on the other hand, is in top condition. Its stellar backfield combination of Jackie Walsh, Carleton Smallwood, Bill Dellastatious and Vern Hollidge will be intact. It should be no walkover for the Trainers, but Western's early favoritism has practically evaporated.

Despite dire warnings from the Anacostia "flats," Eastern will rule a wide favorite over the Indians. The odds were boosted yesterday when a physician ruled Halfback Gillie Eslin's damaged ankle ready for use. Eslin, big gun in the Tide's speed attack, has been unable to play since his team's first game.

The only other games on today's program will be a meeting of Boys' Latin and Landon on the latter's Bradley Lane field, and St. Alban's game with Boys' Latin of Baltimore on Wisconsin Avenue.

Though idle today, Gonzaga and St. John's will be looking to their all-important battle tomorrow at 2:30 at Griffith Stadium. It's the twenty-first meeting of the clubs, and the Purple enters into the game on the long end of the odds.

Max Krause and Boyd Morgan, of the Redskins, were the special guests of the Johnnies at a lengthy rally yesterday in the school auditorium. Speeches by Coach Gene Augusterfer and Sergt. Thomas McDonald, head of the school cadets, featured the program.

Md. State Golf Team Final Set At Rolling Road

The finals of the Maryland State Golf Association team championship will be played Sunday over the neutral Rolling Road course, in Catonsville, according to an announcement from the State golf body yesterday. Indian Spring and Baltimore Country Club are the final-round foes.

The match was supposed to come to a Washington course, as the finals were held in Baltimore last year. Indian Spring players, the defending champions, held out for a local course, but were turned down.

Miss Pettit Paces Ladies' Pin League

Olive Pettit led the ladies of the Silver Spring Ladies' Bowling League last night at Hugh Arbaugh's drives. Miss Pettit, rolling for the Shepherd Park quintet, crashed the pins for individual highs of 137-342 to help her girls take team high of 519 for game. The Howard's Hairdressers, however, bettered their season record for high team set by six pins, setting a new high of 1,513. Shepherd Park still leads the league. Carter-Lanhardt took all three games from Logan Motor to move from fifth to second place.

COLUMBIA

Joe Freschi, one of the star bowlers of the city, was the big shot in the Census League with a tremendous set of 441 to set a season record and pace his quintet, General Information and Records, to highs of 615-1,693 to stay out in front of all the others with 20 wins and but one loss. Freschi also rolled high game for the night with 173.

PENN RECREATION

Stivanson, Procurement, was the kingpin of the Railroad Retirement Board meet with a high game of 160 to take his quintet to team honors of 603-1,627. McMullen, Card File, captured the high set with a nice 363. Adjustment is in the van with 16-5, while the Secretary's Office boys come next with 14-7.

CHURCHMEN ROLL

The Clarendon Church League resumed play with Crouch, Clarendon Baptist No. 1, and McFall, Pershing Drive Christian, taking individual highs of 142 and 364, respectively. The Pershing Drive team took high game with 572, as Clarendon Methodist No. 3 had pinfall of 1,623 for high set.

UTILITY GIRLS WIN

The Utility Girls saw Esther Greco, Five Fuses, take high individual game with 118 at Betty Wager, Megawatts, romped to high set of 307, taking her girls to team highs of 467-1,303. The Slow Meters took care of the Amperes in three straight and the Transfers did the Circuits the same way.

BROOKLAND

In the Brookland Merchants R. K. Thompson, Nick's Shoe Shop, took high game with 164 as Ollie Green, Shadid's Restaurant, rolled a high set of 415 to take his boys into team set honors with 1,753. Al Baker, Men's Shop, took team game with 609.

Women Golfers to Add Richmond to Schedule

Plan to Increase Inter-City Matches Next Year; Inter-Club Team Matches To Be Changed Before Next Season

Washington's women golfers will probably extend their series of inter-city matches to an annual home-and-home series with Richmond, according to plans formulated in the last executive committee meeting of the year yesterday at Columbia Country Club.

Mrs. Robert A. Lacey, retiring president, other officers, club committee chairmen and Mrs. W. L. Weible, the nominee for 1941 president, reviewed the season and made several recommendations to be presented at the annual meeting December 5, also at Columbia.

The local women's golf team played Richmond several years ago but the series was discontinued. It was hoped the rivalry would be renewed next season, in addition to the matches with the Baltimore and Philadelphia representatives.

The interclub team matches will undoubtedly be changed before next spring, with first teams composed of six players. Second and third teams will be played under a handicapping system and the rule whereby clubs had to be represented by a first team to enter a second and third will be abolished.

Bockwinkle Wins on Mat

Warren Bockwinkle held the upper hand all the way to pin Baba Zaharias in 28 minutes of the feature wrestling match last night at Turner's Arena.

The winner, who gained revenge for a questionable loss last week, used two well-timed body slams to gain the decision.

Eddie Newman and Hal Freeman won the two-man feature in straight falls over Tommy Rae and Tiger Tasker. Rae went out first and Tasker followed in 12½ minutes.

Emil Dusek used a body press to pin J. Singer in 12 minutes while Chris Zaharias and Milo Steinburn grappled 30 minutes to a draw. The latter, the former strong man of Europe, substituted on the card and made his first appearance here in six years.

Canadian Sportsman To Attend Miller Fete

David A. Rochon, outstanding Canadian sportsman, will attend the Col. Harvey L. Miller testimonial dinner Monday night at the Willard Hotel, it was announced yesterday by Thomas P. Morgan, jr., chairman of the affair.

Mr. Rochon, chairman of the Montreal athletic commission, will occupy one of the places of honor at the function as will the vice chairman of the Montreal commission, R. F. Quinn.

Joe Dundee, former welterweight champion of the world, announced yesterday that he would journey over from Baltimore to pay his respects to the man who helped him on his way to the welterweight title back in 1924. Dundee started boxing in this vicinity under Miller's promotion.

D. C. Field Hockey Club To Hold Three Tryouts

The Washington Field Hockey Club will hold the first of three tryouts for its first team tomorrow at Cathedral School, the second being listed for Sunday and the third next Wednesday.

Bill Werber to Speak

Bill Werber, third baseman of the World Champion Cincinnati Reds, will be the special guest of Y. M. C. A. membership campaign workers tonight at a dinner in the assembly hall.

Hockey Eagles In Exhibition Game Tonight

Four of six players who represented the Washington Eagles in Eastern Amateur Hockey League competition last season probably will be started tonight when the Eagles open their 1940 exhibition season against the Cornwall Flyers on the latter's ice just outside Montreal.

Tomorrow night Washington shifts to Ottawa for a match with the celebrated Ottawa Senators.

Newcomers who will be included in the Eagles' starting order tonight are Gordon Hemming, popular goalie who represented River Vale last season, and Russ Rossgnol, center, who was with the Verdun juniors a year ago.

Len Burrage and Ross Knipfel will be the starting defense men while Paul Courteau and Mike Germann will patrol the wings.

As play progresses Norm Burns, last year with Atlantic City and River Vale, and Roy McBride, who played and managed hockey under wartime conditions in England last winter, will be rushed in at center.

Other players will be substituted as Coach Redvers Mackenzie sees fit.

A. U. Eleven Goes Again Against R.-M.

Idle Last Week, Eagles Play Old Rivals Tomorrow

American University's pigskin warriors return to the field of battle tomorrow after a wee lay-off when they meet the highly touted Randolph-Macon College at Ashland, Va.

The Eagles are a young and inexperienced lot with eight freshmen in the starting line-up. However in their last appearance against Johns Hopkins the local boys showed vast improvement over their poor earlier season form. The backfield gained over 300 yards from the line of scrimmage. Signal Caller Homer Sprinkle played one of the best games of his career, streaking off 120 yards himself which was as much as the entire Hopkins outfit made all afternoon. Other Orange and Blue gridsters who are doing well of late include MacPotter, hard tackling end; Bob Kelley, guard who shines at downfield blocking; Ken Fox, 216 pound tackle, and Fullback Ernest McCarthy, a newcomer who is playing his first season of varsity ball.

Randolph-Macon has a veteran team with six games under its belt and Coach Frank Summers is especially pointing to the contest for the opposing university's are traditional rivals. The Virginia College is noted for its scrappy and clean play and will probably rule slight favorites at the game time on the basis of past records.

Four key men of the Eagles are on the sick list and will probably see little action on Saturday; Capt. John Jablonsky a huge tackle; John Payne, All-Virginia tackle last year; Bill Garland and Bob Whalen.

Tommy Simpson, an elusive halfback who is noted for shaking off tacklers has completely recovered from a case of influenza and will be in shape for the encounter. Tommy has scored a touchdown in every football game that he has ever played in with the exception of the Johns Hopkins encounter

Harmon Tops Nation In Runs and Passes

Statistical Bureau Rates Michigan Ace First; Has Averaged 166 Yards Per Game Princetonian Has 45 Completions

By the Associated Press

Seattle, Oct. 31.—A Pegasus in the air, a Man o' War on the ground and a Percheron for work—that's Tom Harmon, Michigan's great halfback, reflected in American football statistical bureau figures released today.

For the second straight week Harmon leads the Nation's total offense leaders in gains from both rushing and passing.

He ran the ball 580 yards and passed it 253 yards in five games for a total of 833 yards. He figured in 164 plays, which makes him the workhorse of this week's top ten. The 1939 workhorse at this stage was Ernie Lain, of Rice, with 130 plays. Harmon has averaged 166.5 yards per game and 5.08 per play.

TOMMY HARMON

Allerdice Tops Passers

Dave Allerdice, of Princeton, continues to head the passers in the number of completions, the classification by which the bureau ranks the airmen, having hit his target 45 times in 86 attempts.

Pitching Paul Christman, of Missouri, has thrown the ball more than anybody else, 88 times, and has gained the most aerial yards, 616. Cornell's Halfback Hal McCuliough has completed 24 out of 36 for the highest listed percentage—.667, and his average gain per attempt leads all others, his tosses being good for 13.31 yards per pitch.

The leaders:

TOTAL OFFENSE (gains rushing and passing)—After Harmon comes Jack Jacobs, Oklahoma, 737 yards in 4 games; Al Chesquiere, Detroit, 714 in 5 games; Johnny Knolla, Creighton, 680 in 5 games; James Richardson, Marquette, 672 in 4 games; Gil Salcedo, Texas Mnies, 664 in 6 games; Christman, Missouri, 643 in 5 games; Bill Dudley, Virginia, 641 in 4 games, with figures unavailable on his fifth game; Bill Bewell, Washington State, 631 in 5 games, and Owen Price, Texas Mines, 625 in 6 games.

RUSHING OFFENSE—After Harmon, with 580 yards, comes Chesquiere, Detroit, 578; Tony Gallovich, Wake Forest, first last week, 538; Westfall, Michigan, 491, and Knolla, Creighton, 478.

FORWARD PASSING OFFENSE—Following Allerdice and Sewell, of Washington State, with 39 completions in 80 tries; Christman, Missouri, 36 of 88; Jacobs, Oklahoma, 35 of 56, and Dudley, Virginia, 30 of 64.

PUNTING—Owen Price, Texas Mines, 47.19; Glenn Dobbs, Tulsa, who booted a 70-yard out of bounds on Texas Christian's 1-yard line last week, 46.32; Dick McGowen, Auburn, fifth in 1939, 43.04; McClung, Colorado, 42.38, and Norman Standlee, Stanford, 41.71.

PASS RECEIVING—Jack Jennings, Oklahoma, leads with 18 catches, followed by Humbert, Richmond, 14; O'Connor, Drake, 13, and White, Virginia, and Phil Roach, Texas Christian, 12 each.

Volitant Scores Nose Victory in Sun Pal 'Cap at Empire City

Gelding Pays Talent $23 For Each $2

Attendance Jumps To 9,459 Although Rain Threatens; Roberts Rides Victor

By the Associated Press

Empire City Racetrack, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Volitant, a 4-year-old son of Display which is so hard to guess that even his own stable often has given up on him, scored a nose victory in the featured Sun Pal (class "C") Handicap here today. The gelding, owned by the Saratoga Stable of George Bull and John A. Morris, received the photo verdict over Philip Schwartz's Napper Tandy. Maemere Farm's Maeda made the race a monopoly for long shots by finishing third, beaten a length and a half.

Although more rain threatened all day, the attendance jumped to 9,459. Those who backed Volitant collected at the rate of $23.20 for two.

Volitant pounded over a mile and 70 yards of deep, heavy mud in 1:44 1-5 under Porter Roberts. It was the unreliable gelding's second success in 15 outings this year.

After Gino Rex had held a narrow early lead into the backstretch, Volitant assumed command, shaking off the brief challenge of Straw Hat. Napper Tandy drove up to the eventual winner around the bend and stuck his head in front. Tht two horses fought it out all through the stretch, with Volitant, on the inside, catching the camera's eye. Maeda rallied gamely after a sluggish beginning. Dolly Val, the choice, could not hold her forward position and finished sixth.

Favorite players rubbed their eyes when Dark Imp, in the third race, gave them their third straight success. Then they walked over to the cashier's window and collected again, at the rate of $5.30 for two. Johnny Gilbert rated the Wheatley Stable's filly behind the fast-starting Heathtown for a half mile. The veteran booter then asked the question and Dark Imp obliged by dashing to the front and scoring by three lengths.

Cash O Boy Wins At Rockingham

Salem, N. H., Oct. 31 (AP).—Arthur Gaignard, jr.'s, Cash O Boy outlasted Ben Dario's Little Banner to win the featured mile and a furlong claiming race by a length today at Rockingham Park.

Cash O Boy uncorked an amazing burst of speed near the five-eighths of a mile mark to catch the early pace-setters, Sneaky Henry and Sure Miss, and romped into the home stretch all alone in front of the pack.

Little Banner, whose favorite distance is a mile and three-quarters, came up from last place and almost caught the leader at the finish. Sure Miss hung on long enough to beat Sneaky Henry, the favorite, out of third place.

Challedon 1-4 Favorite Over Can't Wait

Pimlico Race to Attract 25,000 Fans to Baltimore

die colt first saw the light of morn on the celebrated Far Away Farm.

No sooner had the first chapter been written when the complexion of the Special changed. War Admiral, seeking to repeat his triumph of the year previous, fell victim to the onrushing Seabiscuit, champion of the West Coast although bred in Kentucky, in one of the most sensational match races in turf history. Now it was one for Kentucky, one for California. Even all.

Surely the third running in 1939 would clarify the situation. Kayak 2nd, carrying the old silks of Seabiscuit, had a great chance to make it two for the West Coast and owner Charley Howard.

But along came Challedon, pride of Maryland, a home-bred idol who had already left his stamp on the old Pimlico course, site of the most venerable racing association in America. Challedon came on to victory, a triumph that was to mark him the outstanding horse of the year. So now the honors were threefold: One for Kentucky, one for California, one for Maryland. Even all again.

The same national significance in the Special holds true this year. Challedon, current leader in the handicap division, will seek to add new laurels to the crown captured in the Pimlico Special last November. The West Coast again offers the challenge in Can't Wait owned by a Californian.

But the Special is not the only lure for turf fans tomorrow. The program will mark the first running of the Exterminator Handicap, a $5,000 added test, that will be right up the alley of most horse followers because it is at the marathon distance of two miles and 70 yards. It is a test of endurance that is worthy of the name of one of America's best-loved horses.

Seldom has Maryland offered two days of racing the like of that offered tomorrow and Saturday. The weekend card brings the $15,000 add Pimlico Futurity and a clash of Our Boots and Whirlaway that should pack in the customers. This race will just about decide which way the 2-year-old championship points. In the line-up will be Col. E. R. Bradley's Bryan Station, a development of the past Laurel meeting and a colt that many believe will carry the Bradley colors to another Kentucky Derby victory.

Here's the line-up of other stakes and handicaps for the 13-day meeting of the Maryland Jockey Club:

Monday, Nov. 4.—The Baltimore Autumn Handicap, tenth running, all ages, six furlongs, $2,500 added.

Tuesday, Nov. 5.—The Riggs Handicap, fifteenth running, three-year-olds and up, one mile and three-sixteenths, $10,000 added.

Wednesday, Nov. 6.—The Battleship Steeplechase Handicap, third running, four-year-olds and up, about two miles, $2,500 added.

Thursday, Nov. 7.—The Heiser Handicap, fifth running, all ages (foaled in Maryland), six furlongs, $2,500 added.

Friday, Nov. 8.—The Sagamore Handicap, fourth running, two-year-olds, six furlongs, $2,500 added.

Saturday, Nov. 9.—The Grayson, third running, three-year-olds and up, one mile and a half, $2,500 added.

Monday, Nov. 11.—The Ritchie Handicap, fourth running, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs, $5,000 added.

Tuesday, Nov. 12.—The Lady Baltimore Handicap, fourth running, three-year-olds and up (fillies and mares), one mile and a sixteenth, $2,500 added.

Wednesday, Nov. 13.—The Manly Steeplechase Handicap, twentieth running, four-year-olds and up, two miles and a half, $5,000 added.

Thursday, Nov. 14.—The Walden, thirty-fourth running, two-year-olds, one mile and a sixteenth, $7,500 added.

Friday, Nov. 15.—The Bowie Handicap, twenty-eighth running, three-year-olds and up, one mile and five-eighths, $10,000 added.

W. & L. Seeks Vengeance in W. Va. Clash

Victims of V. P. I., Generals Hope for Return to Top Form

Special Dispatch to The Post

Lexington, Va., Oct. 31.—Washington and Lee's fluctuating Generals, on the upgrade one week but dull the next, will clamber for a return to a place in the football sun when they face West Virginia's potently stocked Mountaineers on Charleston's Laidley Field Saturday at 2 p. m.

Defending champions of the Charleston "series" for the first time in 24 years, the W. & L. squad is due, according to the rhythmic fluctuations of its 1940 record, to bound back from its reversal of last Saturday into high gear for the classic renewal of the West Virginia series. While not in the best physical shape of the year, the Old Dominion invaders will be openly seeking repetition of their 1939 conquest in the familiar position of underdogs.

Leave By Bus

A full squad of players will leave here by bus early Friday afternono, stopping overnight outside the West Virginia capital city and docking on the scene of battle Saturday morning.

Coach Tex Tilson considered his squad "ready to settle down again" after the stunning upset delivered the Generals by an underrated Virginia Tech eleven last week. Tilson believed that "the schedule finally caught up with us," and added that "any squad with few reserves and a really tough schedule is certain to have a bad Saturday afternoon sooner or later. The mental tension alone must relax sometime."

The Generals themselves looked like a ball club during this week which has dispelled the so-called "bad football" from its system. Spirited despite illness and injury to key men, they worked with zest during the week against a frosh squad, primed with West Virginia power plays.

Unfilled Orders Top Billion Dollars; $1.50 Dividend Voted

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 31.—Heavy participation by Bethlehem Steel Corporation in the national rearmament program was shown today in a company announcement unfilled orders at the end of September exceeded $1,000,000,000 and the quarterly earnings were the second best in its history.

Directors declared a dividend of $1.50 a share, bringing the year's payments to date to $5, compared with $1.50 in all of 1939.

Profits in the September quarter equalled $3.63 a share, against $3.07 in the June quarter and $1.10 a year ago.

Eugene G. Grace, chairman, announced that the unfilled orders on hand a of September 30 totaled $1,123,081,930, "largely accounted for by our participation in the naval building program."

At the end of June, the backlog was $288,521,487, only slightly larger than a year ago.

Plant Extension Cited

"Orders for steel other than for naval building," said Grace, "are within 1,000 tons of the same amount as were on hand at the end of the previous quarter.

"In the first nine months of this year we have spent $19,000,000 of our own money for plant extension and have planned $21,000,000 of plant extension expenditures for the next six to eight months. This inclues $10,000,000 for plants purely for war purposes.

"We also are spending for the Government $53,000,000 for Government-owned facilities, principally for the extension of snipyards and heavy castings.

"This makes the company's World War activities, both in plant expansion and in unfilled orders, look like picayune stuff."

Repeating what he said at a directors meeting three months ago, the steel executive deplored the fact that the activity was 'production for destruction," saying:

"We would all be glad to relinquish this business and concentrate our activities on constructive production."

Net Near Record

The September quarter net profit was the second highest in Bethlehem's history, $12,462,288, or $3.63 a common share, compared with $10,807,318, or $3.07 a share in the June quarter, and $5,377,479, or $1.10 a share, in the September, 1939, quarter. The last three months of 1939 set a company earnings record of $13,028,928.

Grace said the company's mills now were turning out products at 103 per cent of their rated capacity and that for the three months ended September 30 they had averaged 99.9 per cent. This compares with production at 70.1 per cent of capacity in the like 1939 period.

Bethlehem's employment in the September quarter reached a record high average of 123,343 men and women. Grace replied with an emphatic "no" when asked whether the company was negotiating with the C. I. O.

"I know of nothing," he added, "that contemplates any change at all in our labor policy or our labor methods. We have had no part in any action which would make our labor policy appear to be a political issue."

North American Co.

North American Co. and subsidiaries, utilities holding and operating companies reported today net earnings for the September quarter of $3,972,343, or 35 cents a common share, compared with $4,437,818, or subsidiaries reported net earnings for the September quarter of $6,008,-194, or 22 cents a common share, compared with $6,851,135, or 25 cents a share, in the like 1939 period.

United Gas Improvement Co.

41 cents a share, in the like 1939 United Gas Improvement Co. and period.

20th Century-Fox Film Corp.

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation reported a consolidated net operating loss of $1,192,824 for the quarter ended September 28 after deduction of all charges, including provision of $1,400,000 for reserve against foreign assets. This compared with a second quarter operating loss of $236,163, and an operating profit of $278,069 in the September quarter of 1939.

New Jersey Zinc Co.

New Jersey Zinc Co. reported for nine months ended September 30 net profit of $5,114,464, equal to $2.60 a share on the capital stock, compared with $3,507,939, or $1.78 a share, in the first nine months of 1939.

Intertype Corporation

Intertype Corporation reported for the September quarter net profit of $60,226 after charges and taxes at the new rates, equal to 27 cents a share on the capital stock, compared with $25,910, or 11 cents a share, a year ago.

Auto Output Sets New Peak For October

Month's Assemblies Put at 519,472 Cars and Trucks

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Oct 31.—Automotive News in a survey of automobile factory activity today said assemblies for the month ending today aggregated 519,472 cars and trucks to make it the "best October" the industry has experienced. The previous high mark for October was 457,094 units in 1925.

The trade paper places this week's output at 117,078 cars and trucks against 117,398 last week. Production for this week a year ago was 87,342 units.

The survey placed General Motors production this week at 49,380 cars and trucks compared with 50,-539 last week. Assemblies of the Chrysler group were estimated at 27,325 this week and 26,887 last week. Ford output totaled 22,500 units, compared with 22,025 last week.

Works on Army Order

Detroit, Oct. 31 (AP).—Chrysler Corporation announced today that its Dodge division has begun assembly operations on a $10,500,000 order for 21,500 specially designed trucks for the United States Army. It expects to complete the order by next April.

Private Building Awards in Week Set 10-Year High

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Private engineering construction awards for the week ended Tuesday were the largest for any week in the last ten years, Engineering News-Record reported today.

Big increases in commercial and industrial building lifted private contracts to a level approximately four times the corresponding week last year and more than double the previous week.

Total construction awards were $157,754,000, the third highest of the year. This was a gain of 216 per cent over the same week of 1939 and 24 per cent higher than the previous week.

Public engineering contracts were 158 per cent greater than a year ago, but 13 per cent smaller than the week before.

Comparisons follow:

	Latest Week	Year Ago
Private	$77,107,000	$18,755,000
State and municipal	27,114,000	23,017,000
Federal	53,533,000	8,268,000

Permits in 31 Cities Of Reserve District Show 58% Gain

The broadening influence of the defense program is causing increased activity in trade and industry in the Fifth Reserve District, the Federal Reserve Bank in Richmond reported yesterday in a summary of September business conditions.

Building permits in 31 cities of the district, which embraces Maryland, the District of Columbia, Virginia, North and South Carolina, and most of West Virginia, were up 58 per cent over the corresponding month of 1939. Contracts actually awarded were nine per cent greater, but showed a 26 per cent decline from August's unusually high figure.

Normal commercial business was up to or above seasonal levels in most lines, with retail trade in department stores 25 per cent above the August volume and nine per cent greater than in September, 1939. Furniture sales were four per cent greater than in the previous September.

New automobile registrations were five per cent less than in September, 1939, due principally to a difference in dates for introduction of new models. Wholesale firms reported sales down five per cent over September a year ago.

Airline Issue Offered

An underwriting group headed by White, Weld & Co. and including the Washington investment house of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath, is offering an issue of 60,-000 shares of Pennsylvania-Central Airline Corporation. The initial price of $15.87½ a share is based on closing quotations for the stock October 30 on the Curb. Net proceeds will be applied in part to payment for two Douglas airplanes. The balance will be used as additional working capital.

Lanston Dividend Voted

Directors of Lanston Monotype Co., Washington, have declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on common stock, payable November 30 to holders of record November 20. A dividend of 50 cents a share was voted three months ago. The stock, which is listed on the Washington Stock Exchange, is widely held here.

Penn.-Central Promotes Pair

Two appointments involving promotion of local personnel were announced yesterday by Edward Sullivan, general traffic manager of Pennsylvania-Central Airlines. Dillon J. Ferris, of Arlington, becomes assistant district traffic manager in the Washington office, replacing Charles J. Mohan, who has been named district traffic manager at Knoxville, Tenn.

Mohan is a graduate of the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, where he was awarded a degree in transportation. While in Washington Mohan married Miss Beverly Moffett, daughter of the late Admiral William H. Moffett.

Reserve Banks Sell $19,000,000 In Federal Bonds

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board announced yesterday that the 12 Federal Reserve banks reduced their investments in Federal securities by $19,000,000 to $2,333,000,000 in the week ended October 30.

The banks liquidated $7,000,000 of Treasury bonds and $12,000,000 of Treasury notes. The board also said that lendable excess reserves of member banks declined $10,000,-000 to $6,930,000,000 in the week.

U. S. Exports Off 55 Million In September

British Take 65% Of Month's Total of $295,000,000

By the Associated Press

Commerce Department figures showed yesterday the British Empire too nearly two-thirds of the $295,000,000 worth of United States merchandise exports in September.

However, a department statement said, a drop in exports from $350,-000,000 in August to $295,000,000 in September was due to smaller shipments to nearly every important customer on the globe except Egypt, South Africa, Venezuela, Mexico, the Dutch East Indies, British Malaya and New Zealand.

The drop from August was attributed to varying factors. In the instance of the United Kingdom the department said the drop merely reflected the absence in September of large shipments of second-hand war materials such as airplanes and destroyers which inflated the August figures.

Commodity Index Hits High Since May

By the Associated Press

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday an increase of 0.3 of 1 per cent in the wholesale commodity price index for the week ended October 26. The index now stands at 78.6 per cent of the 1926 average.

"This is the highest general level for wholesale prices since early May of this year," the bureau said, "And is about 1 per cent lower than last year at this time, when prices were near their speculative peak following the declaration of war abroad."

Industrials Lead Broad Stock Upsurge; Favorites Up $1 to $3 in Fast Trading

New York, Oct. 31.—The stock market today stepped out of October with a rallying swing that carried leading steels and other industrial favorites up 1 to more than 3 points. It was one of the broadest and fastest markets of the past several months, with the pace accentuated by much short covering, speculative buying and investment demand.

Aircrafts touched off the extension of Wednesday's modest upturn. They are followed quickly by steels and rails. While the metal group finished at or near the day's best marks, profit taking in the afternoon substantially cut quotations for a number of earlier climbers.

The Associated Press Average of 60 stocks ended with an advance of .5 of a point at 45.8. A month ago the composite stood at 45.4 and a year ago at 52.3. The breadth of the forward tilt, the third in a row, was exemplified by the fact 846 individual issues changed hands against 724 the day before.

The turnover was largest in the forenoon. There were subsequent slow-downs, but volume amounted to 1,343,960 shares—a peak since June 12 last. It compared with 674,070 yesterday.

Brokers brought out varying reasons for the sudden upsurge. Some attributed it to a mild revival of political cheer in Wall Street, but others felt it was due mainly to the belated recognitnon of the brightening business picture and the belief that expanding earnings would more than offset climbing taxes for a number of corporations. War news seemed less tense marketwise.

Confirmation of industrial recovery was seen in the Bethlehem Steel statement, which came after the close, showing third quarter net for this concern of $3.63 a common share versus $3.07 in the second period and $1.10 in the 1939 September quarter. Unfilled orders at the end of the latest quarter were placed at $1,123,081,930. Directors voted a dividend of $1.50 on the junior shares. Previous payments this year were $1 in March and $1.25 each in June and September.

Aircrafts lost some of their initial buoyancy which was attributed to the President's plea for 12,000 more planes for the British and indications that many more machines would be needed for home forces.

Prominent on the bulge U. S. Steel, which touched a new 1940 top; Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, United Aircraft, Wright Aeronautical, Lockheed, Western Union, American Telephone, Great Northern, N. Y. Central, Standard Oil of N. J., Kennecott and International Harvester.

General Motors and Chrysler were fractionally improved. Commonwealth & Southern sold in a block of 10,000 shares, off ⅛ of a point and closed all even at 1⅛.

Curb gainers of fractions to a point or so included Jones & Laughlin, Bell Aircraft, Brewster Aero, Hewitt Rubber, Electric Bond & Share and Niagara Hudson Power. Deals here were around 187,000 shares against 129,000 in the previous session.

Medium-priced railway obligations and selected industrial loans joined the stock market in a brisk upturn today and, at the close, gains of fractions to around 2 were frequent.

The foreign dollar division, meanwhile, put on a display of its own, with some issues rising 6 to 7 points. Great Consolidated Electric Power of Japan 6½s of '50 at 78, were 6 higher on sale of a single bond, while Paulista Railway 7s of '42 at 60 advanced 7.

Some British issues turned in brisk gains, with Australian 4½s at 47 adding 3, and New South Wales 5s of '57 closing at 53, up 1. Canada 4s of '60 were ⅛ higher at 92¼, but the 3s of '67 dipped 1 at 81. Among South American loans, Argentine 4½s of '48 gained 2 at 79. German and Japanese government issues lost a little ground.

Conspicious gainers of between 1 and 2 in the home railway division included Cleveland short line 4½s of '61 at 81, big four 4½s of '77 at 56¼, Colorado & Southern 4½s of '80 at 18, New York Central 5s at 64¼, Nickel Plate 5½s at 70¼ and Northern Pacific 4s at 83¼.

United States Governments were lightly traded, with Treasury obligations 11-32nds of a point higher to 4-32nds lower.

Wheat futures spurted ahead and closed ⅝ to 1¼ cents a bushel higher in the Chicago board of trade today. Corn forward contracts added ⅛ to ⅝ cents a bushel. Strength in the grains was attributed largely to a sympathetic improvement with securities, but some buying was attributed to flour mills.

Cotton futures closed unchanged to 30 cents a bale advanced.

Among nonferrous metals, lead improved and copper jiggled around unevenly. Rubber and cottonseed oil were on the upside. Hides closed in an uneven pattern, with little change. Wool tops tended up a little, and silk was a shade lower.

The Associated Press average of 35 weighted cash wholesale commodity prices, with 1926 as 100, advanced to 75.31 from 75.29 on Wednesday.

Woolen Mills Booked Solid

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—A "solid foundation" of Army orders for woolen mill operations through the first half of 1941 was reported today by the New York Wool Top Exchange.

"The United States Army," the exchange announced, "has during the past week awarded contracts to mills for 8,515,000 yards of wool flannel shirtings, 6,000,000 yards of light shade serge, 1,000,000 yards of dark serge and 775,000 yards of elastique.

"The contracts brought unfilled orders in the hands of mills to an estimated 55,000,000 to 60,000,000 yards and assured continuance of the present high rate of operations well into the new year . . ."

Steel Employment Continues Heavier

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Steel industry employment rose to an average of 565,000 workers in September in the fifth consecutive monthly gain, the American Iron & Steel Institute said today. This compared with 560,000 in August and 502,000 a year ago.

Pay rolls declined to $82,068,000 from $83,837,000 in August because of the Labor Day curtailment and the shorter month. In September 1939 pay rolls totaled $69,735,000.

Average pay per hour for wage earners was 85.4 cents, against 85.1 in August and 84.7 a year ago.

Boston Wool

Boston, Oct. 31 (AP).—(U. S. Dept. of Agr.).—Only a few sales were closed on domestic wools on the Boston market today. Graded combing lengths of fine and half-blood territory wools were sold at firm prices compared with last week's quotations. A moderate volume of business was transacted in fine and half-blood grades of South American wools that had arrived or were due to arrive in Boston within ten days. Prices on South American wools were firm, but under the levels of prices on domestic wools of similar grade.

Hosiery Trade Gets FTC Rules On Silk Labels

By the Associated Press

The Federal Trade Commission promulgated yesterday proposed trade practice rules for the hosiery industry.

They call for the proper markings and identification of fiber content of all hosiery made in the United States or imported for sale here, and for the prevention of various forms of unfair trade practices. The proceedings were instituted on application of members of the industry. The commission said opportunity for argument would be afforded on November 19.

Under the rules it would be an unfair trade practice to use the terms 'all silk," "pure dye silk," or the unqualified word "silk," if the fiber content were not exclusively silk or if it contained any metallic weighting whatever, or contained any loading or adulterating materials. Fibers contained in the hosiery would have to be named on the label in the order of their predominance; full and nondeceptive disclosure of the presence of metallic weighing would be required.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, Oct. 31 (AP).—Hog trade opened steady to strong today, but later slowed down with some interests bidding steady to 10 cents lower. Cattle were steady to weak and bidding was around 15 cents lower on lambs held at stronger prices.

Hog receipts were moderate and considerably decreased from the excessive runs of the first part of the week, but the dressed market continued weak and best wholesale pork loins declined to $13 per hundredweight.

A dependable trade on choice steers, yearlings and heifers held generally steady with the best fed steers at $14.50.

HOGS—Salable, 13,000; total, 19,500; opened fairly active, steady to strong with Wednesday's average; later trade slow; some interests bidding steady to 10 lower; top, 6.20; bulk good and choice, 200-300 pounds, 6.00@6.15; mostly 6.10@6.15 for 210-300-pound butchers; welle finished, 170-190-pound averages, 5.60@6.00; load, 300-400-pound packing sows, 5.80@6.00; 400-500-pound, largely 5.50@5.75.

CATTLE—Salable, 4,000; calves, 800; dependable trade on strictly good and choice steers, yearlings and fed heifers generally steady; other grades slow, weak; best fed steers, 14.50; several loads, light and medium weights, 13.75@14.25; bulk supplies, slaughter steers, 9.25@12.25; several loads and lots, common and medium grades, 10.00 and below; bulk fed steers, 9.75@11.25; fat cows, slow, steady; canners and cutters, strong, bulls steady; best sausage kind, 7.00@7.10; vealers steady at 11.00@11.50.

SHEEP—Salable, 3,000; total, 6,000; late Wednesday's fat lambs, strong to 15 higher; mostly 10-15 up. Good to choice natives, 9.15@9.25; top, 9.25 to city butchers; good to choice range and feo western lambs absent; today's trade practically nothing done on fat lambs; asking stronger or 9.25 and slightly above on good to choice natives; most early bids around 9.00, lower at 9.00; sheep steady; part deck good fed yearlings, 7.75; package good to choice light slaughter ewes, 4.25; no action on feeding lambs.

Bank of England

London, Oct. 31 (AP).—The Bank of England continued to lighten its holdings of government securities this week, disposing of 27,315,000 in the period ending yesterday, the bank's weekly statement disclosed today. At the same time "other securities" increased substantially and reserves were boosted £1,676,000.

The detailed statement follows (in thousands of pounds): Circulation, 591,-571, decrease, 1,738; bullion, 723, increase; public deposits, 18,250, decrease, 5,475; private deposits, 159,515, increase, 2,034; government securities, 130,038, decrease, 7,975; other securities, 36,276, increase, 2,237. C. & P. Net Income Eases In September

Month's Profit Totals $119,005 Against $143,687 in 1939

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday reported net income of $119,005 in September, as compared with $143,687 in the same month last year. An increase in operating expenses and taxes more than offset a gain in operating revenues.

Operating revenues in September were $1,104,175 against $1,006,872 a year ago, and operating expenses were $781,448 as compared with $712,518 in September, 1939.

For the nine months of 1940, operating revenues were 8.64 per cent higher than the same period last year, while expenses, including taxes, were 9.08 per cent higher. Net income for the nine months showed an increase of $39,868, or 2.96 per cent over last year, while the average plant in service showed an increase of $2,950,852, or 6.39 per cent.

Taxes in September amounted to $155,508, an increase of $45,699 over September, 1939. For the nine months of 1940, taxes amounted to $1,083,022, which is $188,285 more than for the same period in 1939, an increase of 21.04 per cent.

There were 266,109 telephones in service at the end of September, which was an increase of 2,996 telephones over the previous month. Telephone users made 31,577,000 calls during the month, or 2,752,000 more than in September, 1939.

New York Telephone Co.

New York Telephone Co., for the September quarter, reported net income of $7,439,678 after charges and taxes, equal to $1.77 a common share, compared with $7,904,755 or $1.88 a common share in the like 1939 quarter. Operating revenues for the September quarter at $53,-609,345 topped the $51,838,949 of a year ago, but the statement pointed out tax accruals for the third 1940 quarter included nine months' provision for additional taxes imosed by the second Revenue Act of 1940.

Rail Loadings Up 2.9% in Week

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday 837,651 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was an increase of 23,742 cars, or 2.9 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 8,293, or 1 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 129,061, or 18.2 per cent, compared with 1938.

Loadings for the week were the highest since the week ended October 21, 1939, when they totaled 856,-289.

Cotton Futures

New York, Oct. 31 (AP).—Cotton futures today were unchanged to 30 cents a bale higher.

Bombay buying, good trade demand and strength in Wall Street securities gave support to the market.

Traders heard reports from Tokyo that Japan expected to take about 1,000,000 bales of American cotton in the fiscal year which opened April 1, last. That left a potential demand from Japan of 815,-000 bales from this year's crop, if Tokyo rumors were true.

Experts Wednesday, 1,100 bales; season so far, 310,624; port receipts, 13,660; port stocks, 3,003,640.

London Stocks

London, Oct. 31 (AP).—Stock market trading was mainly in investment issues today. There was fair volume in silt-edged issues, which closed firm, while there was good demand from the provinces for railway debentures and guaranteed issues.

Iron and steel and shipping shares gained some support, but industrials remained quiet. Oils were firmer by fractions. Dividend paying Kaffirs were firm, while Johannesburg buyins lifted prices of some non-producers. Rubber and copper shares were narrowly irregular. Oils were dull.

Listen! with Glynn

The attitude of Washington's high school youth on governmental problems—in this case, what the Nation should do about the unemployed—will be given you by five students from Woodrow Wilson High School during the "American School of the Air" broadcast over WJSV at 9:15 this morning.

The discussion in the Woodrow Wilson High Auditorium, before 1,200 other students, will be a part of the Nation-wide program of the "School of the Air" with local high schools in each of the 119 cities boasting CBS stations cutting in similarly in their areas.

The idea behind the broadcasts is that parents and others—as well as students themselves—should be given the chance to understand the opinions of modern youth and to see its ability to handle the discussion method by giving different sides of every question a fair hearing.

The Washington participants are Martha Jane Graham, Aria Moll, Robert Fisher, Donald Cummings and Henry Wensel.

The "American School of the Air" is heard five days a week and is a regular part of the curriculum of many schools, not only in the United States, but in Canada and Latin America as well.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Hennick Now Pitching, Woo, Woo — BY MILTON CANIFF

DID YOU PULL THAT LEDGE WALKING ACT JUST TO TELL ME ABOUT THE RANSOM BUSINESS?
WHY---YES! OF COURSE!
I SORTA THOUGHT YOU CAME OVER TO VOTE FOR HENNICK —BUT I GUESS OL' PATRICK IS STILL HEAD MAN... IT WOULDN'T BE RIGHT TO CUT IN ON A PAL, WOULD IT?
...I SUPPOSE NOT!
NOW THAT WE'VE MADE AT LEAST A FEEBLE ATTEMPT TO CLEAR OUR CONSCIENCES...
...LET'S GET AROUND TO WHAT WE BOTH HAD IN MIND IN THE FIRST PLACE...

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

JIST WHAT DID YA MEAN, SLIM--ABOUT WAITIN' TILL YA GOT ON YER FEET, FINANCIALLY BEFORE YA LOOKED UP YER MOTHER AN' DENNIE?
EXACTLY WHAT I SAID-- I EARN A FAIR SALARY, AND SAVE MOST OF IT! A MAN IN A BANK SEES CHANCES FOR GOOD INVESTMENTS! SOME DAY I'LL -- CLEAN UP!
THEN I EXPECT TO HAVE A NICE HOME FOR MOTHER AND MY BOY! IT'S BEEN MY DREAM FOR YEARS, BIFF! IT MAY COME SOON, TOO! I'VE GOT A LINE ON SOMETHING THAT LOOKS VERY GOOD!
--"SOMETHIN' THAT LOOKS VERY GOOD," HUH? HE MEANS THEM BONDS HE STOLE!-- POOR MARY!

DONALD DUCK — The Spiders and the Fly — BY WALT DISNEY

IS MICHAEL ON DUTY TONIGHT?
NO, PHILIP—HE WENT OVER TO SEE TOM AND FLOSSIE—AND THE BABY!
CAN YOU IMAGINE HOW I FEEL WORKING UNDER A MAN THAT I KNOW IS A CROOK, TOM?
SURE, I KNOW, MICKEY —BUT THE COMMISSIONER WILL GET WISE TO KLIPP SOMEDAY! LET'S GO BOWL A FEW GAMES AND YOU'LL FEEL BETTER—WE'LL DRIVE DOWNTOWN IN MY CAR!
GEE, TOM— THE CAR RUNS SWELL!
YEAH—IT'S JUST ABOUT BROKEN IN! I HAVEN'T HAD MUCH TIME TO USE IT!

DIXIE DUGAN — Unhypnotizing a Hypnotist — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

MICKEY HAS HAD LITTLE SLEEP WONDERING HOW SHE CAN KEEP RICHO OCCUPIED WHILE DIXIE TRIES TO UNHYPNOTIZE DONNA, DEBBS!
GOSH—HOW'M I GONNA GET HIM AWAY FROM HER LONG ENOUGH? —HYPNOTIZE HIM?
IT'S A PROBLEM I'LL ADMIT BUT WE'VE GOT TO DO IT SOME WAY
R-RING
HELLO!—YES!— OH GOOD MORNING, MISS DEBBS—YES— OH, WE'D LOVE TO WHOOPEE! OUR PROBLEM IS SOLVED!
HOW?

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — New Coal — BY FRANK MARTINEK

YOU SAY THE SCORPION HAS ANOTHER PLAN OF SABOTAGE AGAINST THE NAVY YARD THAT YOU'RE PULLING OFF TONIGHT?
THAT'S RIGHT, COMRADE
WE'RE GOING TO SMASH THE POWER PLANT! THAT WILL TIE UP EVERYTHING, FOR WEEKS.
WHAT?
LIKE OUR TRICK WITH THE BOX KITE IT WILL BE DONE FROM OUTSIDE THE YARD
LOOK AT THIS
WHAT'S THAT CHUNK OF COAL GOT TO DO WITH—COAL, EH? THAT'S WHAT YOU THINK!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

THAT SHOOTS OUR WAD, CHIEF! OUR LAST COIN! NOW WE'VE GOT TO GET FREE PASSAGE ON ONE OF THOSE TRAMP STEAMERS— OR START BEGGING ON THE STREETS OF BOMBAY!
UGH! LUNCH TOO LITTLE! WAHOO HUNGRY AGAIN ALREADY!
I SUPPOSE I COULD SELL MY CAMERA— BUT WHAT IT WOULD BRING WOULDN'T LAST LONG—AND WE'D HAVE NO HOPE OF EARNING ANYTHING!
WELL, ONE THING ABOUT BEING AS BAD OFF AS WE ARE--WE KNOW THINGS CAN'T GET ANY WORSE! —HELLO! WHAT DO YOU WANT, MISTER?
—STEVE ROPER? I'M OPERATIVE McDUGAN OF THE ARGUS DETECTIVE AGENCY!--AN' I GOT SOMETHIN' TO SAY TO YOU—IN PRIVATE!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

BOSS CRANE TAKE RAIL FROM HIGH BRIDGE, KING! WE'LL CRASH INTO RIVER!
AND THIS HAND-BRAKE ISN'T CHECKING THESE HEAVY CARS, RED FOX!
I'LL HOLD THE BRAKE - TELL YOUR BROTHERS TO JUMP FOR THEIR LIVES!
EVERYTHING'S ALL SET, CRANE! THEM INJUNS ARE HEADED FOR A CRASH!
NEVER MIND THE REDSKINS! WE WANT KING!
